Foreword

THE publication of this book marks the three-hundredth anniversary of the arrival in America of Robert and Mary. It covers in some detail the biographies of all male members of the first five generations, and a record of such later descendants as the interested cooperation of loyal, living members of the family has made it possible to publish.

Four previous partial histories of this family are worthy of mention: Runnels and Reynolds Families, 1873, by the Rev. Moses T. Runnels; Reynolds Family Annals of 1907 and 1915; and Robert and Mary Reynolds (Hyatt Descent), 1928, the first edition of this work. Numerous other sketches, authentic and otherwise, are printed in various commercial collections of small-town and county biographies.

How did this book come about? Since 1800 various descendants have gathered manuscript notes of our family history. The most complete is the two-volume manuscript of John Post Reynolds; the oldest, that of Freegrace Raynolds; the most scholarly, that of Isaac Newton Reynolds; the most interesting for intimate biographical detail, that of Mrs. Alpheus Hyatt; the most concise, that of Dr. John Phillips Reynolds, etc. In the first days of August, 1914, the editor, a student at Harvard, disappointed in a projected trip to the Rhine country by the outbreak of the War, went to visit relatives in Maine. His Aunt Esther related many anecdotes of the earlier Maine Reynoldses; his Uncle Emerson showed him a military cockade and sword used by one of the family in the War of 1812. He spent the remainder of the summer in research among the splendid resources of the Widener Library of Harvard University and the Library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston, and so the task was begun. As the by-products of his principal search for the history of his own family, he has published several genealogies of other Reynolds families.

The editor has gathered in amplified biographical detail the records of possibly ten times as many descendants of this family as limited subscriptions permit to be published. The unpublished portions may some day be permanently deposited in Boston and New York genealogical libraries. Corrections, amplifications and amendments to the book will be printed from time to time in the Annals of the Reynolds Family Association.

In this book, an asterisk before the name of a person indicates that his own history is expanded more fully in a later chapter under the same identifying number. For instance, *94 recorded as a child on p. 75 is written-up as the head of his own family on p. 97.

The rounding out of the written record of our family has been an interesting avocation for sixteen years. The growing requirements of a vocation, however, oblige the editor to say, through this little book, farewell to an interest that has long been dear to his heart.

ROBERT AND MARY REYNOLDS

OF BOSTON

The Historical Background

This book concerns the family of ROBERT and MARY REYNOLDS who about 1630-32, with their five young children, changed their home from the sunny countryside of Old England to the unknown wilderness of New England.

The reasons that impelled the exodus in which they came were religious, economic and social. The causes were so weighty to Governor John Winthrop's Puritans that they were willing to risk severe hardships and dangers in the new land, though, as Winthrop wrote, "it was some pinch to them at first."

The Non-Conformist Puritans—and Robert and Mary were of their number—remained within the English Church, yet refused to conform to certain ceremonial practices, such as wearing the surplice, the use of the ring in marriage, sign of the cross in baptism, etc. They clamored for a preaching, not a mechanical ministry, and for the scrapping of the symbolic paraphernalia still held over by the Church of England from its Roman days. When the Puritans first exerted influence about 1563, their violence and intolerant stubbornness aroused the opposition of Queen Elizabeth (1558-1603). Under James I (1603-1625) and Charles I (1625-1649) the Conformists were decidedly the "outs" in the English Government. The English Kings, still fighting the Pope to establish the independence of the English Church, regarded the Non-Conformists much as the American Tory Loyalists a hundred and fifty years later looked upon the revolting Colonists. To the English Government absolute conformity in religious matters was an imperative necessity. The petty tyranny of those charged with enforcing conformity drove out many of the Puritans, as it had the Pilgrims a decade or two previously. At about this time the Huguenots in France were fighting to establish their right to Protestantism, and in another century the descendants of both these English and French radicals met and intermingled in the new American colonies.

Economic pressure was then more severe in England than is now easily imagined. In some respects it is strikingly similar to the distress in Europe during the years of readjustment and "deflation" following the World War. Prices had risen about three-fold; intemperant luxury and a considerable demoralization of the middle and upper classes had reached a wanton stage. While the wealthy became rich and profiteers abounded, the poor and middle classes were sliding backward into a poverty daily more and more unendurable.

The pressure of over-population in England had become such that, as Winthrop writes, Man "the most precious of creatures, is here more vile and base than the earth we tread upon. . . and thus it is come to pass, that children, servants and neighbors, especially if they be poor, are counted the greatest burdens, which if things were right would be the chiefest earthly blessings." Laborers not only found their pay grown pitifully insufficient, but they grew restive under the severity of unjust laws that compelled their arrest and sale into bondage if they refused to work for wages arbitrarily fixed by their masters. The plagues, too, had swept England heavily, though during the two decades before the sailing of Winthrop's fleet (April, 1630), they had not been quite so disastrous as formerly.

Then the attraction of adventure and frontier life, the lure of a new and little-known part of the world, inhabited by supposedly ferocious savages, and the personal ambition of some of the Puritan leaders and ministers, and the prospect of more freedom where they would not be under the immediate eye or facile control of their uncompromising royal government rounded out the series of reasons for abandoning their homes in England.

The English Home of Robert:

The English home of our Reynolds family has never been established, although a few vague clues have been carefully investigated. One suggestion pretending to definiteness† names Aylesford in Kent, some thirty miles southeast of London. Unhappily the parochial records of the little village of Aylesford, so its kindly Vicar wrote us in the war days of 1915, now extend back only to about 1660, because many years ago "the Register which contained entries from Queen Elizabeth to Charles I disappeared—I believe it was very foolishly and wrongly lent to an exhibition." There were many of our name in and about Maidstone, Canterbury and Aylesford in the reign‡ of Queen Elizabeth, at the time when Robert was born. Another interesting suggestion came in 1922 from the late Dr. H. S. Delamere of Berkeley, California, who had never seen the Reynolds Family Association coat-of-arms (foxes) copied from the gravestone of Joseph Reynolds (d. 1759) in Bristol, R. I.:

"I was called to see an old lady who was living in Berkeley. She was born in England, maiden name Reynolds. On the wall was hanging the Reynolds coat-of-arms (three foxes) worked in worsted. I recognized it when I saw the Association Annals some years later."

†Genealogy of New England, edit. by W. R. Cutter, II: p. 888. In 1915 Miss Susan Reynolds Simons of Brockton, Mass., replied to our inquiry: "I assisted Mr. John B. Reynolds somewhat in preparing this paper and it was on my authority that he stated that Robert Reynolds came from Aylesford, England. I, however, cannot definitely remember where I got this information. . . it may have been from a history of Boston."

‡In its Annual, 1922, pp. 191-96, and in the 1925 Annual, The Reynolds Family Association began the publication of the records of some old English marriages in which the name of Reynolds figured. Those records indicate something of the wide distribution of the family in England even at that time.

Dr. Delamere stated that the lady had died and that her daughter was living somewhere in western Canada, but could not be found; also that his recollection was that the older lady had been born in Cumberland, England. Another genealogist, without stating his authority, gives Northampton, England, as Robert's home. While none of these suggestions, lacking corroboration, can be accepted, it is possible that Robert's home might have been one of the villages of Suffolk, Essex, Leicestershire, Devonshire, etc., where the name was then common. Governor John Winthrop, in Boston next-door neighbor to Robert Reynolds, seems always to have been a family friend, and he came from Groton, Suffolk County, England.

The Family in England:

For further research in England, it should be considered:

- That Robert was born in England about 1580;
- That he married there Mary ———, between 1600-1622;
- That their five (perhaps more) children were born there before 1630;
- That Robert was between forty and fifty-five when he sailed from England;
- That the traditional family trade was that of shoe-maker (then called cord-wainer);

And that Nathaniel, the name given the only son of whom we know, might also have been a family Christian name in England.

It is quite likely that NATHANIEL, according to the custom of the times, was named for his Reynolds grandfather in England. It is noteworthy that each of the five children of Robert and Mary, except Tabitha (who died after the birth of her only son Matthew, named for her husband), christened one of his (or her) sons Nathaniel. That is, there were among

ROBERT'S GRANDCHILDREN

Boys:	Boys:	Girls:
4 Nathaniels	2 Phillips	4 Marys
3 Johns (Two of these were probably named for non-Reynolds relatives)	2 Josephs	4 Sarahs
	2 Benjamins	3 Elizabeths
		2 Ruths, etc.

as suggesting the names of Robert's own parents, and of those of his wife. Though in such assumptions we must go very slowly, we are inclined to think Nathaniel was the name of Robert's father in England, and that the name of his mother was probably Ruth or Tabitha. Until recently we have never seen the name† Nathaniel Reynolds on any English records, and we should be immensely interested in any mention prior to 1630.

Some tribesmen have pointed to certain family resemblances between representative American members and the famous portrait of Sir Joshua

†The only mention of early Nathaniels in England has come to light through researches in England which Mrs. Hyatt caused to be made:

1. The will of a Nathaniel Reynolds of Kelsale, Suffolk, was filed 1656, in Privy Council Chambers—Yeoman; dated 14 March 1655-56. Mentions only wife Sarah; no other relatives. Administration with Will annexed Nov. 24, 1656, to Edward Davis and Edmund Thorne. (Ref. 390 Berkeley P. C. C.)

Reynolds painted by himself; and they argue therefore that our family may be also of Sir Joshua's Devonshire strain. Sir Joshua, of course, was an exemplary bachelor and he was born almost a century after our Robert had left England.

Robert and his son Nathaniel were well educated for their time, and it is believed that both wrote out their own wills. This, in an age when illiteracy was general in the laity in England and signing by mark quite common, indicates that the family in England might have been of some importance. The early settlers of New England, however, were generally of high-grade stock, and for the most part were fairly well educated.

When and Where Robert was born:

So much for Robert's home and family; now for the date of his birth. We read in his will (signed Boston, April 20, 1658):

"I & my wife being stricken in age, & are almost past our Labour.—"

The date of his death in Boston, April 27, 1659, and that of his widow Mary, January 18, 1663 (1662-64 old style), confirms ripe old age. The birth of the youngest child, around 1630, when Mary was probably not over 45, was some thirty-four years before Mary's death. Therefore, we should imagine that they attained as much as the venerable seventy or eighty years usual to our old-time generations. Robert's only son, Nathaniel, who died at 81, made his will in 1706, at the age of 79. If Robert were 79 when he made his will in 1658, then he would have been born in 1579. From this discussion, we might conservatively conclude that he was born between 1580-90, and somewhere in eastern or south-eastern England.

Robert would have been about eight at the time of the defeat of the Spanish Armada (1588). His boyhood and youth were certainly spent in the Golden Age of Queen Elizabeth (1558-1603) when Shakespeare, Spenser and Marlowe were creating some of the finest works of our literature, and when the religious quarrels—culminating a few decades later in the beheading of Charles I during Cromwell's ascendancy—were at white-heat. He was just attaining mature manhood when the Pilgrims removed (1609) from Scroobie to Leyden; and he was in middle-age and married when (1620) the Mayflower and Speedwell† sailed for Plymouth. During Robert's young manhood, the first settlements were being made in Virginia and the English adventurers were making brilliant raids upon Spanish treasure ships in the Caribbean, 'the Spanish Main.'

Robert's Marriage:

Robert married in England, about 1610, Mary -----, whose maiden name‡ will probably never be known§ to us. Assuming that Robert was †Commanded by "Captain Reignoldes" of whom we know nothing more.

‡Frank Wayland Reynolds once said that it was Fosdick, though he admitted that he could not support his belief. Robert's granddaughter married John Fosdick in Boston; and it is possible that Mr. Reynolds was confused by that marriage.

§A Robert Reynolds m. 1617 Jane Watts in London. From Directory of English and Welsh Surnames with Special References to American Instances, by Bardsley. London Licenses, I, 122-O. Another Robert Reynolds m. Mary Pulleyne, at Fremington, Devon, in 1623. (Boyd Marriages Register.)

born about 1580, even 1585, it is difficult to explain his marriage apparently so late in life—seemingly not so long before 1620, because the first known child, Ruth, was born about 1622. But it is possible that other earlier children may have died in England, perhaps of the plague. If, as is quite possible, Robert came with Governor Winthrop and John Saltonstall in April-June, 1630, some of his children of whom we have never heard may have been among the two hundred of that party who died in the epidemics during the first six months in America. Mr. Isaac Newton Reynolds at one time tried to connect Robert Reynolds, fisherman of Pulling Point, (1670) as a disowned son of our Robert, but he said he could find no clue, and merely concluded that if—as was highly unlikely—that Robert† of Pulling Point was a disowned son, it may have been the reason that the name Robert did not appear for several generations among the descendants of our Robert of Boston.

Our starting point for laying out many of the dates in the table following is our certain knowledge that Captain Nathaniel, the one known son of Robert, was born in 1627, since he declared in an affidavit, "Boston, May 21, 1674," that he‡ was then 'aged about 47.' None of Robert's children, apparently, were married when the family arrived in New England, and we feel sure that all of them were then quite small. In Robert's will the four daughters named in series are obviously given in the order of their birth. Using this meagre evidence in combination with the known birth-dates and ages of Robert's sons-in-law, and upon the assumption that the five children were each of ordinary age when married; and taking 1632—it is surely within two years either way of being correct—as the year when the migration from England occurred, we can deduce some interesting probabilities about this little Puritan family:

†Robert Reynolds, Sr., of Pulling Point, Mass. was buried Sept. 6, 1705, o. s., in property transfers mentioned as 'fisherman' and farmer; administered his son Robert's estate 1705, Boston. His own will dated May 29, 1705, o. s., three days after his son Robert was buried: "Robert Renall of Pulling Point in New England, husbandman—all my estate—to be my said wife Elizabeth's—and after said wife's decease my will is what shal then be left shall be equally divided amongst my children surviving; viz.: Elizabeth, Ann, Mary, Sarah, John, Abigail." He signed by mark; letter of administration, Suffolk, Boston, Registry of Deeds: "Robert Renalls late of Pulling Point—yeoman—is hereby committed unto his wife and relict Elizabeth Renalls, sole executor." It is possible his wife was the "Mrs. Reynolds" buried in Boston January 31, 1718, o. s. Children in will probably in order of age: 1. Robert, Jr., b. about 1685, d. 1705, buried May 26, 1705, o. s., four months before his father. "Brazier, of Pulling Point"; unmarried. Letter of administration, May 13, 1705, (sic). "To Robert Reynolds, father of Robert Reynolds late of Boston, brazier, deceased, said son (being bachelor)." 2. Elizabeth, b. January 2, 1669, o. s. 3. Ann, b. August 11, 1670, o. s., m. Thomas Emmons, Jany. 7, 1710, by Rev. Cotton Mather. 4. Mary, b. 1675— 6. Sarah, nothing known. 7. John, (m. Susanna Storey, Sept. 5, 1706)— 8. Abigail, nothing known.

In a suit of attachment in Boston, "15th of 5th mo. 1662" a Robert Ronals and others were arrested for debt. First Mate of ship deposed that Ronals and others deserted and refused to "doe any worke about the saide ship Anne." Robert thereupon petitioned to be released from prison, signed "Robart Renolls." This is probably a seaman and not the Pulling Point Robert.

The above John may have been one of the following in Boston marriage records: "John Renolds & Susanna Storey by Rev. Cotton Mather, Sept. 5, 1706." "John Renals & Ruth Pitman, Rev. Peter Thatcher, Presb. Aug. 25, 1720." "John Renalls & Sarah Button, Aug. 19, 1726, (Intention only filed)." "John Renolds & Rebecca Lupton, Dr. Benjamin Colman, Presb., Jany. 6, 1731." This last John was of the Wethersfield, Conn., strain. "John Reynolds & Martha Dezekiel, Rev. John Moorhead, Oct. 24, 1731." We have nothing more concerning this Robert of Pulling Point; he seems to have been unrelated to Robert of Boston, though a contemporary of our Captain Nathaniel. Pulling Point is now called Point Shirley and is on the North Shore before Nahant Point.

Of this immigrant family of Robert and Mary Reynolds, we know definitely that Mary (Reynolds) Sanger of Watertown, who died some time after 1711, was the last to die. The deaths in old age of Captain Nathaniel Reynolds and of Mrs. Mary Sanger support our reasoning in considering them the younger children of the family. Sarah, of whose death we have no record, may have been born before Nathaniel. Robert, the father, died April 27, 1659; Mary, the mother, died January 18, 1663[†], both in Boston. It is most probable that they are buried in King's Chapel Cemetery, which was part of the first settlement—after William Blackstone—in Boston by Isaac Johnson, August, 1630. Johnson died the next month and was buried on his land which then became the cemetery.

Now, when did Robert and Mary and their children voyage from England to the bleak shores of Massachusetts Bay? In the Runnels-Reynolds Family, by the Rev. Moses T. Runnels, it is written "From well authenticated 'private records of long ago', Robert is known to have been in Boston in 1632."

The Reverend Mr. Runnels himself put known in italics; his studies were made half a century ago. It appears that he made this categorical statement upon some satisfactory authority which for reasons of his own he did not care to cite. Of many original wills, deeds, diaries, letters, etc., pertaining to the early history of New England which have come to be in private hands, some have been surreptitiously purloined from the Boston|| archives by over-zealous descendants. Runnels was probably shown some such document privately, and probably by request he discreetly refrained from mentioning the possessor in his book.

[‡]Under the old style calendar which was legal until 1751, New Year's Day fell on March 25th, so that dates prior to 1751 which fell between January 1st and March 24th, inclusive, were ambiguous unless both the old year and the new year were written. The printed records of the Boston Record Commissioners are not in this proper form, and we cannot now tell whether the above year was 1663 modern style, or 1662-1663; 1663-34, or 1663. For a better explanation, read the article upon 'Calendar' in any standard encyclopedia.

work, owned† an ancient Anti-Papist book of some 1362 pages printed in London, 1634, by John Haviland. The old book, which he had re-bound about 1898, and which has been excellently preserved through ten generations of the Reynolds Family in America, despite fires, neglect, and the hazards of three centuries of spring house-cleanings, is entitled Synopsis Papismi, That Is, A Generall View of Papistrie, etc., and was written by Dr. Andrew Willet of Oxford. The book is now 294 years old (1928). Upon its now missing fly-leaf was once written:

"Nathanall Reynolds, Boston."

It is probably one of the books mentioned in the inventory (1659) of property accompanying our Robert's will; and it appears again in the inventory (1708) of Captain Nathaniel Reynolds, his son. This venerable book is our only heirloom from the very early generations of our family. Upon the death of Isaac Reynolds in November, 1923, the ancient book was kindly given by his niece, Mrs. Walter E. Johnson, to Marion H. Reynolds, compiler of this genealogy.

On M. T. Runnels' acceptable authority we can consider "in Boston in 1632" as the beginning of our American history. But, having tentatively accepted the statement that Robert was in Boston in 1632, we must almost conclude that Robert came with Governor John Winthrop and Sir Richard Saltonstall among the original founders of Boston in 1630.§ Because of the struggles and privations of that first party there was very little immigration from England in 1631-1632. Unless Robert came in 1630, we cannot suggest an explanation (a) why Robert's home-lot in Boston was next to Governor Winthrop's; nor (b) why Robert, if a later arrival, received so large and so important a home-lot. His home was the large corner tract at Washington and Milk Streets, Boston, just across Milk Street from the Governor, whose home was the site of the present Old South Church (which was built only in 1670, twenty-one years after the Governor's death, and eleven after Robert's). The map of Robert's home-lot inserted in this Chapter shows the relative locations, and how it may easily be found to-day. The generous size, important location, and rectangular regularity of Robert's lot argues strongly that Robert was the first and original possessor of the home-lot which was formally recorded and confirmed to him in the Boston Book of Possessions‡, retrospectively written out in November, 1645.

†Inscribed upon the modern fly-leaf of this re-bound book Isaac has written, about twenty-five years ago: "Presented to Isaac N. Reynolds, December 6, 1897, by Elizabeth C. Keith, wife of Nathan Keith of Campbello, Mass., and a granddaughter of Anna (Reynolds) Perkins who was presented this book by her grandfather Nathaniel Reynolds, Esq., of Bridgewater, Mass., b. in Boston, March 19, 1718, d. Sidney, Me., Nov. 26, 1807. - - - This book presumably belonged to Captain Nathaniel Reynolds of Boston, b. in England, about 1627, d. in Bristol, R. I., July 10, 1708. The covers and a few of the leaves were missing when re-bound in February 1898. - - - The name Nathaniel Reynolds was written on the original blank leaf, as may be seen on the preceding blank leaf — written as described by Nathan Keith as it appeared to him on the original blank leaf, before that original was lost."

§In his book, The Winthrop Fleet of 1630, p. 48, Charles E. Banks states that in a provisional list of male passengers on the fly-leaf of Winthrop's Journal is the name 'Reynold'.

‡The Book of Possessions, in almost any large library, has been published in several small volumes by the Boston Record Commissioners.

Previous to Winthrop and Saltonstall, the "Old Planters" had come to Salem (then called Naumkeag) and Cape Ann before 1628, but the winter preceding Winthrop's arrival they had lost eighty of their small number by disease and shortage of food. Winthrop and Saltonstall with eleven vessels and some 700 settlers arrived in June-July, 1630. In 1630, altogether some seventeen† ships arrived; in 1631 only about ninety people came over; in 1632 only about 250. The discouraging hardships and rigorous Puritan discipline of Winthrop's party deterred further immigration during 1631 and 1632; but in the summer of 1633, when, for a while a dozen ships a month arrived, the 'Great Immigration' set in. Governor John Winthrop (1588-1649) in an official letter estimated the population of Massachusetts in 1634 at 4,000, many of whom probably came during 1633-34. Adding to this number the many who died in those first years would considerably increase the total who arrived during the first four years. In 1689 Boston alone had some 7000 inhabitants. Of the many names given by Dr. Henry Bond as coming in 1634, most of the immigrants sailed from Ipswich, seventy miles northeast of London. In the twelve years 1630-42 nearly 200 vessels arrived in Massachusetts Bay. Excluding Plymouth, of course, the first settlements were made at Cape Ann and Salem, Charlestown, Watertown, Boston, Dorchester, Roxbury and Newtowne (Cambridge).

In any case, we cannot surely assert that Robert Reynolds was the first of our name in America, as a "Mr. Rennell" seems to have been mentioned in Salem, April 8, 1629, when Roger Conant was Governor there. This Mr. Renell might have been the Captain of the Speedwell on a cruise; or the "Henry‡ Reignoldes" (whose wife was named Sarah) found a dozen years later in Salem; or a relative of Henry; or it could, possibly, have been our Robert, but this is far afield. Perhaps earlier Reynoldses came to Virginia.

†In 1629 the George Bonaventure, Talbot, and Lyon's Whelp all sailed across. In 1630, according to Drake, History of Boston, p. 88, the following seventeen ships arrived:

Of Winthrop's fleet, the Arbella, Talbot and Jewell were the first three in importance. The Arbella, cut of painting p. 115, Winsor's History of Boston), carried 28 guns and was of 350 tons, 52 men.

‡Reynolds Family Annual, 1921, p. 74 (C), gives a full account of Henry.

In what ship Robert came we shall never know. One or two names suggested have been proved to be guesswork. The first specific mention of any Reynolds voyaging across is of † "Sarah Reynolds, aged 20," believed ‡ to be the wife of John Reynolds of Watertown, Mass., who was a passenger on the Elizabeth, sailing from Ipswich. Mr. William Andrews, Master, "bound for new England the last of Aprill, 1634." Sarah's name appears alone between "Robert Day and his wife" and "Robert Goodall and his wife." It is most interesting to note that on that very ship were John Sherman, Thurston Raynor and his wife, Isaac Mixer and his wife, and others soon afterward associated with John Reynolds at Watertown, at Wethersfield, and at Stamford-Greenwich, as will be seen a few pages further along. Much more is said of this voyaging in The History and Descendants of John & Sarah Reynolds of Watertown which should be read in connection with this sketch of our Robert.

Robert's coming to America has been, in some way unknown to us, identified with the history of the first few years of Boston. We should therefore sketch that history briefly, and then relate what we know of Robert's first years in America. Our Reynolds family were not in any way connected with the Pilgrims, though many of us are descendants of the Mayflower immigrants through our maternal lines; but our Robert Reynolds was a Puritan and most probably was in the party that came over in the fleet of Winthrop and Saltonstall in 1630.

On April 8, 1630, Governor John Winthrop and Sir Richard Saltonstall on the Arbella—eleven ships and some 700 people—set sail from Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, England, for America. The Arbella, first to arrive, reached Salem June 12, 1630, and the arrivals of the other ships of the Puritan fleet, among them the Talbot, Jewell, Ambrose, etc., were scattered over the next three weeks. These new colonists landed temporarily at Salem where a few determined settlers had persisted for about two years, while their leaders reconnoitred the north shore of Massachusetts Bay for prospective town-sites. Professor Edward Channing writes,

"Affairs at Salem were so gloomy, indeed, that Winthrop sought another site for his settlement, and after some exploration pitched upon the shore of Massachusetts Bay or Boston harbor." (Hist. U. S., I:330.)

These colonists left Salem and in July founded Charlestown; through the arrivals of further ships the little settlement grew. Sir Richard Saltonstall, taking minister George Phillips and a section of the party four miles up the River Charles, founded Watertown late in July, 1630. The Reverend William Blackstone, famed for riding about on a mouse-colored or brindle bull, and who had a log cabin beside a good spring near the present corner of Beacon, Spruce and Walnut Streets, Boston, had been on there since about 1625. He invited Winthrop and the remainder of the Charlestown settlers to remove to Boston Peninsula where he was. In September, 1630, most of them crossed the Charles, and Boston (Shawmut) was then founded. The arrival of these 700-odd colonists was late in the season and they did not get their crops well under way that year, so the rude little Boston settlement, huddled around its log, mud and stone meeting-house (the First Church of Boston, under the Reverend John Wilson), entered upon severe hardships and many discouraging experiences. On their first Christmas Eve, 1630, a terrible blizzard lashed this tiny outpost of civilization, and we read

"Of the people who came ouer with vs, from the time of their setting saile from England, in April, 1630, vntill December followinge, there dyed by estimacon about two hundred, at the least." (Drake, Hist. Bost., p. 91).

But Boston was firmly founded and its history was thenceforth continuous. The settlement at Watertown of the other wing of the original party hung on tenaciously and in time prospered and both in four years were so much over-crowded that the over-flow began to drift westward and to Connecticut. The General Court governing these new little villages, met sometimes at Boston and sometimes at Watertown.

Watertown and Robert:

He seems by tradition and by two historical records to be connected also with Watertown's early days. Many of his fellow-passengers and neighbors chose Watertown instead of Boston. We know that John Reynolds was in Watertown in 1635, "perhaps† 1630," and that John was probably a brother, nephew or cousin of Robert.

In Watertown history, Robert's name is set down twice: first, the authorities according to the Boston records (Dec. 14, 1635) allotted him 'five and twenty acrs' of meadowland in Watertown next to the Cambridge town limits; second, on May 29, 1635, the ‡Reverend Richard Denton, Robert Reynolds, John Strickland, Jonas Weede, Rev. John Sherman (who returned to Watertown) and Robert Coe and Andrew Ward (later of Stamford, Conn.) were honorably 'dismissed' from the Church "to form anewe in a church covenant in the River of Connecticut" (i. e., Conn. River Valley), at what became Wethersfield.

The grant, quoted in full a few pages following, of 25 acres of meadowland 'bordered by Newtone' (modern Cambridge) must have been in the area between the River Charles, Mt. Auburn Cemetery and Fresh Pond. Robert, as other Boston residents, besides this grazing-land, received other marsh and arable land in Muddy River (Brookline).

As to the second reference, the government officials were reluctant to let their settlers migrate to Connecticut, and put off granting permission until in 1634 the venturesome John Oldham and several others had gone anyway to the Connecticut River Valley and founded Pyquag (Wethersfield) in 1634. The first formal party to go en masse left Watertown the summer of 1635, and it seems that Robert was among them in the party above given. Robert, presumably a resident of Boston, we should think went with the Watertown party and under the permission of their church merely as a matter of convenience. His supposed relative, John Reynolds, and his neighbors there were contemplating this removal and Robert went with them because it would seem at the moment there was no party going from Boston. John who went to Connecticut and remained in that Colony—if he did not leave with Robert in the summer of 1635, at least removed within a few years. John Reynolds, Jonas Weede, Richard Coe, Richard Denton and Andrew Ward were among those who about 1641 removed to Stamford, extreme southern Connecticut. Denton went later to Hempstead, L. I., and finally died in England. Our conclusion is that Robert never actually resided in Watertown and that his connection with its history is merely incidental. Further we may note, however, that Robert's sons-in-law, John Whitney and Richard Sanger, both settled in Watertown permanently some ten years or so later; and that the father-in-law of Nathaniel Reynolds, that is, Mr. John† Dwight, had lived some years in Watertown and was there March 3, 1635-36.

†Bond, History of Watertown.

‡N. E. Hist. Gen. Register, xiii; 301.

Of John Reynolds, whom tradition strongly links to Robert, we know that he had a wife Sarah and at least three children, Elizabeth, Jonathan and John, and perhaps others. Dr. Henry Bond, History of Watertown, says John was in Watertown, "1635, perhaps 1630." John was made a Freeman in Watertown May 6, 1635, and on page three of the original Watertown records which is pictured in the genealogy of that Reynolds family, we read:

"August 14, 1635: Agreed, that Daniel Patrick, Brian Pendleton, Richard Barnard (Browne?), Ephraim Child, Abram Browne, Charles Chaddock and John Reynolds, shall devise to every man his propriety of Meadow and upland that is plowable and the rest to lie in common."

John's name and the plat of his Watertown home-lot appear near the centre of an early map of Watertown at p. 1013 in Dr. Bond's history. John's five and a half acres were just south of Strawberry Hill:

"John Reynolds, his Homestall; bounded south by Isaac‡ Mixer, E. by John Sherman; north by the Highway, bought by Miles Nutt."

Curiously this lot is very close (second to the north) to that occupied by Robert Reynolds' daughter Ruth after she married John Whitney, 1642, and settled there. John's home-lot in Wethersfield, Conn., is clearly marked out as Lot No. 10 on High Street near Fort Street on a map in Stiles' Ancient Wethersfield.

†Hist. Descendants of John Dwight of Dedham, Mass., pub. 1874.

‡Sherman and Mixer came on the ship Elizabeth from Ipswich, with Sarah Reynolds, believed to be John's wife.

As to the degree of relationship between Robert and John we cannot be sure. Robert was born about 1580 or during the decade 1580-1590; John, some of his genealogists state (without good authority), was born 1612. Even if these dates were approximately correct, the gap is too great for them to have been brothers. John might have been born before 1612, as he seems to have died, or at any rate his history ends, about 1650, in Stamford, Connecticut, nine years before Robert died in Boston.

Wethersfield, Conn.:

Now, as we have seen, Robert was dismissed from the Massachusetts Church May 29, 1635, to migrate with the Reverend Richard Denton and some sixty others to Wethersfield. This town grew rapidly with the 1635 migration, and soon contested with Windsor, the honor of being the first English settlement in Connecticut. "Hereing of ye fame of Coneghiticute river, they had a hankering mind after it." From the very first, quarrels seem to have divided the Wethersfield Colonists, and many promptly returned to Boston and Watertown in disgust. Robert probably went† there in the summer of 1635, as a preliminary, leaving his wife and children in Boston on their Washington and Milk Street homelot, until he could establish a home for them in Wethersfield. We know very clearly that another John Reynolds (of Weymouth, Mass., left his family behind in 1665, for example, while he went to Westerly, R. I., to build a cellar-house and get crops started; and that his family were not brought down for some‡ months afterward, to Stonington, Conn., where he finally located. Robert and John had land in the "Pennywise Tract" at Wethersfield.

We reason that Robert had thus gone on alone and had become dissatisfied, as many others, with affairs in Wethersfield and was possibly apprehensive of the menace of the restive Pequots—for indeed they did break loose in a massacre a year or so later—and that therefore the same year, or the spring following, he abandoned Wethersfield and returned to reside permanently in Boston. He was certainly of Boston again on July 9, 1638. There is only minor mention of Robert at Wethersfield—April 26, 1636,—perhaps after he had already gone back to Boston. Some twenty-five years later a Robert Reynolds is identified with Wethersfield and Saybrook, but of him we know only:

"Robert Reinolds: of Wethersfield, Conn., 'went to the fort and died in Saybrook in 1662.' His children were: Reinold, Mary and Hannah."

It is, of course, barely possible that this mysterious and unknown Robert could have been the Robert dismissed from Watertown. But it is †Robert was among the first members of Wethersfield: Manual of First Church of Wethersfield, by J. Holbrook, 1842, and one of the Church founders with Joseph Sherman.

‡Read pages 128-129 of the 1922 Reynolds Family Annual.

more likely that this later Robert was the progenitor of the little known branch of the family in and around Lyme, Conn., in the early days. Also in Wethersfield† in 1698 and earlier were a John (b. 1674) and a Jonathan, sons of John¶ and Naomi (Latimer) Reynolds. This Naomi later became the wife of Philip Goffe. Though they bear the same names as the two known sons of John and Sarah Reynolds at that time in Stamford or Greenwich, Conn., there is no known connection, and the coincidence is perplexing.

The history‡ of John Reynolds of Watertown who removed about 1635-36 to Wethersfield with Leonard Chester, John Finch, Nathaniel Foote, Edward Pierce and Robert Rose, seems to be quite definite from about 1635, and he certainly resided there several years before removing to Stamford previous to 1641. John sold§ his Lot No. 10 in Wethersfield, just mentioned, in 1644 to Lieut. John Hollister. Originally John had 150 acres there as well as this town-lot. John's descendants and further history are fully traced in The History and Descendants of John and Sarah Reynolds of Watertown||. John's descendants were closely grouped for several generations in Greenwich, Conn.; then they spread out over Westchester, Dutchess, Columbia and Washington Counties, N. Y. A few lived in and around Rutland, Vermont, and others scattered out over central New York State. As his history separates from Robert's at Wethersfield about 1635-36, we do not mention him further.

Now, our belief is that Robert came with Winthrop in 1630 in one of the eleven original ships; that he was among the founders of Boston; that he did not actually reside in Watertown, though he owned pasture-land there; and that his temporary removal to Wethersfield, Conn., 1635, was only a matter of a few months.

The Boston Records:

After leaving Wethersfield, which we believe was late in 1635 or early in 1636, Robert's history is laid entirely in Boston. The very first appearance of Robert on the official Boston records was before this sally into Connecticut.

On August 10, 1634, Robert Reynolds was admitted to membership in the First Church of Boston, Reverend John Wilson, minister, and this is the first known formal record of our own family in America. The next month, Sept. 3, 1634, he was made a Freeman (burgher) of Boston, which probably explains why he had joined the Church just previously. The voting privilege of a Freeman was at first confined to a comparatively small number of persons, and in order to become a Freeman, it was necessary to become a church member, though one did not need to be a Freeman to hold office in the Town or appointments from the General Court. Some have reasoned that inasmuch as Robert was made a Freeman only in 1634, and John in 1635, that they must have come over only just previously to those dates; but men were often here many† years before coming freemen.

It would seem that Robert was surely upon his large Boston homelot, the southeast corner of Milk and Washington Streets, as early, at least, as 1634. The Book of Possessions, the first property record of Boston, is supposed to have been begun as an afterthought and as a retrospective record in November, 1645. All property grants and transfers prior to that time seem to have been written in the same handwriting and at the same time, but the description of Robert's Boston lot was inscribed (original paging, 101 or map p. 76) among the first batch copied into this book of record, which might indicate that he was among the original settlers of Boston. The record‡ reads:

"ROBT. REINOLDS, his possession in Boston: One house and garden bounded with Edward Fletcher south; the high streete west; the Fort Streete north, and John Steevenson, east."

Now we know that Stevenson had died and his widow married 1635 the Rev. William Blackstone, the original bull-riding hermit previously mentioned, and they removed to Rehoboth, Mass. High Street is modern Washington Street, Boston; Fort Street, so-called because it led from the Fort on Beacon Hill to the marshes just below Robert's garden, is modern Milk Street. Governor John Winthrop had the other Milk Street corner opposite (now the Old South Church). Fletcher was a cutler, making razors and tools for his townsmen. Besides Fletcher, Robert had to the south as neighbors Richard Waite and Thomas Wyborne. On Milk Street adjoining Governor Winthrop was Atherton Hough; opposite on Robert's side of Milk and next below Stevenson was Nathaniel Bishop, apparently a friend of Robert; next north of Winthrop's was a fine spring of water from which the whole neighborhood drew their supply. Across Washington Street from Winthrop was Richard Hutchinson, whose wife Anne, much detested by Governor Winthrop, shortly caused a glorious religious row in Boston and got herself chased off to Rhode Island, which shortly became an asylum for Boston religious Bolsheviks. On Washington Street, Atherton Hough seems to have another lot; next to that and opposite Robert, there were on the west side of Washington Street in order, Francis Lyle, Thomas Millard, Thomas Grubb, and the notary William Aspinwall, whose dry documents have told us something of our Robert and Nathaniel.

Now the large original lot of Robert was more or less rectangular, say roughly 85x220 feet. The first known cut into this tract came with the sale in 1645 of the small southeasterly corner to Zacheus Bosworth, an original member (1630) of the First Church of Boston. About this time Robert's daughter Sarah married Robert Mason. The small section on Milk Street between the Franklin birthplace and John Stevenson may have been given to Mason at that time, or he may have inherited it on Robert's death in 1659. Tabitha Reynolds married Matthew Abdy, and for many years lived on a small part of the original Reynolds lot, on Milk Street, not far from the corner of Washington. In 1648 Robert sold the southwesterly corner of his tract to John Lake; it was quit-claimed by Nathaniel Reynolds in 1662 for some imperfection of title. Several buildings were put up, including a stable. And the orchard and well are clearly marked on the map. Captain Nathaniel, only son of Robert Reynolds, seems to have inherited most of the home-lot, and he kept it intact for many years until, in 1693, he sold the corner section to Simon Daniel. The lot on which was the house rented from our Captain Nathaniel Reynolds by Josiah Franklin and in which Benjamin Franklin was born in 1706 was the last of this property to leave the family ownership. Indeed, even that is not strictly so, because the new owners were descendants of Robert. It was sold by the widow of Nathaniel, 3rd, in 1725 to John Fosdick who had married Sarah³ Reynolds, daughter of Captain Nathaniel. Much more is written of this famous property in the next chapter under the biography of Captain Nathaniel.

Robert Reynolds by trade was a cordwainer, which trade he had apparently plied in England before coming to America. During the seventeenth century the makers of shoes were called cordovaners or cordwainers. The term is derived from the famous cordovan leather prepared in Cordoba, Spain.

Robert, in his nearly thirty years in America, accumulated what was for his times quite a competence, and both he and his son Captain Nathaniel, to whom he taught the family trade† of tanning and shoe-making, and who became prominent as a soldier and Indian-fighter, took a prominent part in Boston town affairs. Tradition relates that there was a close friendship between Robert Reynolds and Governor Winthrop, and this may have had something to do with Robert's coming over, since good artisans were invaluable in the little Puritan community. It is probable that before setting sail from England, the Governor saw to it that his company included the necessary carpenters, blacksmiths, tanners, shoe-makers, tailors, etc. We know that Robert was a warm friend of the well-to-do old Captain Robert Keayne who remembered him in his will. Nathaniel Bishop† seems also to have been a close friend of the Reynolds family.

†It is noteworthy that shoe-making has long been a family handicraft, particularly down through the centuries until the coming of machinery put out the old expert handcraftsmen. Several of Robert's descendants have continued shoe-manufacturing on a large scale. And some successful manufacturers, notably Bion F. Reynolds of Brockton, have a tradition of nine or ten generations of shoe-making behind them. Several other factories in Brockton, Mass., are in direct line of heritage of this former Reynolds family craftsmanship.

From about 1636 Robert's history is laid entirely in Boston. In the Boston Town Records his name appears frequently. The records in enumerating, on January 8, 1637-38, those who on the "14th day of the 10th month 1635" (i. e., Dec. 14, 1635‡) were the "then inhabitants of Boston, gives Robert Reynolds' name and a description of his grazing and arable land allotment, already mentioned in connection with Watertown:

"Also whereas att a Generall Meeting the 14th of the 10th moneth, 1635, it Was by generall Consent agreed upon for the laying out of great Allotments unto the then Inhabitants, the same are now brought in bounded as followeth: . . . No. 36. Robte. Reynolds, five and twenty acres: South East with Willm. Pell, and John Cranwell and George Baytes; on the North West with Newtowne (modern Cambridge), being on the Northwest syde half a myle in length." (§Boston City Document: xlv, pp. 22, 25.)

That date would have been seven months after May 29, 1635, when Robert was dismissed from the Watertown Church in order to migrate to Wethersfield. The above description would locate this twenty-five acres somewhere in the vicinity between Fresh Pond and Mt. Auburn Cemetery between Cambridge and Watertown. The Romney Marsh mentioned in these early records is now Chelsea, Mass.

Next after his admission to the First Church of Boston and to Freeman-ship, as already set down, the Boston records refer to him July 9, 1638:

"It was agreed that Robt. Reynolds shall have 5 acres of Marsh ground att Muddy Ryvar (modern Brookline) in exchange for five acrs of his upland there, to be layd out by Mr. Coulborne." (Boston City Document, xlv: p. 34).

Then on "Aprill 27, 1640:"

"The parcell of marsh at Hogg Island is tendered to goodman Marshall and goodman Raynolds and B. Gridley to be sould to them att such rates as shall be agreed." (Boston City Doc. xlv, p. 53).

And again August 31, 1640, the preceding land

"is resigned up to our Brother Marshall, by our brother Raynolds and our brother Gridley, hee paying for the same twenty shillings worth in postes and railes for the towne's use." (Boston City Doc., xlvi, pp. 55, 45.)

Next we read in the records, February 7, 1641:

"There is granted unto Robt. Reynolds three acres of marish at Muddy River, for which he is to pay six shillings eight pence unto the Towne, according to what he should have payd for that parcell of marish which was to be purchased by him at Hog Island, but is now sold unto Thos. Marshall." (Boston City Doc., xlvi, p. 66).

Then in 1642, Ruth, eldest daughter of Robert—she was then about twenty, we believe, married John Whitney and went to live permanently in Watertown.

On November 22, 1644, Robert is mentioned in another's land transfer at Muddy River; and again March 1, 1644-45, "Robt. Reinols"† and Henry Stevens are mentioned in a transfer of land at Muddy River.

Also on March 5, 1644-45:

"Robt. Reinols of Boston granted unto Henry Stevens fiteene Acres of land at Muddy River, bounded wth Jacob Eliots lott on the East; Nathaniell Woodward, West; Robt. Reinolds, North & Henry Steevens south, & this was by an absolute deed of sale dated the 5th (1st mo.) 1645. A hand & Seale before mr. Hibbins 5. 1. 1645."

Next it was in November 1645 that the Book of Possessions was begun and into it at this time was inscribed the description of the Boston Town homestead of Robert which he may have held as long as fifteen years previously. In 1645, also, Robert sold a rectangular fraction (about 25x62 feet) from the southeast corner of his homestead in Boston to one Zacheus Bosworth‡. It was next south of John Stevenson whose land was on Milk Street next to Robert.

On October 4, 1645, a Mary Reynolds was admitted to the First Church of Boston, to which Robert had then belonged for over eleven years. Whether this was his wife, or his daughter Mary, who was then about fifteen or sixteen, we do not know. The latter seems more likely on account of her age, and because she married in 1648 to Richard Sanger.

On November 15, 1648, it is recorded in the Boston Minutes that

"Wm. Colbron and James Penn are appointed to lay out, before our next meeting, the way through the gardens towrds the South Wind-Mill, to begin betweene Nicolas Parker's house and Robert Renolds garden, and to give notice hereof to the owners land through which it is to be layd." (Boston City Doc., xlvi; pp. 85, 78).

Next in order, his second daughter Tabitha married Matthew Abda, a fisherman of Boston, some time in 1646. Abda (or Abdy) and Tabitha were about this time given a generous piece out of Robert's homestead †Suffolk Deeds, I: 54, 58a.

‡Bosworth probably came with Winthrop, 1630; freeman, 1655; will, p. 443 of N. E. Hist. Gen. Reg., V; Savage, p. 216; wife, Anne; children, Elizabeth, b. 1640; Samuel, b. 1641; Sarah.

(about 45x33 feet) fronting on Milk Street where they lived. Tabitha died in May, 1661, leaving three children; Matthew married again, and on April 5, 1682, sold this gift-lot to Saville Simpson.

Then in 1649, Mary, youngest of the daughters, married Richard Sanger, and they removed almost at once to Watertown to live. Mary's sister Ruth (Mrs. John Whitney) had lived there since 1643. Their homes in Watertown were not far from where in 1635 John Reynolds had lived, as we have previously mentioned.

Robert is supposed to have sold to John Lake in 1646 the tract which he formally deeded June 26, 1648, to Lake, being the southwest corner (about 48x39 feet) fronting on Washington Street of the original home-lot. On December 10, 1662, Captain Nathaniel, Robert's son, after Robert's death, gave a quit-claim deed to John Lake† for this land.

March 27, 1648, the next mention runs

"Robt. Renolds hath payd his six shillings, eight pence, that was due to the towne for his land, which leift (i. e. Lieut.) Savidge received for a debt due him." (Boston City Document, xlvi, p. 92).

This 6/8 it would seem was paid to the Town for the three acres of marsh land granted to Robert by the Town of Boston on February 7, 1641 (seven years before!), cited in full above. The price and terms of payment were pretty favorable! Lieutenant, later Captain, Savage, was a neighbor of Robert, and Boston took this 6/8 from Robert and paid it over to Savage.

On Dec. 18, 1650, both Robert and Nathaniel (then aged 23) witnessed‡ a deed signed by their easterly neighbor Nathaniel Bishop—which act confirms that Nathaniel was then over twenty-one.

Then on June 8, 1652, in witnessing a deed, Robert§ signs, "Robrt Rejnolls." On January 12, 1653, Robert appraised|| the estate of the late Ezra Kane. On May 6, 1653, Samuel Wiboare (Wilbur?) and wife sold a certain house and property

"being on the South Side of the Street or lane leading from the corner house of Robert Renolds, Shoemaker, in Boston aforesajd down to ye marish." (Suffolk Deeds, iii: 146..

Next in 1653 his next-youngest daughter Sarah was the last of the four girls to marry. She wedded Robert Mason and they lived upon a piece of the homestead which Robert Reynolds gave them. It fronted Milk Street and was between the Reynolds lot upon which Benjamin Franklin was later born and the lot of John Stevenson. It is indicated, as well as the lot given Matthew Abdy, on the accompanying property map. This gift to the Masons was about 42x33 ft. When Mason died, it was sold by the heirs to Sarah's son, Robert Mason, Jr., on August 14,

†Suffolk Deeds, IV, 260.

1682; but by 1691, it belonged to Jno. Balston. Unfortunately we do not know very much of Robert & Sarah (Reynolds) Mason.

The next deed, August 18, 1653, to Edward Kibby—the last deed by or to Robert Reynolds to be found on the Boston Records—reads

“Robert Renoles of Boston in New England in ye County of Suffuck 20 acres land bounded by James Davis, East; West by ‘brooke of Watertown path’; Wm. Pell, South; Cambridge line North. Signed Robert Raynols.” (Suffolk Deeds, I, p. 206).

This seems to be the Watertown grazing land which adjoined Cambridge as mentioned above at the General Meeting December 14, 1635, though only twenty, instead of the twenty-five, acres are transferred. Perhaps it had shrunken on being laid out; or possibly he had already sold, or still retained, five acres. See previously page 21.

Sherman vs. Keayne, pig case:

An errant sow of one of the first pig families of Boston has helped to throw some light and humor upon the early years of our history in America. In the will of Captain Robert Keayne, dated Nov. 14, 1653, it is written

“Unto our brother† Renolds, shoemaker, senior, twenty shillings; not forgetting a word he spake, publicquely & seasonably, in the time of my distresse, and other men’s violent opposition against me.” (N. E. Hist. Gen. Reg. vi, p. 156.)

According to the diary of Robert’s next neighbor, Governor John Winthrop,

“There fell out a great business upon a very small occasion. Around 1636 there was a stray sow in Boston, which was brought to Captain Keayne; he had it cried divers times, and divers came to see it, but none made claim to it for near a year. He kept it in his yard with a sow of his own.”

Finally Captain Keayne killed the “sow of his own,” and shortly thereafter came the irate “Widowe Shearman,” whose common-law husband had gone back to London, claiming that Keayne had killed not his own, but the stray sow, which she asserted was hers. Urged on by one George Story, a young merchant from London, who lived in her house‡ she brought suit. Because Keayne was a well-to-do merchant and by general repute was close-fisted, and something of a village skin-flint in his dealings, Captain Keayne was anything but popular with the rank and file of Boston townsmen. In the ordinary civil suit of Shearman vs. Keayne the townsmen took an extraordinary interest, and the violent partisans of the lowly widow Sherman lined up against the bitter

†This use of brother did not necessarily imply any actual relationship. The word is commonly so used in Boston Town Minutes.

‡Samuel G. Drake, History of Boston (1854), I. 260-262.

backers of burgher Keayne, making it an issue of plebeians versus aristocrats.

The matter came up June 22, 1642, and in the suit before the governing 'General Court,' which combined the functions of judiciary, legislature and executive, Keayne not only won the suit, but also £20 damages for slander. It seems, however, as was to be expected, that he succeeded in collecting only £3, probably only court costs at that. The case was appealed and again Keayne won. 'This sow business,' in the words of Winthrop, aroused such hot contention within the dignified General Court itself that the Magistrates forthwith split apart from the Assistants (Deputies) and sat separately. The two legislative houses never again consolidated, and the Magistrates in time became the State Senate and the others the Lower House of the Massachusetts Legislature. Thus the Senate was the idea of a pig—the direct result of a pig's whimsical notion to go sight-seeing in Boston. "Mrs. Sherman's pig was the origin of the present Senate. It is to be hoped that the members of it will not disgrace their progenitor," some humorist has said. The row (and probably the relict alternative pig) died after 1644.

Captain Robert Keayne was a chief contributor to building the old State House in Boston. It will later be seen that our Captain Nathaniel² also contributed £1. Keayne, a pillar of the church, was once fined for selling on Sunday. He was really a prominent and useful Boston townsman, and founded the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company which Nathaniel Reynolds joined in 1658, as likewise his son in 1681, and other descendants in later years. Robert Reynolds, a considerable land-holder of Boston, ardently took Keayne's side in the 'sow business,' and was therefor in the will immortalized to the importance of twenty shillings.

On March 9, 1656-57—the last mention, before Robert's will and death, in Boston Records—there is written:

"At a general town meeting there were the following elections: . . . Sealers of Leather: Wm. Courser and Robert Reynolds. Samuel Norden." (Boston City Doc. xlv, p. 134.)

Robert's name is, however, crossed out by quill pen, as though he had declined the election on account of advanced age—for he must have been at least in his seventies—and the name of Norden was inserted in his stead. Robert's son, Captain Nathaniel, was frequently elected to this office (Inspector of Leather), which bears out our belief that Robert and Nathaniel themselves tanned the leather which they made up into shoes for the Boston burghers.

The Only Son:

On Dec. 30, 1657, NATHANIEL REYNOLDS, aged thirty, married Sarah Dwight, daughter of John & Hannah Dwight† of Dedham, Mass. Dwight had once lived in Watertown, and Robert's children may have known the Dwight's there. So by 1658 all of the five children of Robert & Mary were married.

We have but little idea of what part of Boston Captain Nathaniel and his bride inhabited during their first two years. Captain Thomas Savage (see previously p. 23) and wife Marie deeded for £278 to "Nathaniel Reynolds, Shoemaker," (entered Aug. 12, 1661), a "Dwelling house on N. side of Conduit St., Boston, and cellars and back yard with equal propriety in the passage between it and the house that was Anthony Lowes now occupied by Samuel Sendall (Kendall?), bounded Conduit St., S. E.; Philip Wharton, N. E.; Joshua Scottow, N. W.; Samuel Sendall, S. W." (Suffolk Deeds, iii; p. 488).

The deed was dated two months before Robert died and before Nathaniel could have moved into the Reynolds home with his aged mother. I imagine Nathaniel & Sarah (who was his first wife) had rented a house somewhere immediately after their marriage. Much more will be said of them in the next chapter. Between 1650-1660, Nathaniel was becoming a young man of some importance in Boston.

In 1658, Robert ". . . . being stricken in age & almost past Labour . . ." realized his end was approaching, for on April 20, 1658 (old style), he drew up his will and signed it. A year and seven days later, on April 27, 1659 (old style), he died at the family home in Boston. Mary, his widow, survived about four or five years. The entry† of her death in the printed Book of the Boston Record Commissioners reads,

"Mary wife of Robert Rainolls, deceased, died Jany. 18, 1663."

On the same page is recorded:

"Mary (daughter) of N. & S. Rainolls died Jany. 8, 1663."

In the Medfield, Mass. (why there we do not know), is the entry of the death of

"Sarah, wife of Nathaniel Reynolds, July 8, 1663."

Perhaps some epidemic carried off the Widow Mary, her granddaughter Mary, and her daughter-in-law Sarah within these six months. According to the ambiguous old-style‡ of dating, the January in which the two Marys died may have been either 1662-63 or 1663-64.

ROBERT and MARY REYNOLDS of Boston had at least five children, all born in England, and perhaps more who died there or during the first few years of hardship in America:

Robert's will has been printed in the New England Historic Genealogical Register, ix: 137-38. The text is recorded in the Registry of Probate of Suffolk County, Pemberton Square, Boston, Book I:324. Until a generation or so ago the original will itself was said to have been on file in the Registry, but it has evidently long been stolen. The yellowed original Inventory of his estate, 1659, however, taking minute account of pots, rope-ends, shoe soles, etc., is still to be seen in the Registry. The fact that this holograph will is written in comparatively good English might indicate that Robert had a fairly good education. The four daughters are undoubtedly named in order of their birth: Ruth, Tabitha, Sarah and Mary. The home and personal effects went to the Widow Mary and land in Brookline and on Long Island in Boston Harbor. From the inventory it appears that there was but one house then on that part of the original home-lot still remaining to Robert; the house in which Franklin was born was not then built. The other buildings and fractions of the original home-lot had already been given to Matthew Abdy and Robert Mason, sons-in-law. The marsh land mentioned in the middle of the will is probably that at Muddy River (Brookline) mentioned also at the beginning.

RICHARD WOODY

At a County Court held at Boston 27 July 1659 MARY REYNOLDS deposed this pap. to be a true Inventory of her Late husbands ROBERT REYNOLDS Estate to her best knowledge that when she knowes more she will discover it.

Edw. Rawson

Recorder."

The Family Church:

Robert and Mary and their five children from the first attended the First Church of Boston, the only Boston congregation until 1650. Our family was thus early grounded in the Congregational faith of New England, in which the early generations continued and in which many Eastern descendants still remain. The first minister of this church was the Reverend John Wilson, who was educated at Cambridge University, England. It is interesting to note that his grand-daughter, Susanna Rawson, the daughter of the Reverend Grindall Rawson, married Benjamin Reynolds, grandson of Robert Reynolds.

The original building of the First† Church of Boston was erected in August, 1632, at a cost of about £120 raised by subscription. It was a not very large one-story, thatched roof building of rough stone walls chinked with mud to keep out Boston's bitter Northeasters. The building was not heated, and it probably did not have many, or any, large windows—a very uncomfortable and austere place of worship. It§ stood at a spot now surrounded by a court or alley on the southwest corner of modern State (No. 27) and Devonshire Streets, but a few blocks from our Robert's home. It was not put up until Boston was almost two years old; meanwhile the Boston people had attended church in their earlier settlement of Charlestown. Almost before the door of the church itself was the town whipping post. The building was abandoned in 1640, probably because it was too small, and a new one was erected at a cost of about £1000 on the west side of Washington Street in front of what is †NOTES: The original is not added up to a total. The above amount was then a considerable sum. Long Island was probably in Boston Harbor. Muddy River is modern Brookline. "Doublett"—an obsolete, close-fitting garment for men, reaching to the waist or a little below. "Bandeleeer"—a soldier's broad leather belt, slung over the shoulder, and used for carrying the musket or ammunition. "Trammel"—an iron hook for hanging vessels over the fire, or, perhaps a fish-net. "Chaffer"—warming-pan.

The 2 "Bibles and books" may have included the old religious work mentioned previously in this Chapter. Was the military equipment Robert's or that of his son, Nathaniel, then of the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company? The compiler never has carefully traced the transfer of possession of the various tracts of land owned by Robert. The £120 "book debts" is so large, for that time, that it was perhaps a loan to some one.

now Young's Hotel. This second home of the First Church was burned in 1711, but it was soon rebuilt of brick. The Second Church Society about 1650 built the famous old North Church, later celebrated for its connection with Paul Revere's ride. It was over a half-mile distant from Robert's home. The Third Society was housed in the Old South Church which was erected of wood in 1670 on what had been Governor John Winthrop's "green." This was on the corner just across from Robert's home corner. The present Old South building on the same spot was put up in 1729. Under the detested Governor Andros, King's Chapel was built in 1689 as the First Church of England building in Boston.

The record of Robert's admission (1634) to the First Church, the first mention of him in the New World, reads:

"10th (a Sunday) of 6th Mo. (as August was then so considered) Robert Reynoldes, Shoemaker, and Edward Hutchinson, ye younger, a single man." (Winsor: Hist. Boston, I: 569.)

It had been decided in 1631 by the General Court that none but church members should be admitted freemen. To this same church in 1645 was admitted Mary Reynolds, most probably Robert's daughter who was soon afterwards married. In it were baptized the children of Robert's only son, Captain Nathaniel, and the children of Robert's grandson, Nathaniel, Jr.

The regular First Church preachers under whose long sermons Robert and his family sat of a Sunday were John Wilson (1630-d. 1667), John Cotton (1633-52), and John Norton (1656-1663). It was likely Norton who conducted his funeral service. Religious feeling ran high, and there was often much excitement in the Church over abstruse questions of theology, such as those raised, for instance, by Anne Hutchinson. The attitude of the First Church towards her (1637) and the Quakers, and the Salem radical, Roger Williams, is strongly evidenced. The Puritans considered these people to be dangerous elements, and drove them into exile in Rhode Island. The interest of our Robert and Nathaniel in the contentious theology of the day is vividly brought home to us by our possession of the fat old theological tome written by the Reverend Andrew Willett, which has come down from them to us. Robert's friend, Captain Keayne†, came in for the censure of this censorious Church:

"The 26th day of ye same 9th Moneth (1639) being a day of Publique fast for our Congregation, our brother Mr. Robert Keayne was Admonisht by or Pastor in ye Name of ye Church for selling his wares at excessive rates, to ye Dishonor of God's Name, ye Offence of ye Generall Court, & ye publique Scandall of ye Cuntry."

The Passing of the Elders:

Robert himself was the first of this family to die, but it would seem very likely that he had other children who had died before coming to America or during Robert's life-time in America. His will is the sole original document giving us the names and relationships of the second generation as we have constructed it in this book. It naturally does not refer to any possibly deceased other members of his family, and gives no hint of England, nor of any of his brothers or sisters, if he had any. The Boston birth, marriage and death records—unhappily far from perfect or complete—in this early period name no other Reynoldses than are in this genealogy. We do not know certainly where Robert and Mary and their daughters are buried. It is most probable that Robert, however, was buried in King's Chapel Burying Ground, northeast corner of modern Tremont and School Streets, Boston, as that was the only cemetery at the time of Robert's death in 1659. It follows that the widow Mary (d. 1663) and some of her children may have been buried there. ‡The Granary Burial Ground just north of the Park Street Church (oldest stone is dated 1667) was opened about a year after Robert's death; it may contain some of the third or fourth generation descendants. Naturally at this date no Reynolds headstones remain. The brown or grey stone then used was too soft to withstand the weathering of two and a half centuries. Most of the original party of Winthrop were buried in King's Chapel Yard, which was a cemetery for fifty years before the Chapel itself was built within its enclosure. Robert's friends, Governor John Winthrop (d. 1649), Captain Robert Keayne (d. 1656), Rev. John Cotton, and Benjamin Church, are buried there. The headstone of Edward Marion, who m. Mary¹ Reynolds, daughter of Nathaniel, 2nd, is still to be seen there. We conclude that Robert and Mary, and probably Nathaniel, 2nd, and Nathaniel, 3rd, were interred in King's Chapel Ground. Captain Nathaniel, son of Robert, was probably buried in the old (East) cemetery in the heart of Bristol, R. I., where he died in 1708, after almost thirty years' residence there. No stone is found for him; he may lie near his son Joseph. Joseph's head-stone (he d. 1659, just a century after the death of his grandfather Robert) bears the fine old arms of the family. A picture appears in this book. Captain Nathaniel, a shoe-maker and tanner, was the first of seven consecutive Nathaniels traced in this book. Every one of them was an expert shoe craftsman.

— The Boston Home:

It would be most interesting to know what Robert's home looked like in the later years of his life, say about 1650. If we were standing where the Old South Church of Boston now is, we should be upon the Governor's lawn. Next behind us would be the home of Winthrop, which after 1670 was for many years used as a parsonage for the minister of the Old South. Nearby on the other side of that house was a fine natural spring from which the townsmen of the immediate vicinity used to get their water. Next down Milk Street and adjoining Winthrop was the home of Atherton Hough, who was, like John Cotton, of Lincolnshire. Not far down the gentle slope, Milk Street ran into the marshes and mud-flats and eventually the harbor. The streets were of dirt, or were pebbled, and probably much rutted by the carts and chaises of the time. The side-paths were hard-packed dirt or cobbles or flags. The first school-house, on School Street, was later demolished to make room for enlarging King's Chapel.

Robert's house was on the corner across Milk Street from the Governor. Probably it was a large frame house, gambrel roof with generous gables. It was chinked with clay-mud or battened to keep out the winds of winter. Originally it was most likely thatched roof, and later it may have been shingled or shaked. Surely in the house there was an immense fire-place, with the chimney dominating one end of the outside of the house. Probably there were not many rooms within, two or three, or four, at most. It may have had one window, perhaps two, not of very great size. Heavy, hewn timbers, browned and seasoned in the smoke of the fireplace, were the beams and rafters of the rooms; and if there was a second-story, a rude ladder was the only stairs.

In a corner of the room, we can imagine a broad four-poster bed with a spotless linen covering, a heavy chest of drawers and probably a large chest or two on the floor. On the heavy, hewn table, scrubbed white like the deck of a battleship, there were perhaps a few pewter dishes, and a stone mug or two, with piggins and wooden pails in a corner of the room. In the back-yard, no doubt, was a fireplace wood-pile, which young Nathaniel, luckless only son, no doubt secretly damned along with the heavy wooden pails which he carried often to the well.

Down the slope on Robert's lot was a generous-sized garden in which young Nathaniel toiled at times, and rubbed his aching back when he had much rather fish on the quay-wall or play in the boats that lined the marshy shore. Farther back from the street than the garden, there seems to have been an orchard—we can imagine the apples there, and perhaps in the garden tall corn and occasional large pumpkins growing big against an early Thanksgiving. Below the garden and on Milk Street some years later, Robert or Nathaniel erected several houses, and back from the street with a narrow alley leading to it, a stable. This little alley or easement exists today behind the Boston Evening Transcript Building. Near this, and on the slope below it, a well was sunk. Somewhere down the slope and behind Robert's home-lot was the south wind-mill (built 1632) and the gardens of his several neighbors.

On Washington Street next to Robert was the home of a cutler, and, I suppose we should call it, a hardware shop. Opposite across Washington Street were a tavern, and a school, and the home of several notable burghers, among them Aspinwall, the notary, whose many dull legal papers have carried down to us priceless facts of family history. In that neighborhood lived also the †Hutchinsons until the impetuous, troublesome Anne was forced to go to Rhode Island to live. Not more than a block away, and seen between the neighbors' houses, was the Boston Common, then a sort of general pasture and meadow-land, and drill-field for 'Ye Honorable Artillery Companie.' Beacon Hill dominated the landscape in that direction with its high pole on which the beacon tar-bucket sometimes blazed for the incoming ships. To the north one could see over the many housetops the more thickly settled part of town, and to the east and southeast the errant, anchored merchantmen from London, their white sails furled or flapping idly, drying in the Massachusetts sun. Beyond them were the islands of the harbor, green and dotted here and there with grazing cattle, or the rooting pigs of the burghers. In Robert's day Boston was a quiet, peaceful but growing town—virtual capital of New England. Let us hope that its streets were simpler, and that a map and a mathematician would not have been needed then, as now, to find the home of any freeman. It was surely a place of neighborliness, where every townsman must have known almost every other burgher.

The Historical Atmosphere:

In 1666, some seven years after Robert's death, the King's Commissioners visited Boston and among other things reported that

"Their houses are generally wooden, their streets crooked, with little decency and no uniformity; and there, neither months, days, season of the year, churches nor inns are known by their English names." (Drake: p. 427).

Rural people were in moderate financial circumstances, neat in habit, intelligent and fairly well-educated; both sexes, young and old, worked hard, and were frugal, thrifty and as a rule rigid in morals. Boston's people were educated and generally of a higher social grade than those of Plymouth; middle-class education was general among them.

The Boston freemen took their religion and their local government very seriously, and were forceful and unrelenting against any who opposed them in these matters. In Robert's time, the Quakers were very harshly treated, and more than one was publicly whipped upon Boston Common while the pious fathers and curious youngsters looked on approvingly. During Robert's life-time three women were publicly executed on the Common for witchcraft: Margaret Jones of Charlestown, June 15, 1648; Mary Parsons, May 29, 1651; Mrs. Anne Hibbins, sister of Governor Bellingham, June 19, 1656, by hanging. The fourth and last in Boston was Goody Glover, Nov. 16, 1688. Robert possibly thought with the populace that it was a good job to execute such people, and that God was much glorified thereby.

The men of Massachusetts were not greatly interested in England, though they had recently come from there. Perhaps they had good reason to be resentful and suspicious after the drastic treatment they had received for being first Protestants, and second, Non-Conformists and Separatists. And the oaths of Conformity and Allegiance exacted of many of them before sailing did not rest comfortably upon their souls. At any rate they had too many economic, religious and local political problems of their own, and they were very much isolated from the home country, and not greatly given to correspondence with relatives at home. Despite the austere Puritan atmosphere, life in Boston had sufficient excitement. There was always some tipsy or blasphemous adventurer doing forced penance in the town stocks. The man who built the first Boston stocks was himself promptly clamped into them because his price was thought excessive! Ugly Indian affrays near other towns; and the constant menace of pirate raids, or of attacks by hostile Frenchmen from far up-coast made the hearts of the burghers uneasy on many a dark night.

Contemporary Events:

It is interesting to recall some of the outstanding events of that era: In 1634 all emigrants were obliged to take the oath of allegiance and conformity to the Book of Common Prayer before leaving England. In 1634 there were some 4000 people in the Colony and its sixteen towns. In 1636 Harvard College was founded across the River Charles. A year later, the Pequot War threw all New England into terror. In the battle of May 29, 1637, Captain John Mason and his battalion slaughtered between 400 and 700 Indians. In 1636 Roger Williams and twelve sympathizers, among them a William Reynolds, probably from Salem or Plymouth, signed their compact and founded Providence. Among the 'radicals' in religion who were driven to Rhode Island from Massachusetts were first the Quakers and then the Baptists, who would hardly be considered now the menace that they then were. By 1640 the Puritans ceased coming in large numbers. In 1645 some of the men of Boston returned to England to take part in the War of the Reformation, and to join Cromwell. In 1649 Governor John Winthrop died; in 1656 Captain Keayne and Miles Standish (of Duxbury). In 1657 Mary Clark was whipped on the Boston Common for being a Quaker. In 1666 about forty died of small-pox. In 1675-76 came King Philip's Indian War, and in 1679 the great fire swept over Boston, and destroyed many of its early records. Then came the hated Governor Andros from England. About 1680, around the time that Captain Nathaniel removed permanently to Bristol, the people were kept anxious by a series of Indian scares. By 1676 Boston had about 5,000 inhabitants; and in 1709 about 9,000. In 1700 New England contained some 105,000 people, of whom 70,000 were in Massachusetts and Maine; 6000 in Rhode Island; and 25,000 in Connecticut. Physicians depended upon various nostrums, and had little medical knowledge—they were generally herb doctors or blood-letters. Until the Revolution, the population was so generally English, that it is estimated 98% were of nearly pure English stock.

A number of contemporary quotations give an idea of Boston:

"Their greatest wants be Wood and Medowground which never were in that place; being constrayned to fetch their building timber and firewood from the Ilands in Boates, and their Hay in Loyters. It being a Necke, and bare of wood, they are not troubled with the three annoyances of Woolves, Rattlesnakes and Musketoes." (Wm. Wood in Winsor, 1:522).

In 1638 John Josselyn wrote:

"Boston is rather a village than a Towne, there being not above 20 or 30 houses."

As a matter of fact, there were then nearly 300 houses, including log cabins.

"All the houses are made of thin, small cedar shingles nailed against frames and then filled in with brick and other stuff; and so are their churches." (by Wilbore.)

"Washington Street was bordered with substantial frame houses, many of them large and hospitable, surrounded by fine gardens, where dwelt some of the most solid men of the Colony."

State Street was the early business district.

The shoemakers of that early era tanned their own leather and went from house to house measuring the feet of their customers. The public tan pits were on the creek back of Robert's house.†

We have reviewed the comparatively few known facts concerning the founding of our family in the New World, and have discussed the historical background of its beginning in America. We are now to see what is known of Captain Nathaniel, who carried down the family name, after the death of Robert.

THE SECOND GENERATION

1. RUTH REYNOLDS (Mrs. John Whitney). Ruth², the eldest child of Robert and Mary Reynolds, 1632, of Boston, Mass., was born†. we estimate, about 1622 (her husband was born 1620-24) in England in the reign of King James I. Ruth was alive in 1692, aged about 70, when she and sons John and Benjamin administered her late husband's estate; but she had died before 1706, fourteen years later, when she would have been about 84, for she was not mentioned in the will‡ of her brother Nathaniel though he mentioned her sister Mary (Mrs. Richard Sanger) whose married life was spent near Ruth in Watertown, Mass. Mary lived until after 1711.

When Robert and Mary with their four daughters and one son came America about 1632 from some English home, this Ruth was probably between ten and twelve. The next two or three years of her childhood were spent in Watertown where all of her married life was spent and where she may have been the playmate of John Whitney who ten years later became her husband. The Reynolds family lived a year or so (1635-36) in Wethersfield, Conn., but about 1636 came back to Boston and settled there permanently on the southeast corner of modern Washington and Milk Streets.

It was in Boston, it seems, that Ruth Reynolds married in 1642, John Whitney, eldest of the eight sons of John and Elinor Whitney of Watertown. John and Elinor with children arrived from England in June, 1635, and settled in Watertown. Elinor died May 11, 1659, aet. 54; John, Sr., died June 1, 1673, aet. 74. Some mention of them is made in Bond's History of Watertown; but the very excellent Whitney Genealogy§ traces the descendants of our John and Ruth down to the present day. Among Ruth's descendants are many noted men, as can be read in that Genealogy. Ruth apparently was the first of her own family to marry in America. In 1642 or 1643 she and husband John removed permanently to Watertown with which town their history is always identified. They are both probably buried in the very old graveyard between the modern Mt. Auburn cemetery and the Watertown High School.

Of John Whitney, Ruth's husband, we find he was born in England between 1620-24; that he was of direct royal descent|| from King Alfred the Great of England. John was admitted a freeman, Watertown, May 26, 1647, five years after his marriage and about that many years after his removal to Watertown; elected Selectman 1673-79. His occupation we do not know. He died in Watertown, Oct. 12, 1692.

In his will, informal and not proved, written February 27, 1685; subscribed "in the year 1690;" lodged for probate March 1, 1692-3, the heirs agreed that the will with a few alterations should be the rule of division among them. It was evidently written by John himself and is very curious. It is to be found† in the files of Middlesex Court House, Cambridge. His inventory of Oct. 26, 1692, specifies eighteen lots of land, 210 acres in all. In the will we find:

"If any of my sonnes or sone in laws or daughters be quarelsom by going to Law or troublesom to thr brethren I say they shall lose the shares of what I have bequeated them. I desir they shd. live in love to God and one toward anothr."

John Whitney first settled 1643, and always resided, on a three-acre lot on the east side of Lexington Street, Watertown, Mass., on land granted to E. Howe. It was the next lot south of the residence of the Phillips family—probably the same lot occupied in 1856 by his great-great-grandson, Bradshaw Whitney. The ground is somewhat elevated, and there is little doubt that it is the "Whitney Hill" sometimes mentioned in the records. Dr. Bond thought it very probable that his supposition, page 1031, respecting this hill is incorrect.

The children of John and Ruth (Reynolds) Whitney were born and reared in Watertown, Mass., and their descendants, given fully in the Whitney Genealogy by Pierce, in some cases live there to this day. Anyone interested can trace this line further in that book.

2. TABITHA REYNOLDS (Mrs. Matthew Abdey). Tabitha², probably the second child of Robert and Mary Reynolds, 1632, of Boston, was born, we estimate, about 1625 in England; the year that King Charles I, ultimately to lose his head to Cromwell, succeeded King James I. "Tabitha,† ye wife of Mathew Abdey deceased," died in Boston, 1661; though no month is given, her name is listed between other deaths of May 11 and May 30, 1661. We imagine she is buried in King's Chapel Burying Ground in Boston. She was mentioned second among the daughters in Robert Reynolds' will proved in 1659.

When the family came to America, probably 1632, Tabitha was about seven, and her girlhood was probably spent in Boston.

When about 21, she married in Boston, 1646, Matthew Abdey (Abda, Abdy or Abbey), who was a Boston fisherman. It was probably upon their marriage that Robert Reynolds gave them a generous lot‡ fronting on Milk Street (45 by 34 feet) out of Robert's original homestead at Washington and Milk Streets. Matthew sold this April 5, 1682, twenty years after Tabitha had died, to Laville Simpson. Next west and south of him was his brother-in-law Captain Nathaniel Reynolds; and next east was Nathaniel's stable lot and the old well. What kind of a house Matthew had there, we do not know.

Tabitha died fifteen years after marriage when her family seems to have been quite small, and Matthew married second, Alice§ Cox, dau. of Moses Cox of Hampton, May 24, 1662, ceremony by Dep. Gov. Richard Bellingham. Matthew was in Boston Dec. 12, 1681 (tax list), same precinct as Nathl. Reynolds),|| but in later life he may have removed to Cambridge, Mass., where it is certain his son Matthew, Jr., also a fisherman, spent most of his life. We know little of Abdey, but it would seem that he was very poor. He is mentioned Jany. 21, 1650, as owing money¶ to Estate of Robert Button; also 1657-9 to Estate of Martin Stebbin, victualler. Matthew, Sr., was probably born in 1626, though one record says he was 15 when he came in the ship Abigail, from England. The passenger list dated July 1, 1635, gives him age 15. Mentioned among early settlers of Essex at old Norfolk, June, 1669, aged 40, was a Matthew Abdy. An¶ affidavit he signed May 17, 1654, Boston, says he was then "about 28."

Nov. 11, 1678, Matthew Abdee was on list of those who took the oath‡‡ of allegiance in Boston; about the same date Mathew Abdee took the oath in Roxbury, this latter might have been Matthew, Jr.

Serving in King Philip's War, 1676, was a Matthew Abdey, probably Tabitha's son rather than her husband. While in garrison† at Springfield, Mass., July 24, 1676, he assigned £12-2-00 pay to his family in Cambridge; also assigned £5-16-01 to them in Cambridge later.

Though the published Boston town records name but three children, it is possible there were others. When Robert's will was written, 1658, it is clear there were only one son and "two daus.", however. There is no Abda or Abdey genealogy; and the Abbe genealogy of the Connecticut family seems to know nothing of this immigrant.

Abdey Children:

16. MARY, b. May 24, † 1648, nothing further known.
17. TABITHA, b. Nov. 24, 1652, nothing further known.
18. MATTHEW, JR., b. between 1654-58; d. Cambridge, Mass., 1730. These three children were mentioned in Robert Reynold's will 1658. Though Matthew Jr. m. thrice, no children survived him. In Cambridge, he§ m. April 10, 1688, Mrs. Deborah Wilson. He was known as a witty, and odd but good-natured character about Harvard Square. A considerable account|| of him is given in Bits of Harvard History by Samuel F. Batchelder, 1924, pp. 273-76. Deborah Stimson, daughter of Andrew & Jane, was b. England, Aug. 1637; m. (1) Robert Wilson, who d. about 1685; (2), Matthew Abdy, previous to 1695, who was b. about 1654, d. Cambridge, about 1730. Matthew had a second wife, named Ruth, who d. Cambridge, Dec. 10, 1762, aged 93. They probably lived on the southwest corner of Mt. Auburn and Holyoke Streets in Cambridge. His wife had three children by a previous marriage, all of whom lived to marry.

3. CAPTAIN NATHANIEL REYNOLDS¶ of Boston, and of Bristol, R. I.,—soldier, shoe-maker and land-owner—was the only son and one of the younger children of Robert and Mary Reynolds. As have learned from an affidavit‡‡ which he signed in Boston, May 21, 1674, in which he stated that he was then "aged about forty-seven," he was born in England just about 1627. The town records of Bristol have given us the following definite information:

"Captain Nathaniel Reynolds departed this life July 10, 1708, his death being very sudden; for going in from his garden, sat down about two minutes, then rose up and went into his lodgingroom, lay down on his bed and dyed, as it were in a fainting fit."

¶It is singular that the name Nathaniel should have been so persistent in our family, for this Nathaniel was the ancestor of six other Nathaniels in direct descent, and all cordwainers. The seventh and last of the series was b. Sidney, Me., Sept. 1, 1813; and died un-married in Sidney, June 6, 1833, aged 19-9-5. Besides his son, Nathaniel³, numerous of his other descendants were christened the same name. In the preceding chapter we have recorded our reasons for believing that the English father of Robert may have been named Nathaniel.

‡‡Boston City Document, xlvii; p. 21, part 2.

He was no doubt buried in the old East Cemetery in the center of Bristol, probably somewhere in the vicinity of the grave of his son Joseph who died in 1759, and whose picturesque headstone is reproduced on another page of this book.

Boston:

Nathaniel and his father Robert witnessed a deed in Boston Dec. 18, 1650, confirming that Nathaniel was then of age. The deed was signed by Nathaniel Bishop, Robert's neighbor. Nathaniel frequently witnessed such documents: for example, Sept. 1, 1658; Aug. 23, 1662; Feby. 4, 1664.

At the Boston town meeting March 13, 1654, Nathaniel was chosen Sealer (Inspector) of Leather, and in 1655 he was made Constable. In 1656, he subscribed £1 towards the cost of building the Boston Town Hall. From the original of this ancient signature list, we have obtained an excellent authentic copy of his signature which is reproduced on this page. He was again chosen Sealer of Leather for one year on March 14, 1663-64; and for 1664-65; 1670-71; 1674-75. The Boston town records on March 1, 1679, o. s., read: "Lieut. Nathaniel Reynolds was chosen to inspect & take an Accompt of all hides intended to be transported according to a law of ye Countrie made 15th of May 1672." This commission was renewed Aug. 29, 1681; in the same text, March 14, 1681-82; and March 12, 1682-83, though it is possible his son, Nathaniel 2nd, may have held the commission for one or more of the later terms. In the case of Runolds vs. Wharton, September 1681 term of court, we can read:

"At a County Court of Suffolk held at Boston 26 July 1681, Ltt. Nathanael Reynolds appointed officer for seizing of hides exporting out of this County, having seized a parcel on board the Pinke Reliefe, William Marshall, master, claimed by Mr. Wharton, and after submitting the case to this Court's judgment for tryal by Jury with consent of parties; After both parties had made their severall pleas, and produced their evidence, which were carried to the Jury and are on file, the Jury brought in a verdict, they find the hides seized to be forfeited according to law: Mr. Richard Wharton appealed from this judgment unto the next Court of Assistants, and put in study for prosecution of his appeals to effect."

On March 12, 1665-66, Nathaniel was chosen "Chief Counstable" (Chief of Police) for Boston. He had been more or less regularly a subordinate constable for some years, as appears in various Suffolk Court documents of the period. On May 3, 1665, thirty-one years after his father, he was made 'freeman' or voting townsman of Boston. He drew pay as Constable on Feby. 23, 1666, amounting to £1-15-0. On July 4, 1672, "Nathanell Raynalls" as juror signed a verdict of guilty on an inquiry over an Indian called Pungatowen.

On May 29, 1677, Nathaniel was sixth on a list of 129 craftsmen of Boston (early High Tariff Protectionists) praying for protection in their several callings against strangers. He was usually described as cord-wainer (shoe-maker). On Suffolk County Court records there are numerous references to accounts for shoes sold by him, such as:

3 April, 1662, pair of shoes.....	£ 0 04 02
31 January, 1666, two pairs of shoes.....	11 04
3 July, 1666, several pairs of shoes.....	4 08 00

He went bond for Samuel Phillips, 1667, in Wilson vs. Phillips, debt. On Dec. 12, 1666, his brother-in-law, John Brackett, willed £10-0-0 to Nathaniel and his wife, Priscilla (Brackett) Reynolds.

Not long after his first marriage, and but two months before his father's death, Nathaniel appears in the realty records:

Captain Thomas Savage and wife Marie for £278 sold to Nathaniell Reynolds of Boston, 'shoo-maker', a dwelling-house on north side of Conduit Street, Boston, cellars and backyard with equal propriety in the passage between it and the house that was Anthony Lowes (now in the occupancy of Samuel Kendall) bounded by: Conduit Street, S. E.; Philip Wharton, N. E.; Joshua Scottow, N. W.; Samuel Kendall (or was it Sendall?), S. W. Dated Feby. 27, 1659; entered August 12, 1661, in Book I folio 488 of Suffolk Deeds.

Suffolk Deeds (IV-260) also record:

"Nathaniell Reynolds, Sonne & Heyre of ye Late Robert Reynolds of Boston, shoo-maker." Robert Reynolds had sold 1646 about eleven perches (sq. rods) to Thomas Painter, to Thomas Wyborne, and to John Lake, tailor. Lake built a dwelling house. Nathaniel signed quit-claim Dec. 10, 1662: 'bounded by Nathaniel Reynolds, N. and E.; Thomas Bligh (Nathaniel's son-in-law in later years), S.; High Street, W.' Registered, March 3, 1664-65.

Suffolk Deeds (IV:182) mention Nathaniel as owning land worth

£95, with 10½ feet frontage; 10 broad rear; dwelling house 33½.

On March 4, 1663-64, reference is made to transfer, John Button to Nathaniel Reynolds, of "Land and house; house is not jetted over ye passageway."

Suffolk Deeds (IV:268):

"William and Anne Hudson of Boston: for £14 sell 500 acres of land, meadows and upland, at Quinapaug within ye jurisdiction of Providence, being land which Joshua Foote (of Mendon) purchased of Sacont and George Sacont, Indians, thereabouts inhabiting, June 18, 1655." Deed dated Feby. 4, 1664-65.

This is the 500 acres mentioned in the last paragraph of Nathaniel's will. The mention in the will would lead us to believe that title to the land was in dispute. Quinebaugh is in the northeast corner of Windham County, Conn. When Nathaniel bought the land, that territory was claimed by Providence; but some years later the commission of Lord Say and Seele adjudicated the intercolonial dispute† and awarded it to Connecticut, whereupon the Rhode Island land-owners were ousted.

In a transfer of land March 20, 1671, by John Button, miller, mention is made of boundary, as "Nathaniel Reynolds, East --- passageway through land of said Reynolds to the street."

From Robert's will we have seen that Robert's considerable property and the family home on the corner of Washington and Milk Streets, Boston, now the site of the Boston Evening Transcript Building, was given to his wife. When Robert's widow died in 1663, four years after Robert, the entire entailed property came to Nathaniel. With the exception of several small parcels which he sold, or gave to his children, his ownership continued until his death in 1708. It thus came about that for many years Nathaniel was the landlord of Josiah Franklin, father of the famous statesman. In the little house rented of Captain Reynolds, Benjamin Franklin was born, January 6, 1706, o. s., son of Josiah & Abiah (Folger) Franklin. At a meeting of the Boston Selectmen, April 27, 1691, it is recorded:

"Libertie granted to Josiah Frankline to erect a building 8 Foote square upon the Land belonging to Lt. Nathaniel Reynalds neere the South Meetinge house."

We abbreviate the account given in N. G. Shurtleff's History‡ of Boston:

"Close by the large and comfortable mansion houses that formerly lined the southerly side of Milk Street, once stood a modest little wooden building, which from its associations soon eclipsed in notoriety and interest its more imposing neighbors. It was the humble tenement that first gave shelter to the infant Franklin. In the days of Franklin's father, the estate was quite small, the whole house not covering more land than would now be required for a genteel parlor, being only twenty feet on the street.

"The lot of Robert Reynolds was more extensive at the time of the first grant than at the time that Josiah Franklin, Chandler, was the occupant of its easterly portion, for it extended westerly as far as the present Washington Street.

"On the fourth of November, 1683, Nathaniel Reynolds was compelled to mortgage the estate for security to pay £50 to Hugh Drury, at which time it was in the occupancy of Mr. Robert Breck. Soon after this transaction, Lieutenant Reynolds mortgaged the estate to Simeon Stoddard, Esqu., on the eleventh of December, 1691, for the like sum of £50. Mr. Drury discharged the former mortgage on the fourth of the following January. The last mortgage was discharged April 20th, 1693."

"Upon the street, the front of the Franklin house was rudely clapboarded, and the sides and rear were protected from the inclemencies of the New England climate by large rough shingles. In height the house was about three stories. In front the second story and attic projected somewhat into the street, over the principal story on the ground floor. On the lower floor of the main house there was one room only.

†Published 1891: Chapter 51.

‡A detailed account of this boundary trouble is given on page 131 of the 1922 Reynolds Family Annual. Nathaniel was not the only Reynolds to suffer loss by the boundary quarrel.

This, which probably served the Franklins as a parlor and sitting-room, and also for the family eating-room, was about twenty feet square, and had two windows on the street. In the center of the southerly side of the room was one of those noted large fireplaces, framed in a most capacious chimney; on the left of this was a spacious closet. On the ground floor, connected with the sitting-room through an entry, was the kitchen. The second story originally contained but one chamber, and in this the windows, door, fireplace, and closet were similar in number and position to those in the parlor beneath it.

"The attic was also, originally, one unplastered room, and had a window in front on the street, and two common attic windows, one on each side of the roof, near the back part of it."

If this description is compared with the detailed property map in this book, and with the lithographed conception of the appearance of the house, the two will be made clear.

Josiah Franklin came from Banbury, Oxfordshire, 1685, and probably at once became tenant of Captain Nathaniel Reynolds, absentee landlord living in Bristol. After rearing his prodigious family, Josiah moved out of this house only in 1712—perhaps because Nathaniel, 2nd, desired to occupy it himself. Franklin bought of Peter Sargeant, Esq., an inn known as "The Blue Ball" at the corner of Hanover and Union Streets. It may be that Nathaniel, 3rd, moved into the little house, and this Nathaniel almost certainly occupied it after his marriage in 1716, as he had bought for £100 a quitclaim from his brothers John and Philip†, after their parents had died during 1716-17. Nathaniel, 3rd, died aged 26, in 1719, and his will gave it to his wife Mary (Snell) Reynolds, who soon thereafter removed to Brockton (then North Bridgewater, Mass. She sold it to her uncle-in-law John Fosdick in 1725, mentioned below. The large stone house on the corner of Washington Street at Milk was sold by Captain Nathaniel Reynolds April 25, 1693, to Simon Daniel. This‡ latter was upon the site of Robert's original dwelling 1635.

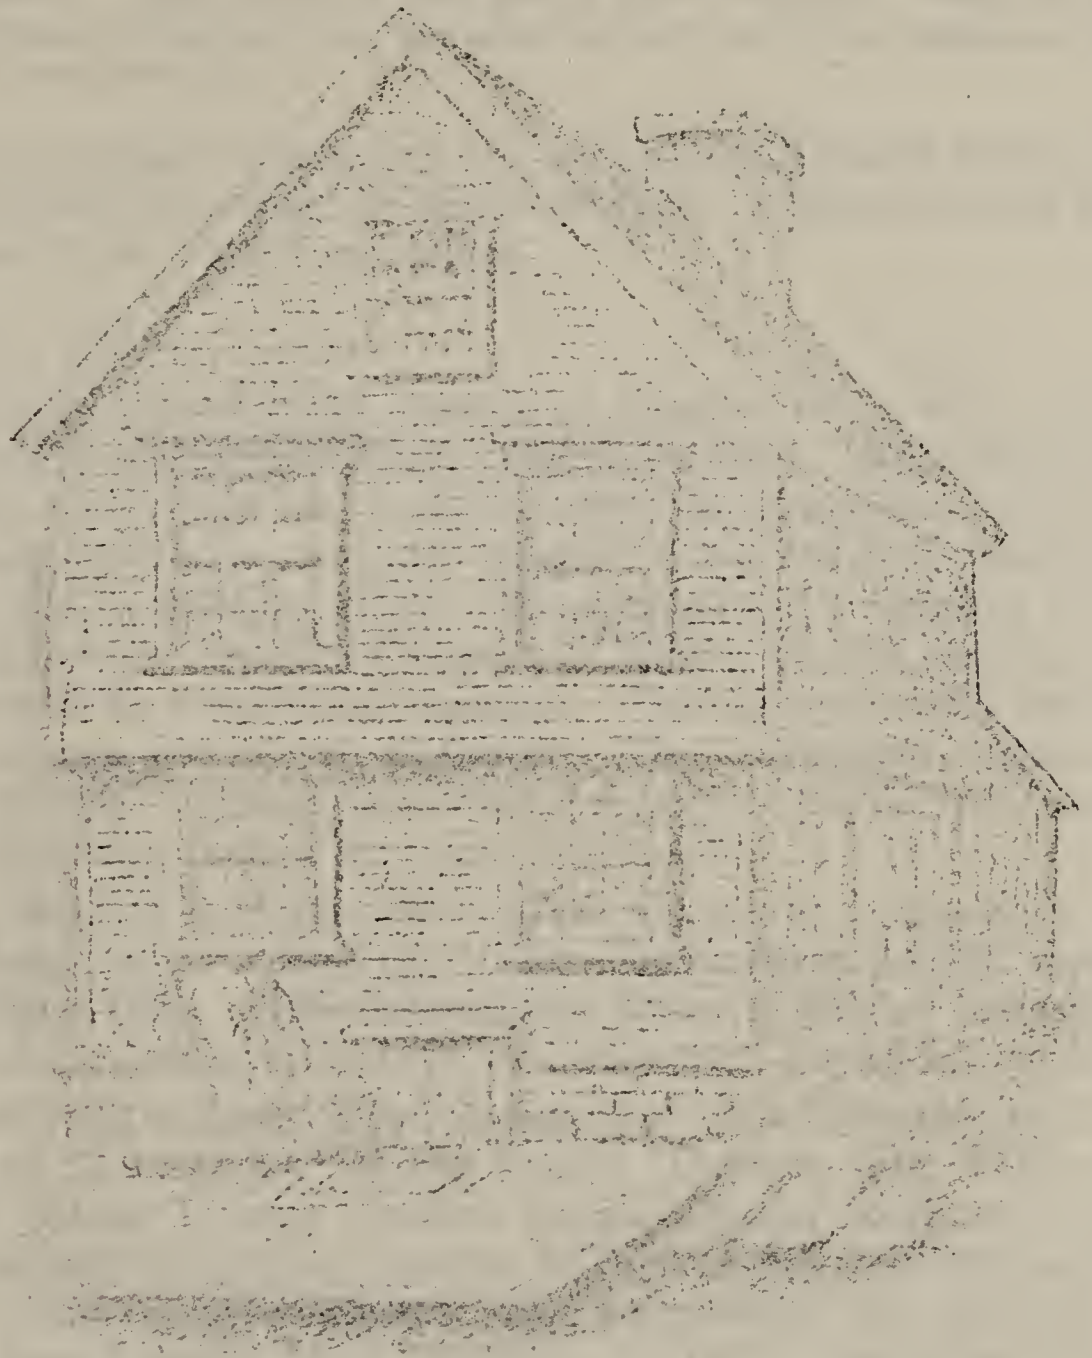

Captain Nathaniel is described upon the Boston tax list of 1687 for "six houses, mills, wharves, etc.," for a tax of 2/2.

Under Captain Nathaniel's name upon the Boston Tax List 1687 is written: "Houses, mills, wharves, etc., six; tax two shillings, two pence." His name also appears upon the list of 1695. At his death he still owned the Boston property, though Franklin occupied one house, and his son-in-law, John Fosdick, occupied another. At his death in 1708 Captain Nathaniel willed the property to his eldest son, Nathaniel, 2nd, who held the property until his death; and a part of the property to his eldest daughter Sarah (Mrs. John Fosdick). In the estate, it was appraised at £150. Boston then had a population of about 9,000.

On May 9, 1683, Nathaniel was made administrator of the estate of his deceased son-in-law, Thomas Bligh, first husband of Sarah Reynolds, who then married John Fosdick. The letters of administration read, "in behalf of the widow of the deceased at her request."

From the Diary of Samuel Sewall, Boston, 1690, we have gathered the following note:

"Tues., Sept. 16: About 11 at night a fire breaks out at the house of Jno. Allen, Worsted Comber, in which his Apprentice, Sam Worster, was burned, with the house of Lieut. Reynolds - - Langden and a good part of Saml. Simson's. The wind being Southwest, the South Meeting House was preserved with very much difficulty, being in a flame in diverse parts of it."

We have previously mentioned the ancient Anti-Papist book, published 1634, which was owned by this Nathaniel. A picture of the title-page is shown in the preceding chapter.

Nathaniel's Military Career:

While he was a small child, there were many troubles with the Indians, and several scalplings of Robert's acquaintances. While Nathaniel was but a boy, the Pequot War broke out and these skirmishes must have fired his youthful imagination and kindled in his romantic bosom an unusual interest in military affairs. He was elected a member of the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company of Boston in 1658, and he took an active part in its parades and musters. This Company still parades in ancient costume once a year in Boston. The "1 muskett, sword and bandeliers—£2-0-0" mentioned in the inventory of his father's estate, 1659, may have been bought for young Nathaniel.

As to the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company, Nathaniel's son, Nathaniel, 2nd, may have been the "Lieut. Nathaniel Reynolds" elected to membership in 1681. Of his descendants, Edward⁷ Belcher Reynolds†, was elected to the Company in 1865, and Brewster⁷ Reynolds‡, in 1821.

At the outbreak of King Philip's Indian War 1676, Nathaniel held the commission of "Lieutenant" of the Fourth (Captain Wm. Hudson's) Company of Major Thomas Clarke's Suffolk County Regiment. Nathaniel led several expeditions into the Indian country and commanded a company under Colonel Church. He commanded the garrison at Chelmsford (now Lowell), Mass., on Feby. 25, 1676. Inhabitants there at that time petitioned the Massachusetts General Court that Lieut. Nathaniel Reynolds and his company be allowed to remain that autumn and winter as they feared the Indians. Nathaniel's nephew, Robert Mason, son of his sister Sarah, served in his Company at Chelmsford, 1676. Bodge, Soldiers of King Philip's War, 1676, mentions him as "Captain Reynolds," as also the Bristol, R. I., town records. On August 24, 1676, his name appears for £4-0-0 for military service. On May 12, 1675, the General Court had confirmed him as Lieutenant in Captain Hudson's company. On Nathaniel's removal to Bristol, he became "Ensign, Bristol County Militia;" and on June 6, 1684, "First Lieutenant Nathaniel Reynolds" of that force. He may have acquired the commission, Captain, in that Militia, or it may have been a left-over from his active-service days at Chelmsford.

Bristol, R. I.:

Probably as an aftermath of his expeditions into the Indian country about Narragansett Bay where he saw promising new farming land, he removed permanently to Bristol about 1680 with all of his family, save his eldest daughter Sarah and his eldest son, Nathaniel 2nd, who remained behind on the Captain's Boston property.

The exact time of his removal to Bristol is uncertain, but it was very close to 1680. Bristol County was then a part of Massachusetts, and Taunton was its county seat. Many of the old records of the time, including Nathaniel's will, are recorded at Taunton, Mass. Bristol town was annexed to Rhode Island only about 1746. Captain Nathaniel's last three children were born in Bristol; all others in Boston. Nathaniel witnessed a deed in Boston as late as June 5, 1680, but may have removed permanently earlier that year. For several years he may have made occasional excursions to Boston, for he retained property there all his life.

Captain Nathaniel Reynolds built his Bristol house on the northeast corner of Bradford and Thames Streets. The old building was demolished half a century ago, and the store of J. Howard Manchester covered part of its site. His son Joseph, whose headstone, bearing the coat-of-arms, is still in the East Cemetery, built the "Willowmere" mansion, which, 1930, is still standing on High Street among the stately elms. Joseph's old mill-stones have lain in the old garden almost two centuries. Several pictures of the old house are shown herewith.

Nathaniel was apparently one of the founders of Bristol, because on August 27, 1680, upon its laying out, he received a one thirty-second part. When Bristol was named he was fourth in a list of eighty inhabitants. The daughters of Judge John Post^s Reynolds still live in Bristol but in 1929 sold "Willowmere" to Captain J. Andrews Moriarty. Nathaniel was fifth on the list of founders of the "First Church of Bristol, Congregational," on May 3, 1687. On June 28, 1686, he signed a remonstrance against the over-zealous minister, the Reverend Woodbridge. At one time, Nathaniel may have been of Presbyterian faith. In Boston he was reared in the First Church of Boston, 1665.

In Bristol, he was Grand Jurymen, 1687, 1692, 1700, 1705; Sealer of Leather, 1689; Selectman, 1688, 1691; Committeeman on town business, 1703-04. He was sued by the merchant Nathaniel Byfield of Bristol, but execution was satisfied August 19, 1699. As foreman of the Grand Jury, March 5, 1696-97, No. 3728, he appeared:

"We the Grand Jury for the present year 1696 doth present Hopestill Leonard of Rehoboth, alias Allen, for having child born the 25th day of May last passed or thereabouts, which was within six months after publishment granted for marriage and written for Benj. Allen and said Hopestill Leonard by Wm. Carpenter Clark.

NATHANIEL REYNOLDS,

Foreman.

In Bristol, March 5, 1696-97, No. 241, he was one of a jury of inquest over an Ebenezer Orten who was drowned. There is a good copy of his signature on this document, spelled "Nathanell Raynalls."

We have quoted the account of his death which was written into the town records. His long will is preserved and recorded also in Bristol. It throws considerable light upon his family. His sister, "Mary Sanger of Watertown," Mass., mentioned in it, was then the sole survivor of the original Reynolds emigrant family from England, 1630; and she was still living in 1711.

Captain Nathaniel Reynolds married twice: first, Miss Sarah Dwight; second, Miss Priscilla Brackett. He m. Sarah Dwight, then about nineteen years old, on Dec. 30, 1657†, o. s. She was b. at Dedham, June 17, 1638; d. July 8‡, 1663, in Boston, daughter of John & Hannah Dwight§ of Dedham, Mass. Nathaniel and Sarah were m. by Governor John Endicott "30th day of 10th mo." 1657. The first three children were by Sarah. They were born, reared and lived in Boston; the two who grew up inherited the family property in Boston. After Sarah's early death, when aged about twenty-five, Nathaniel m. second, Priscilla Brackett, probably in 1664, and certainly previous to Feby. 21, 1666, about the time he was made Chief of Police of Boston. She was the daughter of a well-to-do tradesman, Peter|| Brackett and his wife Priscilla. Nathaniel

PETER BRACKETT was supposed to be brother of 'Grim Richard' Brackett, jailor of Boston. Peter was in Boston as early as 1630; owned land in Braintree adjoining Richard. (Note: The above will and inventory taken verbatim from the records in the Registry for Bristol Co., Mass., at Taunton, itemize only the Bristol property. In addition to the foregoing Inventory, the Probate Judge apparently ordered an inventory taken separately in Boston of Captain Nathaniel's property there, and a copy of this last is spread on p. 361 (or II:226) of the old record book of probate in Bristol City Hall, R. I.)

Boston, Nov. 3, 1708: Wee whose names are under written being desired to put an estimation upon the estate of Captain Nathal Reynolds late of Bristol deceased Lyeing and being at the south end of Boston aforesaid being bounded northerly by Milk westerly by Nathaniel Balston southerly by Widow Grey westerly by Lavi! JOSEPH HILL, JOSIAH FRANKLIN.

This affidavit inventory signed by Josiah Franklin, father of the famous Benjamin, in 1708 in which he says "in the occupation of Josiah Franklin" proves beyond doubt that Josiah Franklin occupied the Reynolds house in Boston in 1706, the year Benjamin Franklin was born, a much-disputed point.

The books mentioned probably include the famous old religious book previously mentioned.

Compare the above description of Boston property with the map reproduced herein.

from which it is seen that Captain Nathaniel Reynolds, once "cord-wainer" of Boston had grown prosperous in his later life despite the many mortgages on his Boston property in earlier years.

4. SARAH REYNOLDS (Mrs. Robert Mason). Sarah², third daughter and apparently next to youngest child of Robert and Mary Reynolds, was born in England about 1629. From the date of her marriage (1653)—the last married of the four daughters—she could have been born in America. She died between 1684 and 1706.

In 1653 she married in Boston, Robert Mason, a tailor. Mason was admitted a freeman in Boston only 1673. It seems they lived on the home lot of Robert Reynolds in Boston, though we know very little about them. Robert's will of 1658 mentions her third among his daughters, and also: "to my daughter Sarah Mason and her sonne Robert Mason, & if he dye, to her daughter Sarah." At the time of the marriage, it would seem that Robert gave them from his original large home lot, corner of Washington and Milk Streets, Boston, a large lot (48 feet by 32½ feet) fronting on Milk Street. This was down Milk Street about 125 feet from the corner. Next on the west was the lot whereon was built the diminutive house on Nathaniel Reynolds' property, in which Franklin was born in 1706; and adjoining that was the narrow passageway which exists to this day back of the Transcript Building; Mason's neighbor next east was John Hansett who bought from Robert's neighbor John Stevenson in 1646. The northeast corner of Mason's lot was approximately the present southwest corner of Hawley and Milk Streets. After Robert Mason's death, the lot was sold by his heirs to Robert Mason, Jr.; but by 1691 this property was in the hands of Jno. Balston. What became of these Masons we have never learned; we imagine they removed to another town, which may explain why we find no record of Sarah's death. She would no doubt have accompanied her children in any migration.

There was a Robert Mason in Roxbury and in Dedham who came over about 1630, and though our Robert Mason might have been his son, the incomplete Mason Genealogy does not mention our Robert Mason. There is no thorough history of these Masons, as yet. Of one of these early Masons, it is recorded: "———, the wife† of Robert Mason buried 1637."

†N. E. H. Gen. Reg. vi:184.

Mason died about January 1679-80. The appraisement of his Estate dated January 26, 1679-80, says "lately deceased." Peter Brackett, father-in-law of Nathaniel Reynolds, was one of the appraisers. Administration granted February 12, 1679-80, to Nathaniel Reynolds and Sarah Mason, the widow. Administrators discharged April 3, 1684. Of the following children of Robert and Sarah (Reynolds) Mason, Robert, Jr., is probably the Robert in King Philip's War who served in his Uncle Nathaniel Reynolds' Company at Chelmsford, list dated June 24, 1676.

Mason Children

32. ROBERT, b. 1655, mentioned in Robert Reynolds' will.
33. SARAH†, b. Aug. 20, 1657; m. Samuel Phillips, bef. 1684.
34. NATHANIEL, b. Dec. 23, 1659.
35. PHILIP, b. July 16, 1662; d. Aug. 3, 1663.
36. ELIZABETH, b. Feby. 23, 1666-7; d. Aug. 3, 1668 (this date is too much like date of death of Philip).
37. ELIZABETH, b. July 29, 1669.

5. MARY REYNOLDS (Mrs. Richard Sanger). Mary², who seems to have been the youngest of the five children of Robert and Mary Reynolds, was probably born about 1630. Her husband was born about 1620. She is the last daughter mentioned in her father's will of 1658. She was certainly born in England in the first year of the reign of Charles I of England who was beheaded by Cromwell the year (1649) our Mary married. She was probably only an infant when the Reynolds family migrated from England to New England. After the brief sojourns of Robert's family in Watertown, Mass., and Wethersfield, Conn., her girlhood was spent on the homestead of Robert in Boston. Boston was then a primitive and curious frontier town of only a few thousand souls. Mary outlived her brother and sisters and, dying in Watertown, some time after 1711, was the last of the original immigrant Reynolds Family. Her only brother, Captain Nathaniel, of Bristol, R. I., remembered her‡ in his will (1706) and he died in 1708. A Mary§ Reynolds was baptized in the First Church of Boston on October 4, 1645, when our Mary was about 15, and four years before her marriage. This Mary, however, could have been her mother, though it is not probable.

In Boston, 1649, she married Richard Sanger, blacksmith, who was in Sudbury, Mass., 1646.

Sanger embarked|| at Southampton, England, 1638 in the ship Confidence of London, as the servant of Edmund Goodenow and family of Dunhead, Wiltshire, on which ship there were 110 passengers in all. In the list (April 24, 1638) of that ship his age is given as 18 which would set the date of his birth at 1620; he would then have been about 29, and his wife about 19, at the time of their marriage in 1649.

†See Boston City Doc. No. 130, p. 79, which says Sarah, dau. Richard & Sarah Mason, b. Sept. 3, 1661; and (p. 81) d. Sept. 9, 1661. There were a Richard & Sarah in Boston at this time. See also p. 101 and 111, re Elizabeth.

In 1636 (the date may be an error) land was assigned in Hingham, Mass., to a Richard Sanger. Richard took the 'oath of fidelity' at Sudbury in 1647. He removed permanently to Watertown, Mass., on Nov. 8, 1649, quite likely at the time of his marriage. He died† there August 20, 1691. Mary's sister Ruth (Mrs. John Whitney) who had resided there from 1642 also lost her husband a year or so later.

Richard Sanger and his two adult sons with three others guarded the grist-mill at Watertown during King Philip's War, 1675-76. The town was not attacked by Indians, but it furnished many soldiers. Considerable is said about Richard in Bond's History of Watertown. Mary† and her son Nathaniel are mentioned in her father's will 1658.

The Sanger family is an old and highly reputable one in New England history; and most of them seem to come from this one immigrant ancestor. As the Sanger‡ Genealogy gives a complete account of the descendants we do not here trace them further; but those interested will find considerable published material.

The children of Richard and Mary (Reynolds) Sanger were no doubt all born in Watertown and reared there.

"Mary Sanger was supported at least in part by the town (Watertown) in 1711 if I remember correctly she made her home with a dau. who married a Parker. The daughter died and Parker married again and the second wife, of no relationship, claimed assistance from the Town to support the old lady, Mary Sanger."

¶Note that Robert Reynolds' will (Apr. 20, 1658) says of Mary Sanger, after mentioning son Nathaniel, "& if he dye to her next child either sonne or daughter." Perhaps the will was drawn up in 1657 and not dated and signed until 1658; else John who was the next child was born 1658 and not 1657. Robert seems to have known another child was expected about that time.

THE THIRD GENERATION

20. SARAH REYNOLDS: (*Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Boston, July 26, 1659; d. Jany. 1, 1718, Boston, "aet. 58 yrs. 5 mos." First child of Captain Nathaniel², baptized with her brother Nathaniel³ "First Church of Boston" March 26, 1665. She married twice and lived on a piece† of Robert's original home lot in Boston which was apparently given her by her father on her marriage. She m. He d. between will dated Oct. 21, 1682, and administration thereof May 9, 1683: "Being affected with disease, so that I think the Lord hath appointed shortly to take me out of the world * * * to my beloved wife Sarah, etc." Administration granted Captain Nathaniel Reynolds "in behalf of the widow of the deceased at her request. We have no record of any children by Bligh. She m. (2nd) about 1683, John Fosdick, blacksmith, b. Feby. 20, 1657§8; d. May 2, 1744, fifth child, of "Sergeant" John† and Anna (Branson) Fosdick of Charlestown, Mass., who had 11 children. He witnessed the will of his wife's nephew, Nathaniel 3rd, who d. October 29, 1719, q. v. The many references to him in the Boston records would indicate that he was very popular with his Reynolds relatives. It was to him that Mary (Snell) Reynolds, widow of Nathaniel⁴, (then Mrs. David Ames of North Bridgewater, Mass.), deeded May 21, 1725, the last piece of Robert's original Boston home-lot, as we shall see.

50. SARAH, b. Feby. 19, 1684-85; m. Jeremiah Belknap. Their children eventually inherited the home-lot of Robert Reynolds and held it many years.

On Feby. 4, 1669-70, Thomas Bligh of Boston gave bond in administration; Sept. 16, 1675, soldier King Philip Indian War, received £0-7-6. On July 24, 1657, bond as administrator of Est. of Wm. Stevens. Bligh was named as of Boston. May 16, 1657, administrator. In 1653 deposition gives age as "about 31." A Thomas was Quaker of Salem, about 31, 1658. †See map page 20.

22. NATHANIEL REYNOLDS (*Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Boston, March 3, 1662-63 o. s. and died there shortly before May 31, 1717, aged about 55, on which date his sons John and Philip quitclaimed certain Boston property in favor of their brother Nathaniel, 3d, mentioning in the document their 'late father Nathaniel Reynolds.'

With his sister Sarah, he was baptized in the First Church of Boston on March 26, 1665. His mother Sarah (Dwight) had died July 8, 1663; his other little sister Mary had died January 8, 1663, and his grandmother Mary Reynolds, widow of Robert, on January 18, 1663-64—probably of an epidemic. When Nathaniel was about two or three (say 1664), his father re-married to Priscilla Brackett, and the little Nathaniel and Sarah eventually had five half-brothers and three half-sisters. When he was at an adventurous age, about thirteen or fourteen, in 1676, King Philip's Indian War broke out and spread terror through the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and Nathaniel's military father went out in command of a company to fight Indians near Lowell, and in Rhode Island.

His father and grandfather were men of good education, but what was the education of this Nathaniel, of whom we know so little, we cannot even conjecture. His boyhood in early colonial Boston, and at a time when the news of stirring events and much unrest across in England awakened keen interest in Boston, must have been interesting.

In 1681 a 'Lieutenant Nathaniel Reynolds' was elected to the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, but as this Nathaniel was only about nineteen then, it is more likely that this was a re-election of his father who had first joined in 1658. When Captain Nathaniel removed to Bristol about 1680, Nathaniel, Jr., seems to have remained in Boston on some of his father's property, or Robert's homestead there, though this latter was sold by Captain Nathaniel of Bristol in 1693. All of this property seems to have remained in the elder Nathaniel's name until he died in Bristol in 1708. Nathaniel, Junior, had children all supposedly born in Boston. By his father's will, probated in Bristol, Nov. 8, 1708, one of the Boston houses passed to him; and the rest of Robert's original property then in the estate passed to Nathaniel's sister Sarah, Mrs. John Fosdick.

In 1699 and 1700 the Boston tax collector reported he could not get Nathaniel's tax because 'he had left his family and gone to Bristol'—presumably to help his aged father for a time. It is also possible that Captain Nathaniel, upon removal to Bristol, may have occasionally 'commuted' between his Bristol home and Boston property for some years after 1680. Nathaniel Junior in the Boston Census and Tax List of 1688 and 1695 lived in Ward 5, which included Robert's original possession. Captain Nathaniel sold the old home lot, corner of Milk and Washington Streets, Boston, in 1693. Did Nathaniel, Jr., live there, or on the place farther down Milk Street, later willed by Captain Nathaniel to his daughter Sarah Fosdick? He probably moved into the Franklin house soon after the large family of Josiah Franklin, candlemaker, finally moved out. The Franklin family had lived in it from 1688-1712 as tenants of the Reynoldses. The house was built about 1685, and in it the famous Benjamin was born in 1706. It was indeed pretty small, but the large Franklin family managed all to squeeze into it and to stay there. The children of Nathaniel, Jr., except the last, were all born before Captain Nathaniel dated his will.

Between 1660 and 1690 the Boston vital records were not well kept. During King Philip's War the city clerk was in the campaign and his town work was neglected. A search of the Taunton, Mass., county records might reveal more information on this Nathaniel than we now have.

There is no mention anywhere of the maiden name of the wife of Nathaniel Reynolds, though she is repeatedly referred to in the records as Ruth Reynolds. After a very diligent search, Isaac N. Reynolds, of Montello, Massachusetts, practically established proof that she was Ruth Lowell, and it is upon this presumption that this sketch proceeds, though the evidence is presented in the footnotes for independent judgment. Though it is pure speculation, we are inclined to believe that Nathaniel, Junior, died of tuberculosis (1717), and that several of his family died of the same malady. His wife Ruth, for instance, had died in September, 1716; his son Nathaniel, 3rd, died three years afterward; his daughter Ruth 2d, died four years and son Philip ten years later, the latter two unmarried; and his sister, Mrs. Sarah Fosdick, died January 1, 1718.

Nathaniel's sister Sarah, who m. 1st, Thomas Bligh, and 2nd, John Fosdick, always lived near him, down Milk Street, from the Washington Corner which Nathaniel, Junior, probably occupied. The half-brothers and half-sisters all resided in Bristol, where most of them were reared. Nathaniel Junior seems to have left no will; and we have no record of settlement of his estate.

About 1685, he married Miss Ruth Lowell, daughter of John and Naomi (Torrey) Lowell† of Boston, cooper or tanner, who was son of John Lowell and grandson of Percival Lowell. She was b. Scituate, Mass., July 11, 1665; d. Boston, and was buried Sept. 19, 1716‡, in Boston. Boston records say that she was b. in Boston, and was baptized there, July 16, 1665. The following children of the fourth generation were all born in Boston:

APPENDIX OF THE THIRD GENERATION

WHO WAS RUTH -----, WIFE OF NATHANIEL REYNOLDS. 2D?

Now that we have given a complete history of Nathaniel, son of Captain Nathaniel, and grandson of Robert Reynolds of Boston, let us see what we can find regarding the maiden name of Ruth -----, wife of Nathaniel, Jr. She is believed to have been Ruth Lowell, daughter of John and Naomi (Torrey) Lowell of Boston. She was born July 11, 1665; at Scituate, Mass.; and baptized there July 16, 1665.

Now Nathaniel and Ruth Reynolds, as we have just read, had the following children, and we submit for discussion these proposals as to the derivation of their respective names:

Sarah was named for her grandmother Sarah (Dwight) Reynolds.

Ruth was named for her mother Ruth (Lowell).

Mary was named for her aunt Mary Reynolds, who died young.

Nathaniel was named for his father, of course.

John was named for his grandfather John Lowell; or his half-uncle John Reynolds in Bristol.

Ebenezer was named for his uncle Ebenezer Lowell.

Philip was named for Philip Bongarden; or for Philip Reynolds, Bristol.

†City Document, Boston, 130, p. 176, says daughter of Nathaniel & Sarah, but we think this is a clerical error. See also p. 208.

‡They were m. by Rev. Benj. Wadsworth, Presbyterian, later President of Harvard.

§See full account pp. 256-64 of the 1922 Reynolds Family Annual.

||Sarah and Ruth were baptized First Church May 11, 1690; May, Aug. 23, 1691; Nathaniel, Jany. 21, 1694; John, April 5, 1696. Of Ebenezer we have only baptism date.

Ruth, 2D, for her mother or dead sister.

Naomi was named for her grandmother Naomi (Lowell).

Of the above children's names, Ebenezer, Ruth and Naomi were not Reynolds family names; they were Lowell names, especially Ebenezer and Naomi. Ebenezer Lowell and Philip Bongarden were warm friends in early manhood and probably business associates. After Ebenezer's death in 1711, aet. 36, the widow Lowell married Philip Bongarden. Ebenezer had married her (Elizabeth, dau. Michael and Sarah (----) Shaler) Jan. 30, 1695, and he left sons: John, Ebenezer, and Michael, who lived to marry.

If Ruth Lowell married Nathaniel Reynolds, Jr., her brother Ebenezer, later called "cordwainer" or shoe-maker, may have been apprentice to his brother-in-law Nathaniel Reynolds, Jr., shoe-maker, as early as 1689, when Ebenezer was about 14, the usual age at which boys were then apprenticed. This was within three or five years after his sister's marriage.

John Lowell† had by his three wives, of whom the second or third was Naomi Torrey (or as F. C. T. argues, Naomi Sylvester) the following children (p. 17, Lowell Genealogy):

Ruth, b. Scituate, July 11, 1665, m. Nathaniel Reynolds, Jr.; John; Mary; John; Peter; Joseph; Patience; Elizabeth; Phoebe; Margaret; Samuel; William; Elizabeth; Ebenezer, b. Boston, 1675, d. about 1711.

The principal obstacle to complete acceptance of Ruth Lowell as the Ruth in question is an article by a genealogist signing himself F. C. T., in the Genealogical Section of the Boston Transcript of May 29, 1911, and further Dec. 16, 1914. It concerns the Lowell-Torrey-Sylvester Family records. His contention is that Naomi Sylvester, not Naomi Torrey married Lowell.

Whether a Torrey or Sylvester married John Lowell for a 2nd or 3rd wife does not affect our Ruth Lowell, supposed Reynolds, but "F. C. T.", in the Transcript of Dec. 16, 1914, and also of May 29, 1911, makes it appear that Ruth Lowell, b. July 11 1655, and her sister Margaret, b. 1666 or '67, one m. a Hayward and the other a Holbrook, but which one m. the Hayward he could not say but the other, m. a Holbrook. F. C. T. based this on Capt. Wm. Torrey's will of 1686 (the father of Naomi Torrey, b. 1641) in which he mentions a granddaughter Hayward. F. C. T. goes on and states that in an old book that belonged to Rev. Saml. Torrey (a brother of Naomi Torrey, b. 1641) is the following: That Lydia Holbrook who m. the Rev. Samuel's step-son, Nathaniel Synmes in 1714 was a granddaughter of the Rev. Samuel's sister—the only absolutely available one being this same Naomi Torrey. Why did he not give his proof of the last part of the above? Rev. Samuel in his will of 1706 mentions John his kinsman owed him £40; Micajah, his brother, owed him £30. The £40 he † "Historic Genealogy of the Lowells of America, 1639-1899." By Delmar R. Lowell, Rutland, Vt. 1899, gives:

1. PERCIVAL LOWELL (Lowle) "Gentleman," b. England 1571; d. Jan. 8, 1664, aet. 93. Newbury, Mass. In England m. Rebecca ---- who d. Newbury, Dec. 28, 1645. He was 68 when he came to New England. In England he lived variously at Kingston, Seymour, Clevedon, Portboro Weston, all in Somersetshire; also Bristol, England, where he was part of Percivall Lowell & Co., merchants. Came from Bristol to New England in 1639 in the ship "Jonathan."

2. JOHN LOWELL: b. England 1595; d. Newbury, July 10, 1647. m. Mary or Margaret ----. He was Deputy General Court 1644. Lived Newbury, Mass. Generally substantial man in his town. He and Margaret had:

3. JOHN LOWELL, cooper, b. England 1629; d. Boston Jan. 7, 1694. Lived in Newbury, Boston, Scituate and finally to Rehoboth, Mass. m. twice, probably thrice. 1st or 2nd wife: Elizabeth Sylvester, of Scituate, b. Jan. 23, 1644. d. 1666. She was dau. Richard and Naomi (Torrey) Sylvester who had but two children. This Elizabeth and Naomi below. Mrs. Sylvester d. Nov. 1668. He came to Newbury 1639.

Among others John and Elizabeth had:

4. RUTH, b. Scituate, Mass., July 11, 1665. See p. 17 Lowell Geneal., who is supposed to have m. Nathaniel Reynolds.

John Lowell m. 2nd or 3rd: Naomi Sylvester, sister of his first wife. She was b. 1649; m. 1666, in Scituate.

divided equally among his brother Angel Torrey, his sister Mary Downs, and the above John his cousin, and John's sister Mary Humphrye—the £30 from Micajah was given to his (Rev. Samuel's) kinsman Ebenezer Lowell, to his kinsman John Hunt, "son to my sister Judith Hunt, deceased," to his kinsman Wm. Downs, husband of his sister, Mary Downs, and to Margaret Chapin, oldest daughter of his (Rev. Saml's) brother Josiah and to the four daughters of his brother Micajah—why did he (Rev. Samuel) not mention his sister Naomi? By reading over the above, it seems that his will should have read like this: "to my kinsman Ebenezer Lowell, son of my sister Naomi," if she was his sister, which I doubt until I see further proof.

F. C. T. does not prove that the 2nd wife of Richard Sylvester was not Naomi Torrey, a sister of Capt. Wm. Torrey, father of Rev. Samuel. Quite likely Naomi Lowell was a cousin of Rev. Samuel there --- did not mention his sister Naomi, as he did the others. If Naomi was a cousin of Rev. Samuel, then Ebenezer Lowell was certainly a kinsman of the Rev. Samuel Torrey.

F. C. T. thinks that there were two John Lowells in Boston at the same time, John the Cooper and John the Tanner, but that is highly doubtful. What we want to be sure is wholly wrong is the proposition that Ruth Lowell and her sister married a Hayward and a Holbrook respectively. Which of them Ruth married F. C. T. did not discover, but Margaret married the other. For want of dates and for the length of deductions, it looks very flimsy as a proposition.

Isaac Newton Reynolds comments Sept. 22, 1922:

"Have again looked over the Boston Transcripts for May 29, 1911, and Dec. 16, 1914, of F. C. T.'s case concerning Lowell-Torrey-Sylvester family records. I think your argument that Naomi Lowell, mother of Ebenezer, was a cousin instead of sister of Rev. Samuel Torrey, a very good one; also that F. C. T. does not prove that the second wife of R. Sylvester was not Naomi Torrey, sister of Capt. Wm. Torrey, father of Rev. Samuel.

"The professional genealogist does not give the maiden name of R. Sylvester's second wife, but only first name, Naomi. Ruth Reynolds having a son Ebenezer and a daughter Naomi almost convinces me that she was a sister of Ebenezer Lowell, who may have learned the trade of 'cordwainer' from his brother-in-law Nathaniel Reynolds, Jr. Nathaniel, Jr., and Ruth Lowell were about the usual age that young people married—he about 22 or 23, she about 20 or 21. For twenty-five years no marriages were recorded in Boston from 1661-2 or longer except two or three. Their first child was born 1687. It may be that they were married only a year or so before, as you have it.

"I remember finding that the home of J. Lowell was in the same ward or part of Boston as that of Captain Nathaniel Reynolds. Nathaniel, Jr., and Ruth may have been playmates in their younger days.

"F. C. T., whoever he is, writes that for Naomi Sylvester, aged 15, and John Lowell, aged 35, marrying was possible but not probable. A rather lame statement for one acquainted with old records, or later ones, so it seems to me. One girl born 1804 married 1817, at the age of 13, lived most of her life within two miles of here. I have come across several that were married at fifteen according to old records.

"At one time I picked out all the Ruths born in Boston for several years before and after the date of birth of Ruth Lowell, but could find no record of much worth, on account of marriages not being recorded for the period before mentioned. But what I did find confirmed my belief in Ruth (Lowell) Reynolds. I searched for some record of a settlement of Nathaniel, Junior's estate, but could find none in Boston.

"On the whole I think our case about Ruth Lowell stands ahead of F. C. T.'s by far."

23. MARY REYNOLDS: (Nathaniel²; Robert¹) b. Boston, about 1665; d. Bristol, R. I., Sept. 27, 1718; buried Old East Cem., Bristol. She was baptized May 28, 1665, First Church of Boston; joined Bristol Congregational Church July 24, 1697; m. Captain John Woodbury of Bristol, R. I., May 18, 1694.

Woodbury:

65. NATHANIEL, b. June 23, 1687, Bristol; m. intention filed April 13, 1720, to Abigail Coffin of Mendon, Mass. Had: 1. Mary, b. Aug. 1, 1721; 2. Abigail, b. June 2, 1723; 3. Priscilla, b. May 2, 1724.

24. JOHN REYNOLDS: (Nathaniel²; Robert¹) b. Boston, Aug. 4, 1668; d. Bristol, R. I., Jany. 30, 1757, aged 89. He was probably named for his Uncle John Brackett who d. Dec. 12, 1666, and who had mentioned his sister's husband in his will. We do not believe he ever married though one genealogist says he m. Rebecca His will of March 10, 1749, mentions only brother and cousins. Received into Bristol Congreg. Church, Dec. 6, 1741. His death mentioned by President Stiles in MS. Itinerary Notes as "member of Second Church of Newport."

25. CAPTAIN PETER REYNOLDS: (Nathaniel²; Robert¹) b. Boston, Jany. 26, 1670-71; d. between 1726 and 1732, "of Bristol." Sept. 1698, he was Constable of Bristol; later Captain Bristol County Militia. He was destined to be the ancestor of a brilliant wing of the Reynoldses, prominent in missionary and military fields; his eldest son, the Reverend Peter, was the first of the name to graduate from Harvard, (1720). In the famous diary† of Judge Samuel Sewall we read:

"1709, Sept. 26: I lodged at Peter Reynold's." "Mond., Sept. 11th: Lodged at Peter Reynolds."

"1718, Satterday, Sept. 6th: Called at Carpenter's, Capt. Reynold's. Dined at Mrs. Smith's in Bristol."

"1719, Sept. 8th: Lodged at Capt. Reynolds."

"1719, Sept. 7th: Monday. Lighted at Capt. Reynolds; he gave a very good glass of beer to the Company."

From which we learn that the Captain or his good wife Mary was a first-rate maker of home brew, and that the old Circuit Rider was an equally good judge of it!

About 1699, he married Mary Giles, b. 1670; d. Jany. 8, 1740; "Aged 70." They lived in Bristol and had:

*66. PETER, b. Nov. 26, 1700; batz. Oct. 28, 1705; d. 1768; m. 1727, Elizabeth Taylor. He graduated at Harvard College, 1720, and lived in Enfield, Conn.

*67. ELEAZER, b. March 12, 1703-4; d. Nov. 1, 1745; m. Mercy Throop, 1733.

†Mass. Hist. Soc. Pubs., VI: 264 et seq.

- *68. NATHANIEL, baptzd. Oct. 27, 1717, Bristol; d. Conn., Sept. 1477; m. Mary Little, 1741.
- *69. MARY, baptzd, Jany. 7, 1710; d. April 16, 1772; m. 1st, Constant Church 2nd, Daniel Bradford. She was a grandmother of the Fales Family of Bristol and New York City. See Fales Genealogy.
70. JOHN† and (71) ELIZABETH (m. . . . Thorpe?) have been given as 5th and 6th children, but we have no record of them.

27. JOSEPH REYNOLDS: (*Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Boston, Dec. 29, 1676; d. Bristol, R. I., Jany. 16, 1759, aged 83. He was b. seventeen years after his grandfather's death, and died just a century after him.

On Joseph's gravestone (1759) in the old East Cemetery of Bristol is the well-known Reynolds coat-of-arms pictured herewith. We have never been able to trace it further back than the date of Joseph's death, as recorded thereon. The use of the arms while the Colonies were still under British rule, and the fact that Joseph was a grandson of our immigrant Robert Reynolds, support the supposition that it had some authenticity and was perhaps brought from England by Robert. The stone is still well preserved. The Cemetery is in the center of Bristol not far from the City Hall. It is supposed that the family was originally Norman French, and the name Reynolds a corruption of Rénard, Reynard, Renaud, etc. Five Rénards are on the Battle Abbey list as having come over to England (Battle of Hastings, 1066) with William the Conqueror. The crest‡ and the similarity between the French word for fox renard and our name suggests an ancient migration from France.

Joseph was left (see p. 47) by the will of his father, "ten acres lott of land scittuate in Bristoll, where my Tann yard now is, with all . . . the vats, bark, mill, etc." Joseph built the grist mill near the Bristol Second Pond; it is said all the work on the dam was done alone by him and his team. In 1721 the town voted the mill be free from taxes; he was a tanner as well as a miller. Some vestiges yet remain of the tannyard back of the present old home. Two of the old mill-stones used by Joseph are to-day still there. They have been shaped to form a little pool where the birds bathe daily in the garden.

It was upon this land, now upper Elm Street, Bristol, that Joseph built the fine old family home called Willowmere, which was in 1929 sold out of possession of the Reynolds family. Several pictures are shown herewith.

||Many parts of the fine old building are unchanged since its original construction. The great beams in the Library, thought to have been brought ready-fashioned from England, are still sound. The old fire-place still serves after more than two centuries of usefulness. The old mill is there, though its original construction has largely disappeared. The initials of some of the family carved in its walls more than a century and a quarter ago can yet be seen. Judge John Post Reynolds in 1900

A cannon-ball is shown which was taken from the cellar of the house whither it had penetrated during the bombardment of Bristol by the British ships in Narragansett Bay near Poppasquash. During the Revolution, Judge Joseph Reynolds entertained General Lafayette for some time in the old home. The room in which the General slept has been religiously guarded from change and from the ravages of time. Even the bed and furniture have not been removed.

Judge John Post Reynolds has said that it was his opinion that the wood-work of the Library and the crude staining and painting had been done in part in England, and that the lumber had been set into place over here."

Tradition says that Joseph was the most thrifty of the family. He was an Ensign (Second Lieutenant) in the Bristol County Militia, April 10, 1713. Records make mention of death of his negro child slaves on June, 1734, and Sept. 16, 1742. He was received into the Congregational Church before Sept. 16, 1722, and his wife before May 13, 1741.

Benjamin and Susanna were admitted to the Congregational Church, Bristol, R. I., before Sept. 16, 1722. For her ancestry see N. E. Hist. Gen. Regist., III:297. THE FOURTH GENERATION

57. NATHANIEL REYNOLDS: (*Nathaniel*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) was born in Boston, January 14, 1693; baptized there Jan. 21, 1694. He died in Boston, probably in the house for many years rented to Josiah Franklin, on October 29, 1719, "aged 26," supposedly of consumption. According to the Sexton's bill, he was buried on the 31st of October, 1719.

It was probably in the stone house† of his grandfather, Captain Nathaniel, then living in Bristol, R. I., that this third Nathaniel was born. His grandfather, Captain Nathaniel, died when he was 14, and his own father when he was about 23, possibly of tuberculosis. Like his three American forbears he also became a "cordwainer."

In Boston or Bridgewater he was married January 27, 1716, to Mary Snell, by the Rev. Ebenezer Pemberton. She was born January 6, 1689; d. March 27, 1757, aged 68, daughter of Thomas and Martha (Harris) Snell of West Bridgewater, Mass. After his marriage he apparently lived in the famous little house, one hundred feet down Milk Street from the corner of Washington, in which Benjamin Franklin had been born in 1706, and in which the large family of Josiah Franklin, tallow-chandler, lived between 1685 and 1712. Nathaniel no doubt plied his trade of shoe-maker industriously there. His father's death was apparently within a year and a half after his marriage. His mother died the September after his marriage. Nathaniel 3rd, in order to clear up the estate of his father, who, it seems, left no will, bought a quit-claim from his brother John and Philip to the property and house of his father, which the Franklins had rented so many years.

(Note the tardy addition of the Notary's acknowledgments. Philip's acknowledgment was taken nine days after he came of age.)

Nathaniel Reynolds, 3rd, was not to live long after this, for he died a little over two years later. The next mention of the property, after his will gave it to his widow, is of the sale to John Fosdick in 1725.

His father-in-law, Thomas Snell, a well-to-do early farmer-settler of Bridgewater (now West Bridgewater), gave him and Mary† a large tract of land there, which they sold in 1718. His great-grandson Simeon⁷ Reynolds [see page 151], married another Mary Snell here in 1809. These Snells were descendants of John and Priscilla (Mullins) Alden of Pilgrim fame.

†Her Mayflower descent is traced on p. 00.

ANCESTRY OF CAPTAIN SNELL, FATHER OF SIMEON REYNOLDS' WIFE, MARY SNELL.

(Simeon's biography appears on page 151)

Of Nathaniel's brothers and sisters living at the time of the death of the two parents within a few months of each other, Sarah was Mrs. Harper, later Mrs. Young, and lived somewhere in Boston; Mary (Mrs. Edward Marion) resided in Boston; John, a shoe-maker, who m. Anna Blanch of Marblehead, Mass., in 1717, seems to have removed about that time out to Marblehead; Philip, also shoe-maker, died a bachelor in 1727, in Boston; Ruth, about twelve at the death of her parents, married Samuel Ridgway in 1724 and lived in Boston. Nathaniel's aunt, Sarah (Reynolds) Fosdick, who lived next door to him, died there in 1718; and his half-uncles and aunts lived in or about Bristol, R. I.; his step-grandmother, Priscilla (Brackett) Reynolds, lived in Bristol until 1740. His grandaunt Mary (Reynolds) Sanger of Watertown, Mass., was living in 1711, and may have been alive when Nathaniel died in 1719.

The widow of this Nathaniel 3rd, because she had removed to Bridgewater where her parents lived, sold the last unit of the old Reynolds property (see pages 20, 40-41), in 1725 to the husband of her late husband's aunt, John Fosdick. This sale within the family might have been out of respect to the clause in Captain Nathaniel's will† which enjoined a tender first to "one of the Brothers . . . unless they refuse, etc."

As stated under the account of Nathaniel, Jr., tuberculosis seems a plausible explanation for the numerous deaths of members of the Boston family between 1715-1728. At any rate this, the third, Nathaniel Reynolds, "cord-wainer," died less than three years after his marriage, aged 26, and left two infant sons. Another argument for the tuberculosis theory is found in the first statements in his brief will; he seems to have known his end was near. Thirteen days after signing and sealing his will he died. He was probably buried in the King's Chapel burying ground, corner Tremont and School Streets, where I imagine Robert and Robert's wife were buried.

In the Registry of old wills, Suffolk Court House, Pemberton Square, Boston, Vol. 21 : pp. 539-40, is the record of the will:

Will of Nathaniel Reynolds, 3rd (1693-1719)

JOHN FOSDICK,†
ROBERT PATESHALL,
JOHN COLE.

(This will was probated Nov. 23, 1719.)

And so the three Nathaniels, father, son and grandson, of second, third and fourth generations, all died within a period of eleven years, between 1708-1719.

Now the two sons mentioned in the will survived with the widow Mary (Snell) Reynolds:

- *93. NATHANIEL 4th, b. March 19, 1717-18, Boston; d. Sidney, Me., No. 26, 1807; m. twice.
- *94. THOMAS, b. Feb. 25, 1719-20, Boston; d. Bridgewater (Brockton), Mass., in 1795; m. Nov. 3, 1748, Elizabeth Turner.

Now the widow naturally returned to her father's home in Bridge-water), Mass., probably shortly after Nathaniel's death. Her career is interesting and we might follow it a little way.

On July 12, 1722, she married again, to David Ames of Bridgewater. He was b. 1688; d. Oct. 27, 1726, or only four years after marrying. He was son of John and Sarah; grandson of William Ames. Before his death three children were born, to grow up with the two small Reynolds boys:

Ames

- (a) DAVID, b. April 9, 1723, twin; d. July 31, 1794, unmarried.
- (b) MARY, b. April 9, 1723, twin; d. in 1800; m. Zachariah Gurney 1754; 5 ch.
- (c) JAMES, b. April 3, 1725; d. Aug. 27, 1788; m. 1748, Betty Ames, his cousin, dau. Thomas Ames. She d. Aug. 4, 1773: they had Mary, b. 1756, m. John Snow, 1784; and Betty, b. 1773, unmarried.

It was about a year before the death of her second husband that Mary Snell (Reynolds) Ames decided to sell the Boston property left to her by her first husband, and she sold to our kinsman, John Fosdick, as mentioned above:

Signed Sealed & Delivered in the presence of John Ames, Jr., Ephraim Forbes, Plimouth, May 22, 1725. David Ames and Mary Ames his wife personally appeared before me the subscriber One of his Majts. Justices of the Peace for the County of Plimouth and acknowledged this Instrument to be their free voluntary Act and Deed.

JOSIAH EDSON,

JOHN BALLENTINE,
Regs. May 31, 1725.

The property was divided Feby. 1745-6 between the two children, James and Sarah (Mrs. Jeremy Belknap), of John and Sarah (Reynolds) Fosdick. James received the estate on Milk Street, and from him it went to the Foster herirs.

In the Brockton Enterprise, March 9, 1886, appeared an interesting article about the widow of Nathaniel Reynolds, 3rd:

"David and Mary Ames settled in what is now known as West Bridgewater and that part of the said town now known as Cohasset. Their old place, now owned by Charles Williams, remained in the hands of the Ames family until quite recently. when Charles F. Ames, of this City's Common Council, disposed of it to Mr. Williams.

Here continued to live the widow of David Ames until her death, which occurred in 1757. In her day and generation she had been a person of wealth, and that she possessed aristocratic sentiments is evident from the fact that among her servants were two slaves. Her son James and his wife Betty had two daughters, Mary and Betty. The latter remained single, while Mary married John Snow in 1784, and among their children were John and Sarah. Of these, John m. Rebecca Lothrop in 1811, whose son Edw. J. was the still-remembered 'Ned Snow' of North Bridgewater dyas. Sarah m. Wm., son of Dr. Simon Dunbar, of W. Bridgewater, and the well-known Spencer Glass of Campello is one of her great grandchildren. Returning now to Mary, the dau. of David and Mary Snell Ames, we find that her son, Capt. Zechariah Gurney, m. Matilda Packard, and the children of this marriage are remembered by the present generation, notably, Capt. Charles; Thos. Jefferson, the old singing master; and Olive who m. Capt. Oliver Jackson."

David Ames died in 1726, apparently intestate, but pretty well-to-do. His inventory ran about £1,100, or say $5,500. a fortune in the early eighteenth century.

Mary Snell was four years and eight days older than her first husband, our Nathaniel Reynolds; when he died in 1719, she was over thirty; when she lost her second husband, David Ames, in 1726, she was thirty-seven. Until her death, aged 68, thirty-one years after the death of David Ames, she then remained a widow. She was a woman of strong character and considerable rural wealth. No doubt if we knew the traditions and happenings of Bridgewater in her day, we should know much that is interesting and unusual about her. But with so many of the others, any description of her character or personality is only conjecture from the meagre material at hand for interference or reconstruction.

In her time there was a considerable fading of the influence of the Reynolds family in Boston; she sold, 1725, the last of the large family estate for a pretty good sum, too, it will be noted, even for those days; with the death of Philip Reynolds, bachelor shoemaker in Boston, 1727, (his brother John went to Marblehead to live before this) the last of the name, though not of the strain, of Robert Reynolds disappeared from Boston.

Robert and his little family had come to the New World about 1632; the family had grown strong and multiplied, but they removed to Bristol and Marblehead, and 1725 marks the end of its property ownership in Boston. It was not until Feb. 12, 1765, that John Reynolds (*Benj.*³; *Nathl.*²; *Robt.*¹) came back to the original city. He founded the splendid modern strain still living in Boston, which has numbered noted surgeons and physicians and merchants over more than a century and a half. This John Reynolds was buried in the King's Chapel Burying Ground. Since he was of the Fourth Generation, he must have known whether Robert, Nathaniel, 2nd, and Nathaniel, 3rd, were buried there. That he was† buried there inclines us to believe these three were also buried in that ancient yard.

†See bottom of page 32.

The original will of Mary Snell (Reynolds) Ames has been stolen from the records, like most of the other earlier wills of our family. It is, however, recorded in the Registry of Probate, Plymouth, Plymouth Co., Mass.

58. JOHN REYNOLDS: (*Nathanial*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) was born in Boston, March 29, 1696; baptized there April 5, 1696; and d. shortly before August 8, 1769, at Marblehead. On this last date administration was "granted to John Reynolds on the Estate of his father John Reynolds of Marblehead, a mansion house with shop and land underneath and adjoining, £70." The inventory of his Estate in the Essex County Probate Registry is dated Nov. 6, 1769. John, Senior, was administrator of the estate of his brother Philip who died in Boston, 1727, in the papers of which (Dec. 29, 1727), he is referred to as "John Reynolds of Marblehead, County of Essex, cordwainer."

John followed the family trade of shoe-making, though several of his sons abandoned the ancient family craft for the sea and for lives of adventure on the trading vessels that toward the close of his life were beginning to make Marblehead, Salem and Newburyport famous for their world-commerce.

John was married to Miss Anna Blanch, Oct. 10, 1717, probably in Boston, by the Rev. Joseph Sewall of Boston, Presbyterian. Anna was baptized in Marblehead Oct. 20, 1700, daughter of Richard & Elizabeth (Taynour) Blanch† who lived in Marblehead. Blanch and Taynour are both French names. On May 31, 1717, John and brother Philip had deeded over to their brother Nathaniel, 3rd, their interest in their late father's Boston property at the corner of Milk and Washington Streets and the Franklin house. John's first three children were born in Boston, so that he and Anna removed to Marblehead, the home of her parents, between 1723-1727. There they spent their lives and reared their children. One tradition mentions Beverly, which is near Marblehead. John's brother Nathaniel, 3rd, died 1719; Philip in 1727, but his sisters Mary (Mrs. Edward Marion), Naomi (Mrs. Samuel Ridgway) and possibly Sarah (Mrs. Alexander Harper?) lived in Boston not distant from John in Marblehead. Their uncle John Fosdick was also in Boston on the original Robert Reynolds home-lot.

John thus founded about 1725 the Marblehead strain of our family. The history of the children and descendants of John and Anna is of unusual interest. Their adventurous careers are closely interwoven with the colorful history of maritime Marblehead at a time when it was much more than the modern small fishing port. The life-story of their son Captain Nathaniel⁵ who went to Nova Scotia and then to Lubec, Me., is the most tragic and yet the most romantic in this book.

Just after the close of the Revolution great profit for the Salem merchants was discovered in sending Massachusetts goods out over the seven

†In the Essex Antiquarian, January, 1906, is found: Richard¹ Blanch m. Elizabeth Taynour, Nov. 15, 1693, and had: Anna, bapt. Oct. 20, 1700; Richard, bapt. Dec. 22, 1700. This was credited to Marblehead records. In the records we find that Richard and Elizabeth also had: Mary, b. June 14, 1704; Sarah, b. Oct. 19, 1705; John, bapt. Nov. 30, 1707. A Jean Blanch m. Peter Renew, July 22, 1728; Mary m. Thomas Mowjox, Nov. 19, 1723; Richard m. Elizabeth Cooke, Jan. 2, 1724. They were probably French. We cannot find parentage of Elizabeth Taynour, though there were m. in Marblehead 1692-1702, Elias, Elizabeth, another Elizabeth, Humphrey, Joanna, and Anne Taynour. Another Elizabeth Taynour m. 1711, and a Mary Taynour had Elizabeth and Mary baptized Feby. 27, 1703-04. Notes of Mrs. Mary Lovering Holman, 1906.)

seas and in trading them for the curious wares of other parts of the world. A few of these vessels even indulged slyly in slave-trading, bartering Newburyport rum on the African coast for negro slaves. Others traded and fought with the Indians of Vancouver and Puget Sound for furs to take to China, and came back to Marblehead and Salem with cargoes of silks and tea. It was little wonder that many of the grandchildren of John and Anna were swept up by the adventurous commerce of the new American fleet of clippers and were carried off to strange seas. In this book the history of many of these hardy lads ends abruptly—the explanation is too often found in such notes on the log, as: ‘died of fever in the Indies’; ‘lost at sea’; ‘killed by natives on the African Coast,’ etc. Raymond Parker Reynolds, one of John’s grandchildren, tradition says, was ‘killed by natives in the South Pacific,’ or ‘went to Africa on a slaver and was killed.’ Another of our family is reputed to have ‘married an Owyhee (Hawaiian) Island Queen and stayed there.’

Even in John’s time, Marblehead was an exciting place. In 1730 a fence to keep out people from Boston where the small-pox raged was built across the highway on the edge of town and sentries were posted. In 1752, 1764, and 1777 smallpox swept through Marblehead like a plague. Several times pirates raided the town, or caroused openly in its grog-shops and taverns with their vessels bobbing in the harbor with the black flag at their forepeaks. In Queen Anne’s reign, a pirate band stalking openly through the town was surrounded and captured by bold magistrates. Another time it is said that the women and children and old folks of the town—most of the able-bodied men were gone for the season, fishing on the Grand Banks—were terrified when a pirate vessel sailed brazenly into the harbor, and its crew dropped a dory, rowed a beautiful woman captive to the sandy beach and with cutlasses slashed her to pieces before their eyes. During the Revolution many vessels, armed as privateers to prey on British shipping, put out to sea to take what rich captures they might. John’s son Captain Nathaniel was captain of at least two such—the Hornet and the Blackbird. The prizes were so rich that young men deserted the Revolutionary Navy for the adventure and profit of the daring privateersmen. The history† of Marblehead at that time is a record of hard seasons on the Banks; fishing crews that never returned to their families; hand-to-hand battles at sea; the raids of ruthless privateers; and China clipper-ships, nosing back into the little harbor after many months or years of errant trading. Often they returned without several of the brave young boys of Marblehead who had sailed hopefully out “to make their fortunes.” The year 1771 was particularly bad for disasters and losses at sea, such as, we suppose, ended the lives of some of our Reynolds lads whose records end abruptly about this time. At least one of them was captured and confined in the atrocious Old Mill Prison in England.

†The descendants of John & Anna will do well to read Samuel Roads’ History of Marblehead and Samuel Eliot Morison’s Maritime Massachusetts, which will give them a vivid background for an appreciation of the struggles of their maritime forbears.

The descendants of John and Anna have been largely identified with Lubec, Machias and Pembroke, Me.; Greenfield and Lyndeboro, N. H.; Tunbridge, Vt.; Valatie, N. Y.; and Westfield, Medina Co., Ohio. Some of them still reside in Marblehead.

He was shoe-maker, "Cordwainer;" and probably unmarried, as administration papers mention no wife nor children. His only surviving brother John⁴ of Marblehead, just preceding, was made his Administrator by Judge Samuel Sewall, Dec. 29, 1727, as Philip died intestate. On May 31, 1717, Philip and John had deeded (see deep under sketch of Nathaniel) their interest in their father's property to their brother Nathaniel⁴ who died in 1719. Each of them acknowledged the deed some years later (Aug. 25, 1719, and May 21, 1722,) when they came of age, respectively. This and other deaths in family at that time might have been tuberculosis.

66. REV. PETER RAYNOLDS: (*Peter*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Bristol, R. I., Nov. 26, 1700; d. May 11, 1768, Enfield, Conn. Copy of Boston News Letter in Boston Athanaeum Library, May 11, 1768, prints obituary of Rev. Peter Raynolds of Enfield. He graduated at Harvard College 1720, being the first Reynolds to attend Harvard. It was there he began spelling his name "Raynolds," probably the influence of higher education, or of a wish to make the orthography agree more closely with the actual pronunciation of our name at that time. His descendants for many generations (and some still do so) spelled the name with the "a" instead of the "e." He was received into the Congregational Church of Bristol, R. I., Feby. 3, 1722-23, but settled in Enfield, Conn., in 1724. He was ordained second pastor of Enfield Nov. 24, 1725, and spent the rest of his life there, where he and his wife founded a famous line of ministers and foreign missionaries, whose names are linked with the Near East and Africa. He was pastor of Enfield for forty years.

Edward & Elizabeth (Felch) Taylor of Westfield, by whom she was adopted and reared, as her father died soon after her birth. Elizabeth Felch was daughter of Rev. James Felch of Norwalk, Conn. Rev. Edward Taylor was b. England, 1642; graduated Harvard 1671, of Westfield, Mass. Elizabeth was cousin to President Stiles† of Yale College, as her father was half-brother to his mother. She and Peter appear frequently (see index) in Stiles Itineraries and in his Literary Diary (May 27, 1764): "Preached for Mr. Raynolds at Enfield;" (June 27, 1764): "Gave deed of 70 (or 100) acres in Westfield to Mrs. Raynolds to make up her part;" (Jany. 28, 1775): "Heard of death of Madame Raynolds of Enfield, my kinswoman." In the Acts of the Legislature of Conn., we read: "May 12, 68. CAPTAIN NATHANIEL REYNOLDS: (*Peter*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) baptized Oct. 27, 1717, Bristol, R. I.; d. suddenly "at Jamaica," British West Indies, September, 1746. He was a sea-captain and, like many of the Narragansett Bay men of the time, ranged far at sea. Like his brother Eleazer, just preceding, he met a mariner's death, and at the early age of 29. His home was in Warren, R. I., next to that of his wife's family, the Littles. Samuel Little, brother-in-law of Nathaniel and administrator of the Estate of Samuel Little, Sr., and his wife Hannah on May 19, 1744, in his capacity as administrator, deeded (Taunton, Mass., Deeds, xxxv:85) a house, lot, etc., in Bristol, to Nathaniel and his wife Mary, in settlement of Mary's father's estate; recorded Sept. 16, 1745, no consideration named. Mary's father died Jany. 8, 1739-40.

A Nathaniel Reynolds of Bristol filed intention of marriage there Dec. 12, 1739, to Mercy Pitts of Dighton, Mass. (Arnold's Records, I:98), we have no record of their marriage, nor do we know that it was this Nathaniel, though there was no other in Bristol at that time.

Nathaniel did marry Miss Mary Little, Aug. 3, 1741, St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Bristol. She was b. March 30, 1718, there, daughter of Captain Samuel & Mary (Briggs) Little; granddaughter of Lieut. Samuel & Sarah (Gray) Little; great-granddaughter of Thomas & Ann (Warren) Little who was daughter of Richard Warren of the Mayflower and his wife Elizabeth. Sarah Gray (1659-1736) daughter of Edward & Mary (Winslow) Gray; granddaughter of John & Mary (Chilton) Winslow; great-granddaughter of James Chilton and his wife. The three Chiltons also came in the Mayflower. After Captain Nathaniel's death, his widow Mary re-married: "Mrs. Mary Reynolds of Bristol m. Samuel Miller(d) of Warren," March 31, 1748; ceremony by Rev. Solomon Townsend. Miller or Millerd was son of Samuel & Ruth (Curtis) Miller(d); he was in Warren Militia, Revolutionary War, 1777 and 1781. See the Ancestors of Frank Herbert Davol and his wife Phebe Downing Willits, by Josephine C. Frost, 1925, life member of N. Y. Geneal. & Biog. Society; see also Vital Records of Bristol Co.; Revolutionary History of Warren, etc. We have record of but one child:

3. Anne, b. June 6, 1772.

69. MARY REYNOLDS: (*Peter*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) baptized in Bristol, R. I., Jany. 7, 1710; d. April 16, 1772. She always lived in Bristol, and she married there twice: 1st, Constant Church, on Jany. 25, 1732-33, but he d. May 8, 1746, aged 32. They had four children, as below given. Captain Joseph served in the Revolution. His son Joseph, Jr., was a Colonel in the Revolution. Captain Joseph was Justive of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas and General Sessions of the Peace, Bristol Co., 1776-89 (p. 88, 1916 Reynolds Family Annual).

In Arnold's R. I. Colonial Records, we read:

"During the session of the General Assembly held October 1776, he was appointed Associate Justice of the Court of Common Pleas for Bristol County, with Nathaniel Fales, Esq., as Chief Justice, and John Child, James Brown and Josiah Humphrey as Associates. He was appointed again in 1777-1783, inclusive. In 1787 he was appointed Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas for Bristol County and again in 1788 and 1789."

In Munro's Mt. Hope Lands we read further:

"At the General Assembly of Rhode Island held at Newport 1st Wednesday of May 1760 he was among the delegates declared elected and was duly engaged. He, like his father and grandfather, was an active member of the Congregational Society. His name appears cut in a stone which was part of the foundation of the old church now the town hall. It was probably during his life and under his direction that the new dam was built making what is now called the First Pond. A passage for the water from the new pond was built to connect with the old pond and the mill was moved to its present location. At the time the British passed through Bristol, during the War of the Revolution, he was confined to his bed, but was removed and kept a prisoner for several days, after which he was set free."

On page 240 of Munro's Mt. Hope Lands is the following† narrative:

"In September, 1778, General Lafayette took the command of the ports about the Island of Rhode Island. His principal corps was stationed at Bristol. He was intrusted with the care of Warren, Bristol, and the western shore, as he himself writes to General Washington in a letter dated 'Camp near Bristol, Sept. 7, 1778.' Another letter is dated 'Bristol, near Rhode Island.' On the 24th of September he writes, 'I have removed my station from Bristol and am in a safer place behind Warren.' During his stay in Bristol, the Marquis lived in the house of Joseph Reynolds, upon Bristol Neck.

Mrs. Reynolds, the great-grandmother of the present owner (1880) of the house, had been informed of the approach of her noble guest, and had made suitable preparations for his reception. More than an hour before the time which had been appointed for his coming, a young Frenchman rode up to the house, and dismounting, tied his horse to a tree which stood near it. Plainly, one of the General's attendants, thought; and her negro servant, Cato, was at once sent to conduct him to the room designed for the subordinate officers. The young man expressed a desire for something to eat, and he was accordingly seated at the table which had been prepared for his commander, though his hostess wondered greatly that he could not control his appetite until a more appropriate hour. The officer ate very heartily of the dinner that was placed before him, but sat so long at the table that Mrs. Reynolds was forced to address him, to remind him that his General was momentarily expected, when to her intense amazement, the young man announced that he was the visitor (Lafayette himself) whose arrival the household were so eagerly awaiting."

On pages 210-11 of the Mt. Hope Lands is an account of the British raid of May 25, 1778:

†See p. 35 of 1905 Reynolds Family Annual.

"As the British soldiers marched along the main road, small squads were sent out from time to time, to visit the farm-houses which stood back from the road, and many farmers were thus taken prisoners. Among those captured were Jonathan Peck, etc.

'As the troops approached the house of Joseph Reynolds, all the family, with the exception of Mr. Reynolds himself, who was suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, left the house and took refuge in a building which stood near the mill, at a considerable distance from the house. The officer in command of the detachment which visited this building was very gentlemanly, and did not allow his men to molest in any way those who had fled thither.

"Among these fugitives was a negro slave, named Cato, whose inflammable nature was so stirred up by the excitement, that it was only with the greatest difficulty that he was prevented from discharging his musket at the soldiers as they marched away. Not as considerate as his subordinate, was the officer in command of the main body, for Mr. Reynolds was forced to leave his sick-room and accompany the troops to Newport, whence he came back not many days after, having been exchanged."

Census of 1790 for Bristol "MRS. LYDIA REYNOLDS; two males over 16; 7 females, including herself; one free negro, two slaves."

R. J. Census of 1774, "JOSEPH REYNOLDS, SR., one son over 16; 2 under; 5 females over 16; one under; 4 negroes, total 16," of Bristol.

The beautiful old Colonial home of this Joseph's father with its fine old garden and giant elms and the mill and back pasture, at Captain Joseph's death went to his son Colonel Reynolds, then to Samuel G. Reynolds, then to Judge John Post Reynolds who owned it at his death in December 1915, but whose heirs sold it in 1929 to Captain J. Andrews Moriarty. A picture of this house appears opposite page 66.

85. JOHN REYNOLDS: (*Benjamin*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Bristol, R. I., April 1, 1718; d. Dec. 27, 1800, Malden, Mass.; buried Kings Chapel Burial Ground, Boston, near School Street entrance, with wife Dorothy. He died intestate and letters of administration were granted his son William, "merchant of Boston," April 28, 1801. From Bristol he went to Providence for a time and then to Boston. He seems to have gone back to Providence and in later years to have returned to Boston.

"June 6, 1744. Mr. John Reynold from Bristol is admitted an inhabitant (of Boston) provided Mr. Edward Marion (who m. John's cousin Mary, dau. Nathaniel, give bond with him in £100 lawful money to indemnify the town from any charge upon his account."

"Nov. 7, 1764. Susannah Ellis informed the Selectmen of her having taken into her house John Reynolds his wife Dorothy and 5 ch. namely, Saml. Benj. John. Edw. Wm. who all came from the town of Providence."

"Feby. 12, 1765. John Reynolds wife and 5 sons as above who came from Providence in the Colony of R. I. are admitted inhabitants of this town Joseph & Edw. Weld of Roxbury (his wife's family) having given bonds the 26 Nov. 1764 to the Town Treas. in the penalty of £200 to indemnify the Town."

"He was of humble circumstances, but of great integrity and firm religious principle." (From account of Rev. Grindall Reynolds.)

The above notes are historically very interesting, for they mark the return to Boston of the descendants of Robert Reynolds. The last of them, Mary (Snell) Reynolds, widow of Nathaniel⁴, third, had left Boston just before 1725. John's strain have ever since been in Boston and in modern times they have been distinguished leaders in the medical and clerical professions. In 1771 John was Executor of Edward Marion's will, Boston.

"All his surviving sons took part in the Boston Tea Party," one old (1850) historian says. His sons Grindall, Edward, Benjamin, were all living when the youngest of them was over eighty. "John and his wives lived in Bristol until after birth of John; then to Providence where probably three youngest were born; thence to Roxbury; then to Boston."

John married 1st: Susanna Giles of Salem, Jany. 11, 1743-44; she died in childbed, June 30, 1745. He m. 2nd: Dorothy† Weld, May 3, 1753, youngest dau. John and Mehitable (Child) Weld of Roxbury, Mass. She was b. 1729; d. Aug. 30, 1798, "aet. 69."

He was a merchant in the East India trade in Boston. His will is probated 1847, Suffolk Co., Boston, probate. See reference to his house under account of his brother Captain Grindall³ Reynolds, in the next Generation-Chapter.
192. THOMAS CAPERING, born in Boston, but died in infancy.

86. BENJAMIN REYNOLDS: (*Benjamin*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Bristol, R. I., Nov. 15, 1722; died, date and place unknown. He married, wife and date unknown; possibly in Newport, R. I., records. He was received into the Congregational Church, Bristol, Dec. 6, 1741, with John and Elizabeth same date, probably his cousins, but possibly his wife and infant son. He was then but nineteen.

In 1755, during the French and Indian War, the French were driven out of Acadia (Nova Scotia: cit. Longfellow's Evangeline) and attractive inducements were made to New England colonists to migrate and settle† about the Bay of Fundy, particularly on Chignecto Isthmus and about the Minas Basin, Cumberland Bay, etc. Many Rhode Island and Mass. residents, attracted by land grants, settled there. Among them went Benjamin, about 1760-61. He settled first in Newport, Hants Co., N. S., on the River Avon, south side of Minas Basin. List of original Newport, N. S., land grantees: "1761, Benjamin Reynolds, one share".‡ As he was then 39, it is probable he was married before going to Nova Scotia though no record or mention of this exists. In the Literary Diary of †Thirteen original settlements to which R. I., Conn., and Mass. settlers went and located were: Horton, Cornwallis, Falmouth, Truro, Onslow, Cumberland, Sackville, Amherst, Chester, Dublin, Annapolis, Granville and Liverpool. Dr. David Allison of Halifax, N. S., is an authority on Newport History.

‡Americana, Jany. 1915, article by A. W. H. Eaton, R. I. Settlers in N. S., p. 29. Also see Milner, W. C.: Records of Chignecto, N. S.

President Stiles of Yale (the wife of Benjamin's cousin Peter, Elizabeth Taylor, was cousin to Stiles) we find (I: 137-38):

"This afternoon, Aug. 10, 1771, visited by Mr. Raynolds who arrived yesterday from Nova Scotia. He removed thither from Newport, 1761, & settled at Cornwallis where Mr. Phelps is Pastor. He tells me that last year 1770 was the first Presbyterian ordination ever performed in that Province."

"Two Raynoldses of Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, 1760, were in the First Church of New Haven, list of Mr. Vinal's meeting." (I:45).

From this it might seem that Benjamin eventually returned to New England and settled in or near New Haven.

Just about the time Benjamin removed—or possibly with him—went Nathaniel⁵ Reynolds [whose record herein see, son of John & Anna (Blanch) Reynolds, his cousin once removed], and settled at Falmouth, N. S., about ten or twenty miles from Benjamin. Nathaniel's grant reads, "Falmouth, N. S., 1760: Nathaniel Reynolds, one share." But Nathaniel was apparently attracted to Cumberland or Amherst, N. S., on Cumberland Bay, very shortly afterwards Benjamin's subsequent history is very obscure.

When the American Revolution broke out in 1775 Benjamin and Nathaniel were among the former New England men to whom, even after fifteen years in Nova Scotia, life among overwhelming numbers of the enemy in Tory Nova Scotia became unbearable. Nathaniel returned to Maine and joined the Mass. settlers in raids on the Nova Scotians. An unreliable tradition relates that Benjamin likewise "returned to the States" (probably 1776, the year most settlers abandoned Nova Scotia—he was then about 54), and that he "fought against the British," and "after the Revolution returned to Nova Scotia." He is supposed to have received lands (or perhaps it was Nathaniel with whom tradition has badly confused him) at Marietta, Ohio, "out of which he was cheated." Beyond this there is not even tradition left.

A Benjamin Reynolds sold land at Petitcodiac, Westmoreland Co., N. B., near Moncton, 1784, wife Lydia joining, but this seems almost surely the son of the above Nathaniel. Benjamin⁶ bought the 500 acres at Petitcodiac perhaps about the opening of the Revolution.

Benjamin's brothers went to Putney, Vt., and to Boston; did he follow them? Did he live in New Haven?

On Oct. 19, 1776, a John Reynolds of Barrington, N. S., and others, all "being settlers from Mass. Bay", signed a petition to the Mass. General Court for protection and aid against British and Indian raids.†

87. GRINDALL REYNOLDS: (*Benjamin*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹):
b. July 11, 1726, Bristol, R. I.; d. Putney, Vermont, date?; m. Sarah Searle, Jany. 30, 1758, at Little Compton, R. I., by Rev. Jonathan Ellis;
b. there Jany. 28, 1733; d. and bur. in Putney, Vt.; dau. Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Kinnecut) Searle of Little Compton, R. I. Nathaniel Searle's mother was Sarah Rogers, dau. John and Elizab. (Pabodie) Rogers of Duxbury. Elizabeth Peabody was dau. of William, who m. Elizab. Alden, dau. John and Priscilla Alden of the Mayflower. Grindall Reynolds' descendants therefore have the following Mayflower ancestors: John Alden, Priscilla Mullins, William and Alice Mullins, and John Rogers. The modern spelling is probably Searles.

Grindall Reynolds' mother was Susanna (Rawson), and "Grindall" (from Archbishop Edmund Grindall of England who was related to the Rawsons) was a common name among the Rawsons. Beginning with this Grindall Reynolds, it becomes a common name in the Vermont wing of our Reynolds Family of Boston.

Grindall was received into the Congregational Church in Bristol, R. I., May 6, 1759; moved to Putney, Vermont, about 1772; Deacon in Congreg. Church in Putney in 1776. In 1769 was a carpenter and builder. We understand his house in Putney built a century and a half ago still stands, but the address we do not know. His Revolutionary War Record follows:

"Grindall Reynolds,† Vermont. Lieutenant. Lieutenant in Capt. John Petty's Co., in Col. Wm. Williams' Regt. of Militia. Entered his service Aug. 29, 1777, 40 days account for pay."

U. S. Pension Records do not mention this Grindall. The first five children given below were baptized in Bristol, R. I., we know. In removing to Vermont about 1772, Grindall and Sarah founded there a very numerous family which spread from Putney to Grand Isle, Alburg, So. Hero, and northern New York State. The children were:

THE FIFTH GENERATION

93. NATHANIEL REYNOLDS, "Esqr.": (3 Nathaniels; *Robert*¹)
b. March 19, 1717-18, on the original home-lot of Robert and Mary Reynolds in Boston; he d. Sidney, Maine, Nov. 26, 1807. He was the fourth of seven consecutive Nathaniels. Mentioned as "yeoman" in deeds at Plymouth, Mass. When he† was about three, his widowed mother came back from Boston to her father's home in Bridgewater (called West Bridgewater since 1822), Mass.; and in 1722 she married again, to David Ames who died in 1726, leaving her with three Ames children as well.

In Bridgewater she lived on what is now the Williams Farm. Nathaniel and his younger Reynolds brother, Thomas, lived in the West Shares of Bridgewater (near Stoughton) in their youth. Thomas remained in what is now Brockton, but our Nathaniel, after marrying twice and having thirteen children in Brockton, sold his farm in West Shares, Bridgewater, 1779, and removed to Sidney (then part of Vassalboro), Maine, in what was at that time wild frontier country. In Bridgewater, Nathaniel became one of the first Justices of the Peace, commissioned June 14, 1776, hence the title "Esquire" which always stuck to him. Country store-keeper and farmer, he represented Bridgewater in the Mass. Legislature ("General Court") 1776-7, during the Revolution; delegate to Plymouth County Congress, 1774. He was one of the useful, patriotic old Revolutionary townsmen who loaned their money to the Continental Congress and sent all their boys into the War. His official Revolutionary record‡ runs:

"Loaned money to Government during the Revolution. His sons enlisted from North Bridgewater."

Of these sons, Philip was in the French and Indian War, but died before the Revolution; Jonas, Timothy, Nathaniel fifth, David, and Jonathan were Revolutionary soldiers. The Sidney Town Records mention him frequently.

1785: Esqr. Rennels, sworn in surveyor of highways.

1787, Dec. 15, David and Jonathan Reynolds sign petition to selectmen for representative to meet at Boston.

Tax list, 1790: Nathaniel Reynolds, Esq. exempt from poll tax, real estate tax £3-17-0; personal £2-7; total £6-4-0.

His sons Timothy⁶, Nathaniel fifth, David and Jonathan removed to Sidney (Vassalboro), Maine, with him in 1779; Philip⁶, who had served in the French and Indian War, had died in 1775; and Jonas⁶ remained in Bridgewater, perhaps because his father-in-law had made it worth his while.

We do not know that Squire Nathaniel and his Sidney neighbors ever had any trouble with the Maine Indians, but the old Indian blockhouse, Ft. Halifax, built in 1754 and still standing, was maintained by them as a refuge from possible attacks. Squire Nathaniel's nephew Thomas⁵, Jr., also moved up to Winslow, Maine, about 1795, a few miles from his uncle and cousins. That was about the time Thomas⁵, Senior, died. All Maine was then, and until 1820, considered part of Massachusetts. There are many of the stock still in Vassalboro, Sidney, Winslow and Waterville, Maine. In the Census† of 1790 we find Squire Nathaniel, "himself, 2 sons over 16, 2 females" given in Vassalboro, where the total population was about 1250. His son Timothy cannot be found in the Census—perhaps had died and his children were with their grandfather as above. Squire Nathaniel married twice. 1st: Hannah Hartwell, Dec. 12, 1739 (when he was 21), dau. Samuel and Hannah Hartwell. See Hartwell Genealogy. She was b. Dec. 20, 1719; d. Aug. 12, 1842, W. 94. THOMAS REYNOLDS; (*Nathaniel*⁴; *Nathaniel*³; *Captain Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) son of Nathaniel and Mary (Snell) Reynolds of Boston, was b. Boston, Mass., Feby. 25, 1719-20; d. North Bridgewater, Mass. (called Brockton since 1874), in 1795 (about October). The tradition of his death is that he caught cold running down street in his shirt-sleeves to see the crowd burn the then unpopular John Jay, our Minister to France, in effigy, and quickly died of pneumonia. His father Nathaniel¹ had died Oct. 29, 1719, "aet. 26", in Boston on the old home-lot of our immigrant Robert & Mary Reynolds; so that Thomas was apparently born four months after his father's death. His widowed mother was Mary (Snell) Reynolds of the Bridgewater Snell Family, so that it was logical that she should go back there upon the death of her husband. The widow Mary Reynolds took her two infant sons—Nathaniel⁵ and Thomas⁵—the only children, back to West Bridgewater about 1720. In 1722 she married David Ames of that place, and, although he died in 1726, two infant Ames half-brothers and a half-sister were left to grow up with our two Reynolds boys. In 1725 Mary sold the last of Robert's home-lot in Boston to John Fosdick, her late husband's uncle by marriage. Now, Nathaniel⁵ and Thomas⁵ spent most of their boyhood on David Ames' Bridgewater farm. This place in 1886 was owned by Charles Williams and was on West Center St., a little way east of Co-chessett Village in W. Bridgewater. Thomas and Nathaniel eventually settled in the North Parish of Bridgewater some time previous to 1744.

Thomas built a two-story house on the spot where John D. Thayer recently lived. It was about opposite West Street on Pleasant Street. He and Nathaniel had three-quarters of a square mile of land, whether by grant, gift or purchase we do not know. It was covered with wild forest and Thomas had to cut the trees to clear the spot upon which he erected his house. At the time of his marriage he had only finished one room; but the rest was completed afterward. A bear was occasionally to be seen in the clearing; foxes were plentiful among the corn-shocks and pumpkins in his field, and venison was not at all hard to get. Indians occasionally wandered into town, though by this time the small-pox, firewater, and incursions of the white man had begun to make the Indians scarce. Thomas' home was about a mile and a quarter west of the business center of Brockton. Nathaniel built farther west on what is now Pleasant Street, about two miles from the center. Both Thomas and Nathaniel followed the family tradition and made shoes, by going from house to house, taking measurements, tanning their own leather, and making up the shoes at home. However, they undoubtedly combined farming with this family trade. Their twice-widowed mother was considered quite well-to-do and at her death March 27, 1757, left her Reynolds and Ames children quite comfortable legacies, as we have already read in this genealogy.

All of the sons of military age of both Nathaniel and Thomas served in the Revolution. Their Bridgewater descendants multiplied rapidly and many of them still live in Brockton, as shoe manufacturers or shoe operatives. In 1779 Nathaniel and most of his children removed to Sidney and Vassalboro, Maine. Just after the Revolution, Thomas⁶ Jr., son of our Thomas⁵, removed to Winslow, Me., which is quite near the homesteads of his uncle Nathaniel⁵ and his sons. The family is still numerous there. Other descendants of Thomas from 1810-1820 went to Canton, Hartford, Caribou, Winthrop, and other Maine towns. However, the growing shoe industry in Brockton in the middle part of last century attracted many of their children back to Brockton, because these later generations still stuck to the family trade of shoe-making. North Bridgewater was re-named Brockton in 1874.

We haven't the exact date of death of Thomas⁵; but he and his wife Elizabeth deeded to their son Thomas⁶ on Jany. 41, 1794, a piece of Bridgewater land. Thomas⁵ speaks of himself as "yeoman" in his will date March 23, 1795 (proved at Plymouth, Mass., the county seat, on Nov. 21, 1795, where the original is still filed. Thomas⁵ died in that interval, probably a month before the proving of the will. Yeoman then meant "one of the commonalty of the first, or most respectable, class." The value of his Estate, $2,352.26, was not a mean sum in those days. The will reads:

"Last Will & Testament."

(Nov. 1795. Recorded Book 35: folio 329, &c.)

I, Thomas Reynolds of Bridgewater in the County of Plymouth, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Yeoman; do make and ordain this my last will and Testament in order following, that is to say. Now Thomas⁵ was married to Elizabeth Turner, November 3, 1748, by Rev. John Porter. We believe she was the daughter of Amasa† (b. 1705) & Rebecca (Delano) Turner of Duxbury, Mass. Elizabeth outlived Thomas some twenty years and spent her last years with her grandson Joseph⁷ on the property which Thomas⁷ left to her and in which she had a life interest. We do not know when nor where she was born, but she died in North Bridgewater at Joseph⁶ Reynolds' home, and about the time he lost his first wife and fell into financial difficulties. Her will is dated April 7, 1803(proved at Plymouth March 4, 1816), inventory totalling only $185.57, as her life-interest in the real estate terminated at her death. The will mentioning the prized "feather-bed"—in her day they were a valued item of personal property—follows:

"Will of Elizth Reynolds"

(Recorded Book 27: Folio 290)

"In the Name of God Amen. The Fifteenth Day of April in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Three Elizabeth Reynolds of Bridgewater in the County of Plymouth, Widow, do make and ordain this my Last will and Testament; that is to say, principally and first of all I give and recommend my Soul into the hand of God who gave it & my body I recommend to the earth to be Buried in decent manner at the discretion of my Executor hereafter named and touching such worldly estate wherewith God has blessed me I give, and dispose of it in the following manner and form.

"Imprimis, I give to my son Joseph Reynolds One Dollar;

Item, I give to my son Thomas Reynolds one Dollar;

Item, I give to my son Josiah Reynolds Ten Dollars;

Item, I give to my Daughter Susanna Howard one Cow and one Feather Bed;

Item, I give to my Daughter Elizabeth Reynolds all my household furniture and indoor moveables except my wearing Apparel & the before-mentioned Feather Bed and any provisions which I may have at the time of my Decease."

"Item, I give to my Four Daughters Amey Dunbar, Susanna Howard, Elizabeth Reynolds and Martha Packard all my wearing Apparel to be equally divided among them.

And I do constitute and appoint my Son-in-Law Oliver Howard sole Executor of this my last Will & Testament. And I do order my said Executor after paying my Funeral charges and expenses of settling my Estate to pay the aforementioned Legal cies in One Year to my Sons out of my estate not given away. And furthermore the

†We have no proof of her parentage, though it would appear that she was a daughter of Amasa & Rebecca (Delano) Turner. In the Boston Transcript, May 8th, 1922, a writer signing himself "San Francisco" says that a Hannah Hatch, dau. Saml. and Mary (Doby) Hatch b. Feby. 16, 1681-2, m. a Japhet Turner. He d. Jany. 23, 1710-11; she m. again, July 9, 1719, Ebenezer Tinkham; and 3rd, Dec. 23, 1729, Capt. Ichabod Tupper. She survived all three and died April 13, 1771. Her will dated Aug. 26, 1766, mentions besides others ten grandsons and fifteen granddaus. among them the children of her son Japhet, deceased, giving only the married names of Japhet's daus. as Betty Rennels, Abigail Benson, and Hannah le Baron. grandsons, Joseph, Samuel and Japhet. Japhet Turner son of Hannah (Hatch-Tinkham) Tupper, birth date not given m. Jany. 7, 1725, Elizabeth Morse, a descendant of Edward Doty, a Mayflower passenger and also of Francis Cook. Japhet and Elizabeth (Morse) Turner had a dau. Betty b. in Middleboro, May 12, 1726, the one referred to in Mrs. Tupper's will—unfortunately the first name of Betty Rennels' husband not given.

Betty Rennels had a brother Joseph, the only Turner or Morse name that appears among the children of Thomas Reynolds. If this Betty Rennels was the Elizabeth, wife of our Thomas Reynolds, why did she not use more of the Christian names of her family in naming her children? But Betty may have married one of the numerous Middleboro Family unrelated to us.

Remainder of my Personal estate if any I may have, I give to my seven children before mentioned to be equally divided among them.

In testimony whereof I do hereunto set my hand and Seal the day and year above Written."

Thomas⁵ himself was rather old to participate in the Revolution; but I find record of him and all three sons in the 1790 Census† for Bridgewater (Brockton) which then had a population of approximately 5,000. Thomas⁵ is given, "himself, 1 male under 16, wife and one daughter." The daughter was the spinster Elizabeth, of course; the male under 16 may have been one of his grandsons or a hired man, as his own sons Joseph, Thomas, Jr., and Josiah all appear in the same Census as heads of their own families. The Revolutionary records of three sons and their cousins are printed under their respective accounts.

The children of Thomas & Elizabeth, born in North Bridgewater (Brockton) were:

315. AMY, b. Oct. 29, 1749, d. May 9, 1752, in infancy.
- *316. JOSEPH, b. June 21, 1751; d. March 15, 1831; m. Jemima Perkins, 1772. Lived in Bridgewater, Mass.; both d. Minot (Auburn), Me.
317. AMY, b. Feby. 20, 1753; d. April 9, 1845; m. Silas Dunbar, Sr., 1772. Lived No. Bridgewater. Their son Capt. Silas Dunbar m. Amy's niece, Susanna. Their daughter Martha m. Major Joseph Reynolds. See page 148.
318. ELIZABETH, b. June 22, 1755; baptized July 20, 1755; never married. She was living in 1837; kept house for her brother-in-law Oliver Howard in Brockton after death of her sister.

97. JOHN REYNOLDS, 2nd: (*John*⁴; 2 Nathaniels; *Robert*¹) b. Boston, Mass., 1722; d. Marblehead, Mass., Nov. 28, 1790. He m. Miss Judith ("Juda") Hooper, (intention filed July 25, 1747) of Marblehead; baptized Nov. 21, 1725, Manchester, Mass., daughter of William³ & Abigail (Gale) Hooper, granddaughter of William² & Elizabeth Hooper; great-granddaughter of Captain Francis Hooper who was b. E. Coker, Somerset, England. See Hooper Genealogy, 1908, page 191, by C. H. Pope & Thos. Hooper. Judith d. March 19, 1785, aged 62, Marblehead. The Marblehead home of John and Judith was on the corner of Union and Water Streets. John's father conveyed Marblehead property to him in 1754. Also August 8, 1769, "granted to John Reynolds on the estate of his father, John Reynolds of Marblehead, a mansion house with shop and land underneath and adjoining * * * £ 70." Census of 1790 Marblehead, "himself, one son over 16, and one female (daughter?)"

This family were active in the Revolution. Book of Rev. M. T. Runnels states, "He or his son may have been the 'John Rennel of Marblehead' in list of men taken in the Grand Turk's prize (privateersman) and committed to Old Mill Prison, England, during the War of the Revolution, 1781-1782." This is given in the N. E. Hist. Gen. Register, see index thereof. This family lived in Marblehead in its most romantic and picturesque days, the days of its sea-glory, so well described in Dr. Samuel Road's History of Marblehead, 1880. The most fascinating story in this Family is that of John's brother, the reckless and impetuous CAPTAIN NATHANIEL⁵ REYNOLDS. All of the children of John & Judith were baptized in Marblehead, though we do not have all their birth dates. Many descendants live in Marblehead still; John⁶ and his descendants, as we shall see, lived long in New Hampshire.

325. JUDITH, bapt. Jany. 10, 1748; d. Feby. 16, 1813; m. John Nicholls, March 24, 1772. No further record.

*326. JOHN, b. May 18, 1749; d. April 23, 1829, Greenfield, N. H.; m. Miss Elizabeth Pickett, Dec. 24, 1772.

327. NATHANIEL, bapt. Jany. 27, 1751; d. Sept. 18, 1816; m. 1. Mary Grush. 2. Mrs. Margaret (Proctor) Lampreel, 1797.

328. WILLIAM HOOPER, bapt. Oct. 7, 1753; d. Jany. 14, 1808; m. Mrs. Sarah Smith Follett, 1779.

328. MARTHA, bapt. March 6, 1757; m. Samuel Striker, July 31, 1788. They later owned her parents' home, Union & Water Street.

330. JOSEPH, bapt. Feby. 4, 1759. He was private, Capt. Wm. Hooper's Co., Revolutionary War, service from June 1, 1776, to date of discharge, Nov. 15, 1776. five months, 15 days. Rolls dated Marblehead. Intention of marriage recorded, Jany. 14, 1796, to Sarah Tedder, daughter Valentine & Elizabeth Tedder, who was b. 1762. No marriage is recorded, and she did marry Dec. 9, 1787, Stephen Newhall. As the young men of Marblehead of this era were largely adventuring mariners and fishermen, it is quite likely that he was one of the numerous seamen "lost at sea." See Marblehead Vital Statistics.

331. ANDREW, bapt. April 22, 1764; m. 1. Mary Chapman. 2. Sarah Coombs.
 332. LIBERTY, napt. June 8, 1766. Nothing further known.

98. BENJAMIN REYNOLDS: (*John*⁴; 2 Nathls., etc.). History omitted because of lack of printing appropriation. The Editor has considerable data, but no record of his descendants.

100. NATHANIEL REYNOLDS (Captain): (*John*⁴; 2 Nathls.; *Robert*¹). His is the most interesting biography of our Family in Revolutionary times. Full account printed pp. 66-76 of the 1928 edition of this Book. History identified with Marblehead, Machias, and Amherst-Cumberland. Further descent is traced on page 130. No. 334.

His epitaph reads: "An affectionate parent, faithful physician, upright magistrate, and exemplary Christian." He was educated at Yale, Class of 1750 (his father was of Harvard 1720, and his son Freegrace, Yale 1787. After Samuel's premature death, his widow Martha remarried at Somers to Deacon Nathaniel Ely of Longmeadow, Nov. 15, 1787, being his fourth wife; his son Nathaniel m. her daughter Elizabeth Raynolds, as below. The Deacon died Dec. 26, 1799, in his 84th year. In the Census of Somers, 1790, a Samuel is given with one male under 16, two females. We do not know why Samuel, then dead, was listed. His son Samuel was listed in Enfield, Conn. See Davenport Family, p. 225; Longmeadow Centennial, appendix 60, 92-93; Williams and Stearns Genealogies; Yale Biogs. Annals, II:238. Peter marched with his Company as a private to Boston starting April 20, 1775, the morning after Lexington Battle. 42, stature six feet, one inch, complexion dark, hair dark, occupation carpenter, residence Bristol, etc." He is not in the Census of 1790 for Mass., perhaps he was then dead. He had many descendants in East Hartford, Conn. His Revolutionary War record runs:

He m. Miss Sarah Cox, Dec. 11, 1770; b. about 1745; d. Sept. 6, 1838, aged 93; daughter of William Cox, a joiner, of Bristol. She was admitted Bristol Congregational Church, April 1, 1798. Their children were all born at the old home in Bristol, and descendants still reside in Bristol.

His Revolutionary War record reads:

"Ensign in Captain Stephen Smith's Co. of Bristol, August, 1778, Col. Nathaniel Martin. Lieutenant Bristol Co. Militia, under Capt. Wm. Throop, May 1777, Third Regt.; also May 1778; also Sept. 1779; Feb. 1880. Lieutenant under Capt. Vial Allen in Newport Kings Co. and Bristol Battalion. In May 1881 Capt. Wm. Throop's Co., Lieutenant. His parents entertained General Lafayette in their home for some time in 1778; and his father was once a prisoner of war in Newport. Cato, a famous slave in the family for several generations, about whom a war story is told on page 87, died April 23, 1826, aged 89.

About 1800, he was a signer to a protest (printed in W. H. Munro's Mount Hope Lands, p. 225) directed to 'Parson' Wright, objecting to his political sermons. Joseph and his family withdrew from the Congregational Church of his forefathers, and thereafter the family attended St. Michael's Episcopal Church. 187. CAPTAIN GRINDALL REYNOLDS: (*John*⁴; *Benjamin*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Oct. 12, 1755, Bristol, R. I.; d. Boston, May 8, 1847. Providence records say he d. May 17th, aet. 81. His name appears as one of the petitioners to the R. I. General Assembly† to make provision for free public schools throughout the State, January 1799 (R. I. School Report, 1845, p. 98). See Historical and Other Papers of The Reverend Grindall Reynolds, pub. 1895 by Alice Reynolds Keyes, pp. 422-27, for complete biography. He participated in the famous Gaspee raid:

"The Gaspee, a Royal vessel of war, had been stationed in Narragansett Bay to prevent smuggling, but its duty was discharged with needless severity, and its commander became exceedingly unpopular. While chasing the sloop Hannah, bound from New York to Providence, the Gaspee ran aground on what is now called Gaspee Point, some miles from Bristol, while the Hannah reached Providence in safety.

"That night (June 9, 1772), eight long boats each with five muffled oars started down the Bay a little after ten o'clock. Their approach was perceived by the watch on the Gaspee, and shots were fired from the British schooner, and returned by the raiders. The vessel was boarded and after a brief but desperate struggle was captured. The crew were put ashore, and the Gaspee set afire and entirely destroyed. The participants made no effort to conceal the affair; some of them even boasted of their exploit when they reached Providence, but although a reward of £1000 was offered by the British authorities, no one was ever brought to trial."

†N. E. Hist. Gen. Regist., iii, 323, Rawson Genealogy.

This affair was the Rhode Island "Boston Tea-Party," and was prompted by very similar causes. Grindall also served creditably in the Revolution:

"Grindall Reynolds (Rhode Island): Ensign, Capt. Peter Taylor's Co. Second Co., First Battalion, Providence, under Lieut. Col. Comm. Eleazer Jenckes, — First Regiment; Lieutenant, under Captain Bennett Wheeler, Second Co., Providence, First Regiment, under Lieut. Col. Com. Christopher Lippitt, May '83; same May '84. Captain Fourth Co., Providence Militia, May 1788."

In 1898, Frank Wayland Reynolds, whose notes have much improved this volume, wrote to Mrs. Prescott Bigelow, Boston:

"You speak of remembering Uncle William as living next to Grandfather Edward, and I do not wonder that you do not know about Uncle Grindal; but he lived on the other side of Fort Hill, and lived till about the time the other two brothers died. In fact, he outlived them, for he was 92 years old when he died. I do not know why, but somehow or other, at our family parties his children never seemed to have been included."

He m. 1st: Elizabeth Bradford of Duxbury, Mass., April 22, 1784; b. ther about 1760; and d. there June 29, 1785; her only child died about four months later. Intention of marriage to "Betsey" Bradford was filed in Boston, March 11, 1784. See the Bradford Genealogy. He m. 2nd, Mary (Molly) Waldron, his second cousin, Oct. 15, 1786. She was b. Bristol, Jany. 5, 1764; d. Norfolk, Va., Aug. 9, 1803, or 1818, daughter of Daniel & Phebe⁴ (Reynolds) Waldron of Bristol. See page 88 herein for her Reynolds ancestry. They had nine children.

Benjamin lived many years in Norfolk, and at the home of his son. Benjamin and his brothers are said to have participated in the "Boston Tea Party;" at any rate Grindall participated in the Gaspee affair in Naragansett Bay. Benjamin's descendants have been Virginians, living in Norfolk and engaged in cotton shipping. There is a strong family tradition that Benjamin was in the Revolutionary War, as his brothers Samuel, Grindall and John certainly were; but we do not have the record of his service. His son William died of wounds sustained in the War of 1812. Benjamin's grandson, William D., was an officer in the Confederate Army from Virginia in the Civil War; and William D., Jr., was one of the earliest, or the first, missionary in Seoul, Korea. Benjamin's gt. grandfather, Captain Nathaniel, was an officer in King Philip's Indian War, 1675-76.

Benjamin moved about considerably. His first child was b. Duxbury, Mass.; his 2nd, 5th, 6th and 7th, in Providence, R. I.; his 3rd, 4th, 9th, and 10th, in Norfolk, Va.; and his 8th in Boston. From this we gather that his successive places of residence were: early years in Bristol, R. I.; 1784-85, at least, in Duxbury, Mass.; 1786-9, Providence; 1790-93, Norfolk, Va.; 1794-99, Providence; 1800-01, Boston; from 1802 onward in Norfolk, Va. We do not know how he was attracted to the South. His brother John went there about 1800. Many of their R. I. family were maritime adventurers, which may explain the migration to Norfolk.

His will (1848) is in the Suffolk Registry of Probate, Boston. Census of 1790, shows only Edward and his wife, Boston. On Sept. 11 1791, at Brattle Street Church, Boston, Edward "owned the covenant" when his first child Jane was baptized. On May 7, 1798, Matthew Pedley, Boston, mortgaged property in Margaret's Lane to Edward Reynolds, et al. Edward was a Boston merchant, had a large flour business, and owned more or less shipping; he ran the first line of packets between Boston and Philadelphia, and accumulated a considerable fortune. His descendants are numerous and notable in Boston; many of them are graduates of Harvard. On account of his youth, he was probably not in the Revolutionary War, though his brothers were.

He m. 1st, Miss Deborah Belcher, Sunday, June 20, 1790, ceremony by The Reverend Mr. Clark. She was b. Boston, Aug. 11, 1769; d. Oct. 8, 1813, aged 44; the daughter of Samuel⁶ & Deborah (Thompson) Belcher of Boston. Samuel was the son of Samuel⁵ & Abigail Belcher, son of Major Moses⁴ B. Belcher of the French & Indian War. Samuel⁶ Belcher of Boston was "Captain, Col. Jacobs' Regiment of Guards; list of men stationed at Boston under General Gates, Jany. 1, 1779." This family were descendants of Gregory & Catherine Belcher† who was in New England as early as 1637.

204. CAPTAIN GRINDALL REYNOLDS: (*Grindall*⁴; *Benjamin*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Bristol, R. I., August or September, 1764, baptized Bristol Congregational Church, Sept. 23, 1764; d. Nov. 29, 1843, Grand Isle, Vermont, aged 79.

He m. 1st, Miss Dorcas Landon, 1789, of South Hero, Grand Isle Co., Vt., daughter of Benjamin Landon. Benjamin is given in 1790 Census as of South Hero: "himself, 1 male over 16, 2 under 16, 4 females." Grindall and Dorcas married when she was about 16, as she was b. 1774, and died aged 37, on April 15, 1811. They had ten children.

He m. 2nd, Mrs. Anna Susan Butler, at South Hero, Vt., Dec. 21, 1820. She applied for pension Aug. 21, 1856, when aged 78, and then lived in Alburgh, Vt. She was allowed bounty land. No children. She died 1861, Grand Isle. It has been said that Grindall married thrice, but this seems improbable unless he married between the above two known wives.

Grindall's father was Lieutenant† Grindall Reynolds in the Revolution, and his brothers Benjamin and Nathaniel also served. He, himself, "served in the Revolution, near the close of the War, at the early age of sixteen years." His official record reads:

"In Captain Josiah Fish's Co., Col. Samuel Fletcher's Battalion, 1781, July 1st, to close of campaign, pay-roll, private, Aug. 2nd, to Nov. 25, 114 days, discharged, £7-12-0. He had enlisted at Arlington, Vt. Also, private in Captain James Clay's Company, Col. Bradley's Regiment, assisting the High Sheriff, pay-roll dated Sept. 11, 1782, 1 day's service. His home then was Putney, Vt."

Grindall served also in the War of 1812; was Captain of Militia, Vermont, for several years, and held many responsible official positions in his township. U. S. Pension records:

"War of 1812. Grindall Reynolds, lived in 1814 at Grand Isle, Vt., volunteered Sept. 1814, served five days in Captain Samuel Farnsworth's Company of Vermont Militia, and was engaged in the Battle of Plattsburgh."

Grindall, soon after the close of the Revolution and before 1788, migrated with his younger brother Constant on foot through the wilderness from Putney to South Hero, Grand Isle Co., Vt. This is on Grand Isle in Lake Champlain; thereafter he made his permanent home in Grand Isle.

The next year (1789) Grindall married Dorcas Landon there, and in the 1790 Census, he is given as of South Hero; himself, his brother Constant (who then was unmarried, and was counted as a member of Grindall's little household), one son under 16, and his wife Dorcas. The records below do not show any son born before this Census, but it is possible there was one died in infancy.

"Grindall worked six months for a lot of land, clearing part of it and building a place in which to live. He built over the stump of a large tree, and on rainy days would cut out the under side of it to make a table. After a time he raised some wheat and he and two neighbors took ten bushels in a canoe and went to Whitehall (then called Charlotte, or Skenesboro), N. Y., to mill. They were gone three weeks."

Grindall made his home in Grand Isle; but in 1817 his brother Constant and his large family of 13 children removed thence to Pierrepont, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., which in those days was a very great distance.

About the time of the War of 1812, an ELISHA⁵ REYNOLDS (originally of North Kingstown, R. I.), removed from Hoosic, N. Y., up to Isle la Motte near our Grindall, though they were unrelated, at least on this side of the Atlantic. In 1790 there was Lucius Reynolds and four large sons in Plattsburgh; Elisha and James in Champlain, N. Y.; and Elisha and Thomas in Alburgh, N. Y., all near our Grindall, though not related to him. Their descendants eventually intermarried. See the Reynolds Family Association Annuals, 1922, et seq. for this JAMES OF KINGSTOWN, R. I., family.

"Grindall introduced the first 'double-wagon' into Grand Isle in 1805. He was possessed of more than average ability, and exhibited through life the characteristics of great energy and industry. He was particularly remarkable for scrupulous integrity, and was esteemed very highly by all who knew him."

Grindall's children were all born in Grand Isle, Vermont.

Jesse Reynolds of the town of Grand Isle, Vt., crossed the lake with others and fought in the Battle of Plattsburg, Sept., 1814. At their death the son was probably an infant; may have died or been adopted by another family. (Hist. of Grand Isle Co., p. 649). This Jesse had a nephew Jesse and nephew Albert, both physicians of Grand Isle.

205. CONSTANT REYNOLDS: (*Grindall*⁴; *Benjamin*³; *Nathaniel*²; *Robert*¹) b. Bristol, R. I., Oct. 10, 1765, baptized, Congregational Church, there, Sept. 21, 1766; d. Hanover, Jackson Co., Mich., Sept. 29, 1840, at home of son Grindall; buried Hanover Cemetery with wife.

Constant was 11 at the signing of the Declaration of Independence. About 1772 his parents removed from Bristol, R. I., to Putney, Vermont. Though a Constant Reynolds is listed among Vermont Revolutionary records, it probably was not our Constant, as he was too young on the dates mentioned (1776) to have been a soldier. Constant's brothers in the Revolution, and also his father, Grindall, Sr. Shortly after the Revolution and before 1790 (when mentioned in the land records of So. Hero) he and his older brother Grindall, Jr., removed from Putney to South Hero, Vt., in Lake Champlain. In the 1790 Census Constant is the "male over 16" listed in his brother Grindall's family there, as Grindall was married and Constant then was not. Grindall and Constant bought and sold land in South Hero in 1790-91. Constant's daughter Sally once said that Constant got his name from a relative, Constant Comfort, of his mother, Sarah Searle or Searls.

Constant was a well-informed man; held office of County Clerk for twenty years—a man of character, very silent. Never known to express opinion on religious matters, but left religious training of his children entirely to his wife, who was a devout and saintly woman.

Constant m. Miss Margaret Graham, South Hero, Vt., Jany. 8, 1792. She was b. Sept. 12, 1773, Amherst, N. H. Her father was Scotch and her mother Irish. Margaret died July 29, 1849, at the home of her son Grindall, Spring Arbor Township, Jackson Co., Mich.; was buried with her husband and son Grindall's family at Hanover, Jackson Co., Mich. She spent her girlhood in different places; was seven years at Bennington, Vt., with the Robinsons—first Governor of Vermont. She was Presbyterian; d. of paralysis.

The Grahams were of Grand Isle, Lake Champlain. In the Revolution John Graham's sympathies were with the mother country and when after the close of the Revolution the boundary was defined, he went to Ontario. His wife Catharine MacMillan Graham remained in Grand Isle until she had reared her family when she joined her husband in Canada. She was b. 1728, Londonderry, north of Ireland, also of Scotch parentage, the MacMillans. Her mother Margaret MacFatra was b. in Scotland. We have not the date of John Graham's going to Canada; he had just sold his farm and received pay in Continental currency when the money became worthless. As he was growing blind and was then quite an elderly man, it is quite possible that he went to his son Hugh who was one of the elder sons of the family. Mrs. Graham used to go on horseback once a year from Grand Isle to Boston, Mass., to see her son Daniel. She d. Ontario, Can., 1814, five years before the death of her blind husband. She was brought to America when she was four years old by her mother. The Graham family must have lived in Hillsboro, N. H., before moving to Grand Isle, as the record states that Margaret Graham, wife of Constant Reynolds was b. there Sept. 12, 1773.

Constant and Margaret had all their children in So. Hero. The first four were b. between 1792-1800. In March, 1817, they removed from South Hero, Vt., to Parishville, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.; then after a few years to nearby Pierrepont, N. Y., where they remained until May 15, 1837, when they went to Hanover, Jackson Co., Mich., to spend their remaining years with their son Grindall. Grindall afterwards took them to the nearby Spring Arbor Township in the same county; they are all buried in Hanover.

Constant and Margaret had 13 children. Excepting the female twin who d. aged 9 months, of the other seven sisters, the youngest d. at 33 and the eldest at 82, Sally. The 5 brothers all m. and lived to be from 40 to 90. It is said that Constant's family were Quakers and did not believe in War, though the military records of his older brothers do not corroborate this. Upon reaching manhood Aaron, Julius and Grindall migrated to Jackson Co., Mich., about 1833-34. Searl tramped to Chicago about that time. Soon afterward Dorcas and Betsey, Alson Landon and D. M. Skinner and families went from N. Y. state to Hanover, Mich. After a few years Betsey m. Ransom Belding of Pierrepont; she spent the rest of her life in Pierrepont.

The children were all b. in South Hero, Vermont:

452. CALISTA, b. Dec. 28, 1795; d. Sept. 7, 1867; m. 1. Ansel Tupper. 2. Andrew or William Crampton.

He is probably of the James of Kingstown, R. I., Line. He is also possibly the Constant mentioned p. 61, No. 55 of the 1916 Reynolds Family Annual, as whipped in the Revolution for mutiny. There may have been another Constant at this time in Shaftsbury, Vt.

Like his brothers and cousins he served in the Revolution from Mass.

He is buried in a small cemetery which is on the west side of the road at the foot of Dillingham Hill, Auburn, Me., with no stone, near the graves of Captain Ichabod† and wife Polly who have white marble head-stones. Ichabod's homestead was about half a mile south of this cemetery plot. Admiral Bradford, a descendant, was so positive that during his own boyhood there had been a slate head-stone over Joseph's grave that about 1909-10 he hired a man to dig all around the spot, thinking it possible that the stone might have been overthrown and had gradually sunk into the turf. It was not found and had prob-

CEMETERY NEAR AUBURN, MAINE.

She was born April 10, 1753; and died at the home of her son Ichabod in Auburn, Me., Nov. 22, 1846, aged 94. The Diary kept by Daniel Kinsley of W. Auburn, Me. (b. Sept. 1, 1786—d. Oct. 14, 1873), records those facts:

- "1831: Old Mr Joseph Reynolds died March 15 and was buried March 17, it is a pleasant day."
- "1846: June 22, We went to Capt. Ichabod Reynolds and Franklin Reynolds and his wife was there from Bridgewater.

Jemima lived to know or hear of all of her 88 grandchildren, the youngest of whom, born four years before she died, was still living in Brockton, Mass., about 1917, at 74.

As will be evident from a table† reproduced in this book Jemima Perkins was a descendant of Roger Conant of Salem who was the first Governor of Massachusetts; and the following passengers in the Mayflower" (1620): John Alden and wife, Priscilla Mullins; William and Alice Mullins; Isaac and Mary Allerton and dau. Mary (Cushman); John Tilley and wife; John and Elizabeth (Tilley) Howland. Joseph Reynolds, Jemima's husband, was descended from numerous notables, among them: John and Percival Lowell (probably); Philip de la Noye (Huguenot at Duxbury, 1621); John and Priscilla (Mullins) Alden; Sir Edward Drew and John Drew, etc.

Joseph Reynolds‡ was in the Revolutionary War:

"Private from Bridgewater, Capt. Josiah Hayden's Co., Col. Bailey's Regiment of Minute-Men, which marched on the alarm of April 19, 1775; service, 4 days.

Also, Capt. Nathan Packard's Co., Col. Edward Mitchell's Regiment; service, 5 days; company ordered to march to Squantum, March 4, 1776, on an alarm.

Also, Capt. Henry Prentiss' Co., Col. Thos. Marshall's Regiment; abstract for advance pay, etc., sworn to at Boston, June 17, 1776.

Also, same company and regiment, enlisted July 12, 1776; service to August 1, 1776, 19 days.

Also, same company and regiment, service from Aug. 11, 1776, to date of discharge, Dec. 1, 1776, 3 months, 21 days.

Also, Corporal, Capt. Nathan Packard's Company, Col. Eliphalet Cary's Regiment; service 3 days; company marched to Rhode Island on the alarm of July 22, 1780."

His widow, Jemima, applied for a pension May 30, 1838, stating her residence as Minot, Cumberland Co., Me., and her age as 85. She set forth that they were married at Bridgewater, Mass., Sept. 17, 1772; that they were both of that place; and that he died March 15, 1831; mentioned son Ichabod, then aged 65, who was a resident of Minot, Me. The Pension Records at Washington also show:

"Enlistment spring of 1776, six months, private, in Henry Prentiss' Co., under Col. Marshall, Mass.; also 1778, six weeks, corporal in Capt. Nathan Packard's Co., under Col. Carpenter. Engaged in the Battle of Rhode Island."

As may be observed by comparing dates, Joseph marched to Lexington with his company the morning after his second son (Joseph, Jr.)

Perkins (ab. 1725-1776) was son of Luke and Ruth (Cushman); grandson of Luke and Martha (Conant) Perkins, and Robert and Persis (Lewis) Cushman; gt. grandson of Luke and Hannah (Long) Perkins, Lot and Elizabeth (Walton) Conant, Thomas and Ruth (Howland) Cushman, Thos. Lewis. Gt. gt. grandson of Gov. Roger and Sarah (Horton) Conant of Salem, Rev. Wm. and Elizab. (Gardiner) Walton of Marblehead, Thos. and Mary (Allerton) Cushman, John and Elizabeth (Tilley) Howland, George and Sarah (Jenkins) Lewis; gt. gt. gt. grandson of Richard and Agnes (Clark) Conant, Robert Cushman, Isaac and Mary (Morris) Allerton, John and Elizabeth Tilley, etc. More detailed descent involving many Mayflower and Puritan ancestors of the Reynoldses who are descendants of Joseph and Jemima (Perkins) Reynolds is shown on the table of descent reproduced and inserted herewith.

was born. He was probably not in the Battle of Lexington. With Joseph in the Revolution were his brother Thomas and the following sons of their uncle Nathaniel: Jonas, David, Nathaniel, Jonathan and Timothy—all of Bridgewater. Joseph's cousin Philip, who died before the Revolution, was in the French and Indian War. Joseph's sons, Captain Ichabod and Thomas, were both in the War of 1812; and his young brother Josiah served in the Militia in Shay's Rebellion, 1798. Joseph was a Minute-Man and was in at least one battle, Rhode Island. He was a hardy, hard-working man, a cordwainer and farmer. His mother died in Bridgewater about 1816.

Family tradition is that as Joseph and Jemima grew old (around 1820), Jemima was asked with which of the children she and Joseph would prefer to live for the rest of their days. She chose Ichabod "way down in Maine," and explained why she passed over the nearer sons and daughters in Bridgewater by saying that Ichabod was the only son who could control the father, old Joseph, who was somewhat stubborn in his extreme age, and was perhaps inclined to linger with old cronies of Bridgewater about the post-tavern when she wanted him at home. They made the long journey to Minot (Auburn), Maine, by ox-team, or packet to Portland. They lived very contentedly with Captain Ichabod and his wife Polly (Brett) until 1831 when Joseph died; Jemima was with Ichabod until her death in 1846. Of their twelve children Ichabod, Jemima, Olive, Daniel, Luke and Simeon removed between 1808-1825 to Central and Southern Maine, as we shall see. The other six children remained in Bridgewater, Mass., and stuck pretty closely to the family craft of shoe-making.

Among the many papers collected by Isaac N. Reynolds on this old warrior ancestor of ours are two pathetic letters which explain themselves. Joseph then lived in Bridgewater, Mass., and Ichabod in Minot, Me., which in point of mail communication were farther apart than New York and San Francisco are today. For their tenderness, rugged expression, and love of family they merit preservation. We submit them reverently:

LETTER No. 1

"Minot, September 8, 1810.

"Honored Father and Mother.

"I have sad tidings to communicate to you at this time. On Monday last I heard that Daniel and Luke were both sick with a fever—but how long they had been sick or how bad they were, I could not learn. But Tuesday the next day behold there came down a young man from Jay and told us that Luke was dead—and to be buried the next day at one o'clock in the afternoon. So I made ready early the next morning and went to Jay and when I came there I found even as the young man had said that in very deed my brother Luke was dead. Luke was sick two weeks only with the bilious fever† which raged exceedingly. He had his senses for about 8 or 9 days in which time he manifested the greatest resignation to the will of God, and told the people that he could not live but a few days and that the time of his departure was at hand and for 3 or 4 days before he died he had not his senses, but was very wild.

"But leaving Luke I return to give you an account of Daniel and his wife for they are both sick with the same fever that Luke had—they have been sick four weeks, but Daniel's wife has got some better and is likely to get well and Daniel was a little better but the fever has turned upon him again, and he is worse than ever and I think is dangerously sick. I shall not be disappointed if I hear of his death shortly.

"This from your son

ICHABOD REYNOLDS."

LETTER No. 2

"Minot, September 9, 1810.

"Dear Parents.

"This is a sorrowful day to us for the Lord has put a cup of weeping and mourning in our hand and we must drink it, but my prayer to God is that he would grant us wisdom and grace to make a wise improvement of this dispensation and view his hand in this to be right and just, although clouds and thick darkness are round about him yet justice and Judgment are the habitation of his throne.

"Why God should take away a man in the bloom of life is unaccountable to us, but his ways are not our ways and his thoughts are not our thoughts. But may we consider this, that God's time is the best for all his purposes, and the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away and blessed be his name.

"I pray God that he would put underneath you the everlasting arms of his mercy and support you under this trial of divine Providence.

ICHABOD REYNOLDS."

That was 120 years ago. We now read on two gravestones in the Dillingham Hill cemetery between Auburn and Turner, Maine: "DEACON ICHABOD REYNOLDS, d. April 3, 1855, aet. 82; POLLY, wife of ICHABOD REYNOLDS, d. May 19, 1866, aet. 89." See diagram p. 123.

In the sketches of Daniel and Luke in the next chapter we shall refer to these two letters again. The twelve children of Joseph and Jemima Reynolds were born in No. Bridgewater:

"Aunt Jemima Reynolds (spinster), ever lived with her brother Daniel in Canton, Maine, superintending the boys carrying the goodies she wanted to save, into her bedroom, and placing them in her chest. Oh, what a reward it was, to be allowed in that marvelous chest, when I was young!" She became very deaf.

VITAL NOTES UPON JOSEPH'S FAMILY

As this family of Joseph and Jemima is remarkable for great age and for rapid increase, we offer the following summary to bring these facts out:

	Age at Death	Number of Children
JOSEPH, ¹ the Father (1751-1831).....	80	(12)
Captain Ichabod	82	11
Joseph, Jr., twice married.....	93	15
Daniel.....	96	9
Luke, died of typhoid, young man.....	28	2
Simeon, twice married.....	83	9
Azal.....	69	4
Thomas.....	75	11
Total for the eight men.....	606 yrs.	61
<hr/>
JEMIMA, the Mother (1753-1846).....	94	(12)
Jemima ¹ , Jr., spinster.....	84	0
Olive (Mrs. Macomber).....	68	7
Amy (Mrs. Howard).....	86	9
Susanna (Mrs. Dunbar) m. her cousin.....	86	0
Vesta (Mrs. Clapp).....	66	11
Total for the six women.....	484	27
Grand Total!.....	1090	88

Thus the average for all fourteen members of the family is 78.6 years; or, omitting Luke, for his was the only unnatural death, the average is 81.7 years. Without Luke, the average age of the male members is 82.0 years; that of the females, 80.7 years. With the single exception of Luke, who died of typhoid, not a member of the family died under the age of 66—and this in an age when sanitation, hygiene, balanced diet, and public health were unknown; when the town doctor's one reliable remedy was "fisik," and the village blacksmith was dentist and horse-shoer.

Secondly, all but Jemima, Jr., of these twelve children married and had up to fifteen children. Excepting Jemima, a spinster, the number of children to each of this family of 12 children average 8 apiece. Leaving out Susanna who apparently had no children only because she married her first cousin, the average would have been almost nine each. Joseph and Jemima had some 450 great-grandchildren, the major number of whom were alive in 1915. Thus we leave the history of Corporal Joseph and his good wife Jemima Reynolds.

321. THOMAS REYNOLDS: (Thomas^b; 3 Nathaniels; Robert) b. North Bridgewater, Mass., Jany. 27, 1762, baptized there April 4, 1762; d. Winslow, Me., Dec. 9, 1951; buried there. Thomas & Tabitha removed to Winslow, Mr., about 1795, where his Uncle Nathaniel and several sons had gone about 1780 to nearby Sidney and Vassalboro. Thomas' name appears frequently on the old Winslow records. Thomas' father and mother deeded land to him Jany. 31, 1794, but he and his wife re-deeded it to Caleb Howard for £144 on Feby. 1, 1794, "Tabity" signing by mark. In the Census of 1790 Thomas lived in Bridgewater (now modern Brockton), Mass., himself, two sons under 16, wife. Thomas† was in the Revolution:

"THOMAS REYNOLDS, JR. (Mass.). Private in Captain David Packard's Co., Col. Eliphalet Cary's Regiment; service, 11 days. Company marched to Rhode Island on alarm of July 22, 1780. His brother Joseph (corporal) and cousins Jonas, David, Nathaniel, Jonathan and Timothy, and his Uncle Nathaniel, Sr., were all in the Revolution from North Bridgewater (Brockton), Mass."

M.; buried Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, Concord, beside his wife. At the age of four he was brought to Boston by his father. Educated in Boston. Graduated Harvard, '47, Divinity; A.M., '60; D.D., '94. Ordained as minister of First Congregational Church (Unitarian), Jamaica Plain, Roxbury, and served from January 1848 to May 1858, and where children were all born.

"In 1858 he was called to the old First Parish Church of Concord, the eleventh minister of that famous old church founded 1635. After one of the most successful pastorates, he was made Pastor Emeritus in 1882 and became Secretary of the American Unitarian Association, which office he held at his death. As its chief executive, he travelled widely for twelve years, speaking and visiting churches of his denomination in the South and West. Earnest, vigorous, and loyal—there is not a corner of the Unitarian household where his influence has not been felt; and the great advance of missionary effort has been due more to him than to any other man. To his practical sagacity, his prevailing wisdom and tact, his persistent reasonableness, were due the safe conduct of his denomination through more than one serious crisis. As an historian and man of letters he was very able, having the true genius of authorship. He wrote a History of the Concord Fight, History of Concord and articles for the Atlantic Monthly. He was Chairman of the Committee to print the records of Concord up to 1850."

After his death a collection of his papers and sermons was privately printed by his daughter, Alice Reynolds Keyes: Historical and Other Papers, 1895. In this book is an excellent account of his own father's career. For a short time before entering Harvard, he was in business in Boston. It is an interesting coincidence that his successor in the famous First Church of Concord, in which Ralph Waldo Emerson and his family were his warm friends, was the Reverend Benjamin⁶ Reynolds Bulkeley of Harvard, a distant Reynolds kinsman of Grindall. Grindall's name came to him from Edmund Grindall, Archbishop of Canterbury, whose sister, through the Hookers and Rawsons, was our Grindall's ancestor.

Thoreau was the neighbor of Grindall in Concord, and Grindall attended him in his last illness and conducted the funeral services. Grindall while at Concord gathered much information on our family, and some part of this book is due to his studies. Member of the American Antiquarian Society, Social Circle, etc. During Civil War, active in Soldiers' Aid Society of which his wife was Vice-President.

B.; studied medicine in the office of Dr. Warren in Boston; about 1814 went abroad to complete the professional course in England. There and in Paris studied two years under the most famous teachers of that day, receiving also special instructions in diseases of the eye. Passed examination Royal College of Physicians & Surgeons. On his return to Boston was at once brought into notice by a successful double operation for cataract performed upon his father Edward Reynolds; his first cataract operation and also the first performed in Boston. The prestige which this case gave him was the foundation of an extended employment in this department of surgery. He was a founder of Boston Eye and Ear Infirmary (1824) and until late in life remained its senior surgeon."

Edward had completed his medical studies in England and on the Continent, and was aboard a sailing packet at the Liverpool docks about to cast off for the long voyage to America. Among the moving, holiday crowd on the docks to see the ship off, was a remarkably pretty, attractive girl, whom he had never seen before. Edward, idling at the rail, and watching the people bidding farewell to their America-bound friends, espied Miss Pratt. It was a case of love at first sight. He took an instant decision, and quit the ship at the moment it was casting off. He sought an introduction, and soon after their meeting proposed and was as promptly accepted. Some time later (1820), she came to America and they were married in New York City.

Salmon was eldest child of Benjamin Hale. Louisa was born April 29, 1811, Windsor, Vt.; d. June 13, 1898, Ashland, Nebraska.

"He was a man universally beloved—of decided opinions, strict integrity, and truthfulness. He was very outspoken, great reader, and well-informed. Democrat in early years when free-trade was the issue, and before the slavery question was agitated. Later he became a free-soiler and noted Abolitionist. He died two years before the organization of the Republican Party. Of broad religious thought—too broad for his day—he was not connected with any church; though he would now be considered of strong religious conviction. He knew Pope's Essay on Man by heart; was a natural mathematician.

He came to Jackson Co., Mich., about 1833-34 with his brothers Aaron and Grindall, and located on 120 acres of homestead land paying the legal $1.25 an acre. Forty acres adjoining this was woodland, and completed the adjacent quarter section of which Louisa Hale owned 120 acres. Their engagement took place in this way: After several months of courtship, he asked her one day if he should buy the "forty" of woodland. She replied 'she thought he would do well to secure it.' This round-about proposal seemed to satisfy them both and they were soon married and lived a congenial, happy life. At this wedding some sixty guests were present. The bride was dressed in a very fine white cross-barred mull gown, made with a short waist and full sleeves. She wore blue morocco slippers and on her head a cap trimmed with yards and yards of ruffles bound in white satin. Julius wore a dark blue broad-cloth dress suit; the coat had a very short waist and long tails. His vest was a mixed pattern of silk and wool, on his feet he wore pumps, and on his neck a high satin stock. The young couple lived for the first two years at the home of her stepfather, Abiel Tripp, as she had been an invalid for six years before marriage. She gained rapidly and in the summer of 1849 her husband bought a farm in Hillsdale Co., Mich., to which they removed in Oct. 31, 1849.

"On March 6, 1852, Julius—yielding to the prevalent 'gold fever'—started for California overland with the 'Covered Wagon' parties of emigrants. The history of this tedious journey is a story of suffering and hardship that he never told his family, and it was only after his death which occurred two months after he reached California (they were five months on the road), that his family learned the whole story. He had written cheerful letters en route, but from friends and neighbors who were with him part of the way the story came back to the family. * * * While he and a companion, Martin Tripp, were at dinner one day, a squaw stole the frying pan in which he was frying buffalo meat. He chased her, caught her and gave her a good spanking with a frying-pan, and returned to the fire laughing. He died of typhoid at Placerville, then called Hangtown, in California. Fifty Michigan friends—all men, for no women were there—attended his funeral. He wrote five letters en route from Council Bluffs, Ft. Laramie, etc., which are now owned by Mrs. Allan Rea, his granddaughter. Once one of his horses was stolen and he sold the other and walked over the Sierras, being at one time four days without food. While on his journey he at one time carried a sick man without funds a long distance."

After the death of Julius, the widowed Louise m. 2: Abraham Sanford, and continued to live in Michigan.

The Faughts with several hundred of their countrymen landed in Boston about 1756, but eventually settled in the Kennebec Valley at Dresden, Me. Some time previous to 1766, Philip Faught and his wife and three sons and two daughters moved up the river to Vassalboro. His will, probated June 11, 1781, names them all: Jacob, Frederick, Anthony, Rachel and Marget.

Luther Reynolds was a farmer and lived on the River Road near the south line of the town of Sidney, near Elisha Reynolds. Luther while still living there gave that portion of his large farm on the west side of the road where his house was to his son Sumner, and that portion on the east side where the barn stood to his son William. Sumner then built a barn and William a house and they had a complete set of buildings. Then Luther and Sally (or Sarah, as she was christened) lived six months with William and then six months alternately with Sumner, until Luther died in 1860. His son Philip lived on his farm adjoining to the north.

Luther had blue eyes and was a very agreeable man. At least four of the children also had blue eyes—Philip, Sumner, William and Susan. Sally was a small woman of good figure with black eyes and dark brown hair. She was as erect as a soldier and nimble and alert even in old age. She was unusually neat and very industrious, providing her large family with woollen and linen cloth from wool and flax raised on the farm and woven with her own hands. Some of the linen towels and tablecloths she wove are still in the possession of descendants. The nine children of Luther and Sally were born in Sidney, Me.:

April 3, 1855, Auburn, Me., aged 82; buried with wife in family plot, north side cemetery at foot of Dillingham Hill, Turner-Auburn; see p. 123-6 for inscriptions. (See N. E. H. G. S. Reg. 72:233.) He m. Mary ("Polly") Brett, Jany. 21, 1795, b. March 1, 1777, North Bridgewater; d. May 19, 1866, Auburn-Minot, Me., in her 90th year, daughter of Isaac and Priscilla (Jackson) Brett. Known long and affectionately as "Aunt Polly," and there are many tales of her large-hearted hospitality. Marriage by Pastor Porter. It is a tradition that Ichabod was a gay young fellow and the Bretts at first objected to Polly marrying him.

Mrs. Walter E. Johnson of 1096 Main St., Montello, Mass., now owns reproductions of old oil paintings of Ichabod (which somewhat resemble President-Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard), of Polly, of daughter Mary Bird-Kinsley, and granddaughter Mrs. Rose Daggett. About 1820 Ichabod's aged parents, Joseph and Jemima, came to Auburn to live with him. The father died in 1831 and the mother in 1846.

In 1800 Ichabod and Polly with three small children removed to Maine from the north parish of Bridgewater and settled in Poland, afterwards Minot and now Auburn, Me. The Captain, a carpenter, and Polly always lived on the same spot where they first settled in Maine, though in three towns, two counties and two States. The migration was made in winter. Much of the road lay through an unbroken wilderness, and Polly and the children were drawn upon sleds. She carried with her some seeds of a favorite apple and planted them in Maine. The apples from these same seeds are still eaten by her descendants; they are deep red, clear to the core, and of an excellent flavor. Many years later, Polly Reynolds visited her old Bridgewater home, going with horse and shay, and taking several days for the trip. It was over 150 miles and she probably made visits on the way, as she had relatives and friends in many of the towns. Her last journey was in company with her granddaughter, Mary Brett Bird, mother of Rear-Admiral Bradford. Captain Ichabod was Deacon of the Baptist Church and for many years led the choir. He played the bass viol and composed music published in a Hymn and Song Book.

In the War of 1812 Ichabod was commissioned Captain and saw much active service. In 1814 he received orders to proceed with his Company to Portland, Me., as the British war vessels were hovering off the harbor. The Company, Ezra Brett among the number, included three officers, five sergeants, five corporals, two musicians (probably drum and fife) and eighty-six privates. When Ichabod received orders, messengers were sent to the men, directing most of them to meet at his house to prepare for the march. A few who lived on the route were ordered to join the Company as it passed.

"The Captain, who was not only a good soldier but a kind and generous neighbor, fearing that the troops would not have had a proper supply of food before leaving their homes in such haste, said to his wife, 'Polly, can you feed all these men before we march?' She cheerfully replied that she and the girls would do their best, and they went to work. Nancy, the eldest daughter, then 17, afterwards grandmother of the late Judge Bonney of Portland and Polly, aged 15, helped their mother with the preparations. They put the largest kettles over an open fire and filled them with corned beef, pork, and all kinds of vegetables for a 'boiled dinner.' Then, going into the fields, they gathered the ripe pumpkins and made dozens of pies, which they baked in earthen milk pans, and apple-sauce and brown bread completed the bill of fare. The hungry soldiers, many of whom had not even had time to go to their homes from the fields after the alarm, joyfully ate their fill, and prepared for the march with renewed courage and vigor. Then Polly, looking at the lately so bountifully spread tables where yet much remained for the children, said, 'This is better than that there should not have been enough.' The next morning another feast was spread, and after it was eaten the soldiers started for Portland. They were in service for three weeks, and camped on Munjoy Hill. During the absence of the Captain, Polly and the children went into the fields and gathered the corn, pumpkins and other vegetables, as there was not a man left at home or anywhere near to help. When Ichabod returned, Polly proudly showed to her husband the well-filled cellars and storehouses—the harvesting had been done!" (Brett Genealogy, 1915, by Mrs. L. B. Goodenow, p. 171, etc.; also gives Mayflower ancestry, etc.)

Captain Ichabod and Polly Reynolds have numerous distinguished descendants, as appears on later pages of this book. First three children b. Brockton, Mass.; others in Minot-Auburn, Me.

526. JOSEPH REYNOLDS: (*Joseph*⁶; *Thomas*⁵; 3 Nathaniels; *Robert*¹) b. North Bridgewater (now Brockton), Mass., April 18, 1775, the eve of the Battle of Lexington upon which alarm his father, Corporal Joseph marched. He died Sept. 16, 1868, aged over 93; buried in family plot in old cemetery on West Pleasant St., Brockton. His son Charles long since related that Joseph lived in and owned the home formerly of Thomas⁵ & Elizabeth (Turner) Reynolds, his grandparents. He endorsed notes of a cotton manufacturing company that failed about 1815-16, and lost his home and property. His first wife died about that time, as also his grandmother, just mentioned, who probably lived with Joseph, as she had a life interest in the homestead property. As Joseph was "broke" at about that time, due to the company's failure, it suggests the reason that no stones were erected over the graves of Thomas and Elizabeth.

"Grandfather Joseph was nearly six feet tall, weighed over 180 lbs., had blue eyes, florid medium complexion, was moderate in speech, hard of hearing in old age. Quite a musician in his younger days—flute or flageolet. Honest, upright, dependable and liberal to his friends, which left him poor. Farmer, 200 acres with fine vegetable garden in which he took much pride. Made shoes independently after the individual benchwork fashion of the times, and later made horse-shoe nails on a large scale. Used to ride on horse-back to Boston to get his raw materials and carry the product back there for sale." (By Lowell Reynolds).

March 23, 1792; d. March 26, 1879, daughter of Noah & Phoebe (Mann) Whitcomb. Joseph had fifteen (some say eighteen, perhaps three died) children, all but two of which lived to marry. 532. SIMEON REYNOLDS: (*Joseph*⁶; *Thomas*⁵; 3 Nathaniels; *Robert*¹) b. North Bridgewater (now called Brockton), Mass., April 26, 1786; d. Caribou, Me., of pneumonia, April 26, 1869, on his 83rd birthday. All of the family who died in Caribou are buried in Green Ridge Cemetery there.

Simeon was reared in the shoe-manufacturing town of Brockton, Mass., which was then mostly an agricultural village. Like most of his brothers and practically all of his American forbears, he was taught to make good shoes, but though he early learned the craftsmanship of leather, he was a farmer most of his life. When first married he was 22. When he was 32 and had four sons, he moved his family by ox-team from Brockton, Mass., to Canton and Hartford, Me., where his name appeared from time to time in the town records until about 1863. At that time he again removed to Caribou, Me., then in its early history as a great potato raising region. His sons for the most part went also to Caribou and were noted as potato-growers. Simeon's brothers Ichabod, Luke, Azel and Daniel—their biographies just precede this—had gone to southwestern Maine before him, to Auburn, Jay, Canton, Minot, etc.

Simeon was apparently not in the War of 1812. His children, like Simeon's brothers and sisters, for the most part lived to ripe old age and had numerous children. His father, Corporal Joseph, served in the Revolution; also his father-in-law Zebedee Snell was a Captain in that war, so that all of his descendants have a double Revolutionary line. Zebedee's record is in the footnotes hereto; Joseph's appears on page 121.

Simeon's old family Bible, printed by the American Bible Society in 1817, is now (1925) owned by Mrs. Charles Rouse, daughter of Elisha⁸ and granddaughter of Simeon, who lives at 860 Pleasant St., Brockton, Mass. It contains the birth dates of the children, even to the day of the week, as reproduced herewith. In several dates it is in error. Delphina, the youngest child of Simeon, wrote the compiler, Sept. 2, 1915:

"Simeon stood well in the estimation of his neighbors; a man that was well liked by all. He was honest, upright and straightforward in his dealings. He was a good neighbor, always ready to help in time of need. He was large, tall, very good-looking, of light complexion, blue eyes, dark hair."

Vesta Reynolds Crockett, granddaughter of Simeon's brother Daniel, wrote in 1916:

"I well remember your great-grandfather, Simeon Reynolds—once in particular, when he paid a day visit to my grandfather at his home in Canton. I was deeply impressed to see those two white-haired, saintly brothers quietly talking together in low, well-modulated tones—so characteristic of the family type.

"Another time I remember going some five miles with my aunts Deborah and Eliza Reynolds to the home of my granduncle Simeon, and of seeing Aunt Sally and their only daughter, Delphina. The house was a perfect model of neatness, with its freshly-sanded floors—the only ones I have ever seen. There was no paint in the house, but the all-over wood-work was scrupulously clean and white.

"Simeon was a man of noble outlines."

Simeon, with brothers Azel and Joseph, "labourers," on Jany. 16, 1813, "all of Bridgewater," signed a deed in which they mentioned "our honoured grandfather Thomas Reynolds." Again with Azel and Daniel "all of Jay, Me., yeomen," he signed a deed to brother Ichabod of Minot, Me., Oct. 1, 1820, again mentioning grandfather Thomas.

Simeon married twice. First, to Miss Mary Snell, Jany. 19, 1809, Brockton, Mass., who was b. there July 9, 1790; d. tuberculosis July 2, 1827, daughter of Captain Zebedee & Mary (Hayward) Snell (m. 1777) of Bridgewater-Brockton. Mary is buried in a little private lot on the (1915) Jones place, about two miles out of Canton, Me., all grown up to bushes and trees through neglect. Her grave is unmarked, on the south side near the fence, according to Delphina. She came of distinguished Puritan ancestry, as will be seen from the charts published herewith. Zebedee Snell was in the Revolutionary† War. He‡ had another daughter Martha Snell (by first wife, Martha Howard) who m. William⁷ Reynolds, son of Philip. Simeon's wife, Mary Snell, had great-grandfather Josiah Snell (b. 1674) whose sister, another Mary Snell§, we have previously seen, married Nathaniel⁴ Reynolds who was Simeon's great-grandfather, see page 71. Thus Simeon was a Snell descendant and also married a Snell. Among the numerous Mayflower ancestors of Simeon's wife were John and Priscilla Alden. Before Mary's premature death at 37 of tuberculosis, (probably due to overwork and poor nutrition), she and Simeon had eight children, all but one of whom lived to ripe old age.

Simeon m. 2nd, Miss Sally Young, July 5, 1829. She was b. 1809, and d. 1871, Caribou, Me., by burning. Her clothing caught fire when she tried to rescue a calf from their barn which was set afire from a blaze in the neighboring woods. She ran and was so badly burned that she soon died. Daughter of Eben and Patience (Ricker) Young of Peru, Me. Delphina was the only child of Simeon and Sally.

†From Mass. Soldiers & Sailors in the Revolution, 1904-05, XIV:596:

NOTES ON VARIOUS ANCESTORS OF SIMEON AND MARY (SNELL) REYNOLDS

Three comprehensive genealogical charts accompany these pages. Each is in the form of a radial semi-circle; at the center of such diagrams is the person whose general ancestral history is traced. The first chart covers the ancestors of Simeon⁷ Reynolds; the second (on p. 73) of Captain Zebedee Snell, father of Mary, Simeon's wife; the third of Mary Hayward, Zebedee Snell's wife, and mother of Simeon's wife. Therefore the following notes are of active interest to all living descendants of Simeon and Mary. They explain part of the charts:

1. Ancestors who came in the "Mayflower," 1620.

The children of Simeon and Mary are descended from the following twelve Mayflower ancestors:

JOHN ALDEN (b. 1599; d. Sept. 12, 1687). He was not with the Pilgrims in Leyden, Holland, but shipped with them in Southampton, England, as cooper. Last survivor of those who signed the Compact. Married Priscilla Mullins; and had 11 children. Simeon was descended from their daughter Mary who m. Thomas Delano. Zebedee from their son Zachariah, wife Mary Mary Hayward from their son Joseph and wife Mary (Simmons). We therefore have three claims upon John and Priscilla. See Alden Genealogy, 1867, by Ebenezer Alden, M. D., p. 11, etc. (S., Z., M.)†

PRISCILLA MULLINS, m. John Alden, 1623,—read Longfellow's "Courtship of Myles Standish."

WILLIAM MULLINS, tradesman of Dorking, County Surrey, England, was not with the Pilgrims in Holland. He, his wife and son Joseph died the first winter, 1621. Father of Priscilla, just above.

ALICE MULLINS, wife of William and mother of Priscilla, d. 1621.

FRANCIS COOKE (1583-1663, at Plymouth). He m. Hester Mahieu, June 1603, Leyden, Holland. Freeman, 1633. Wife and children came in Ship Ann, 1623. Daughter Jane Cooke, m. Experience Mitchell (1609-1689) who came in the Ann, 1623. Francis had severe differences over religious matters with the Plymouth leaders and he removed to Dartmouth, Mass., where he became a Baptist minister, but later returned to Plymouth. (Z., M.)

MARY ALLERTON, d. 1699, last survivor of all those who came in the Mayflower. She m. about 1635, Elder Thomas (1608-1691), son of Robert Cushman. Robert came in the Fortune, 1621; left son Thomas in care of Governor Bradford. and returned to England on business for the Colony and d. there 1626. Mary had four children: son Thomas m. Ruth Howland, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Tilley) Howland below. (S.)

"At York Neck, grandfather bought a quarter section, of which somewhat more than half was covered with timber, the rest being prairie. This location is $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Camp Point, where the C. B. & Q. and Wabash railroads join, coming respectively from the northeast and east, running thence to Quincy, 22 miles on the same tracks.

"At York Neck, grandfather built a blacksmith shop which contributed materially to the family support until they got started. It was kept up until after my day. In fact when my father, Charles Christopher Reynolds, moved out to the old place to take care of grandfather and grandmother in the early fall of 1877, there was an old shop there and father did all his own work there and a little occasionally for others.

"Grandfather Reynolds was one of the most considerate men I ever knew, so far as his dealings with others. He was good-natured, kindly and easily pleased. Everybody liked him. He died on the old home place where he settled when he first went to Illinois. So did my grandmother."

It was in 1835 that Horace and Anne removed from Winsted, Conn., to Houston Township, Adams County, Ill.

Horace was bitterly opposed to slavery and was a link in the "Underground Railroad" in Illinois. His sons sometimes drove slaves away concealed under a load of hay or cotton in the big farm wagons. One of the sons of Horace was driving a load of slaves this way in the dead of winter when a colored baby in the wagon began to cry. Those on the wagon were in terror lest the cries should betray them; but they were fortunate and were not detected. Horace and his seven sons voted for Abraham Lincoln, 1860, in a brick school-house.

June 14, 1916, Hinsdale, Ill.; buried Ashland, Nebraska. She m. Joseph Arnold, Oct. 14, 1860, Liberty, Jackson Co., Mich. Joseph was b. Sept. 11, 1833, De Peyster, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.; d. Nov. 11, 1892, Ashland, Neb., son of Jeremiah who was b. in R. I., about 1797, and his wife Percy (christened Martha but herself changed to Percy in childhood) Rounds Arnold. They lived Hillsdale, Mich. Percy's father was Joseph Rounds, Revolutionary soldier enlisted in R. I. at the age of 18. Her mother was of Irish parentage, Mary Green. Rounds was a man of sound judgment, very pious and a Universalist.

She was christened Cornelia Jane, but when she was nine decided to rename herself,—and, as she was a determined character, a life-long trait—she was from that time known as Geraldine. Her girlhood was spent in Jackson Co., Mich. After her father's death her mother remarried, to Abraham Sanford, who in his way was good to her. His ideas of what was suitable in educational attainments did not coincide with hers. He did send her one year—she was then thirteen—to Spring Arbor College. After that year she had to earn her tuition herself, and so at fourteen she was teaching a large country school where she had boys as old as 21 under her. She did her work so well, her step-father evidently changed his attitude, for the next year he paid her expenses and sent her to college—and later he sent her younger sister Marion to Albion College, where she died of typhoid fever. Geraldine went to Hillsdale College, Mich.

When she was within three months of graduation, she married Joseph Arnold, a fellow student, whose business affairs compelled his going some distance into the northern part of Michigan. They had been engaged for a year and a half. Geraldine, always quick and resolute to make a decision, married him and went along. Geraldine was a woman of remarkable mentality and breadth of vision and wisdom. Ralph G. Arnold of Chicago has an excellent portrait of her by John C. Johanson of New York City.

When after the second child was born Joseph and Geraldine migrated in a covered wagon—there were no railroads then west of Chicago—to Nebraska where they settled near Salt Creek Ford (now Ashland), Neb. The "Ford" was then the extreme western settlement with only occasional ranches between that and Ft. Kearney. The husband taught school while he was proving up on his homestead near the Ford. Later they moved into Ashland where Joseph practiced law; he followed the law until his death in Ashland Nov. 11, 1892.

Everton and successive children b. Ashland, Neb.; others Jackson Co., Mich. Ten sons; two daughters.

Educated in public schools of Brockton; Hunt's Academy; Comer's Business College, Boston. Mason. He was a scholarly and exceptionally well-informed man of a pronounced analytical and logical turn of mind. He found much interest in the study of local history, and probably knew more about Brockton and Brockton families during the last two centuries than any other authority. Early in life, he began work upon sections of this family history, and the Brockton and Maine sections are in large part his work. He owned the famous old religious tome described and pictured in the first chapter of this book, and at his death he gave it with the ancient wallet of Corporal Joseph Reynolds to the compiler of this history. He inherited the old home of his parents at 1096 North Main St., Montello, Mass., and always lived there. He was a very likeable man, of a winning and hospitable personality. He never married.

Charles was a conservative, careful manufacturer, well known for excellence of workmanship, and for his conscientious and punctual business habits. All his American Reynolds ancestry for generations had been shoe manufacturers. In 1898, his four sons were making in Brockton more shoes than were used in the whole of America in 1659, when the ancestor ROBERT died in Boston.

In 1840 Charles began to make boots and shoes in a modest way. Two years later removed to Wilmot, N. H. In 1845 returned to Brockton and built his house 685 Pleasant Street. Four years later built his Brockton factory.

Until the Civil War broke out, Charles prospered; but at its outbreak, because his trade was almost wholly in the South, he lost everything. His only remaining asset was a small amount of leather stock. He paid all claims in full, and then with his sons himself returned to the bench and made custom shoes until he had accumulated working capital. With this and his stock of leather, he re-entered independent manufacturing and continued until 1876 when he retired. In 1851 appointed Agent for the Holyoke Mutual Insurance Company and served until a few years before his death. His life was distinguished for simple integrity and substantial accomplishment in hard times. Mrs. Grout owns two excellent steel engravings of Charles and Sarah.

773. SILAS DUNBAR REYNOLDS: (*Simeon*⁷; *Joseph*⁶; *Thomas*⁵; 3 Nathaniels; *Robert*¹) b. Canton, Oxford Co., Me., June 5, 1825[§]; d. Winthrop, Me., April 14, 1908, "heart and liver trouble," aged 83. He and his wives and several children are buried in the family plot in Green Ridge Cemetery, Caribou, Maine.

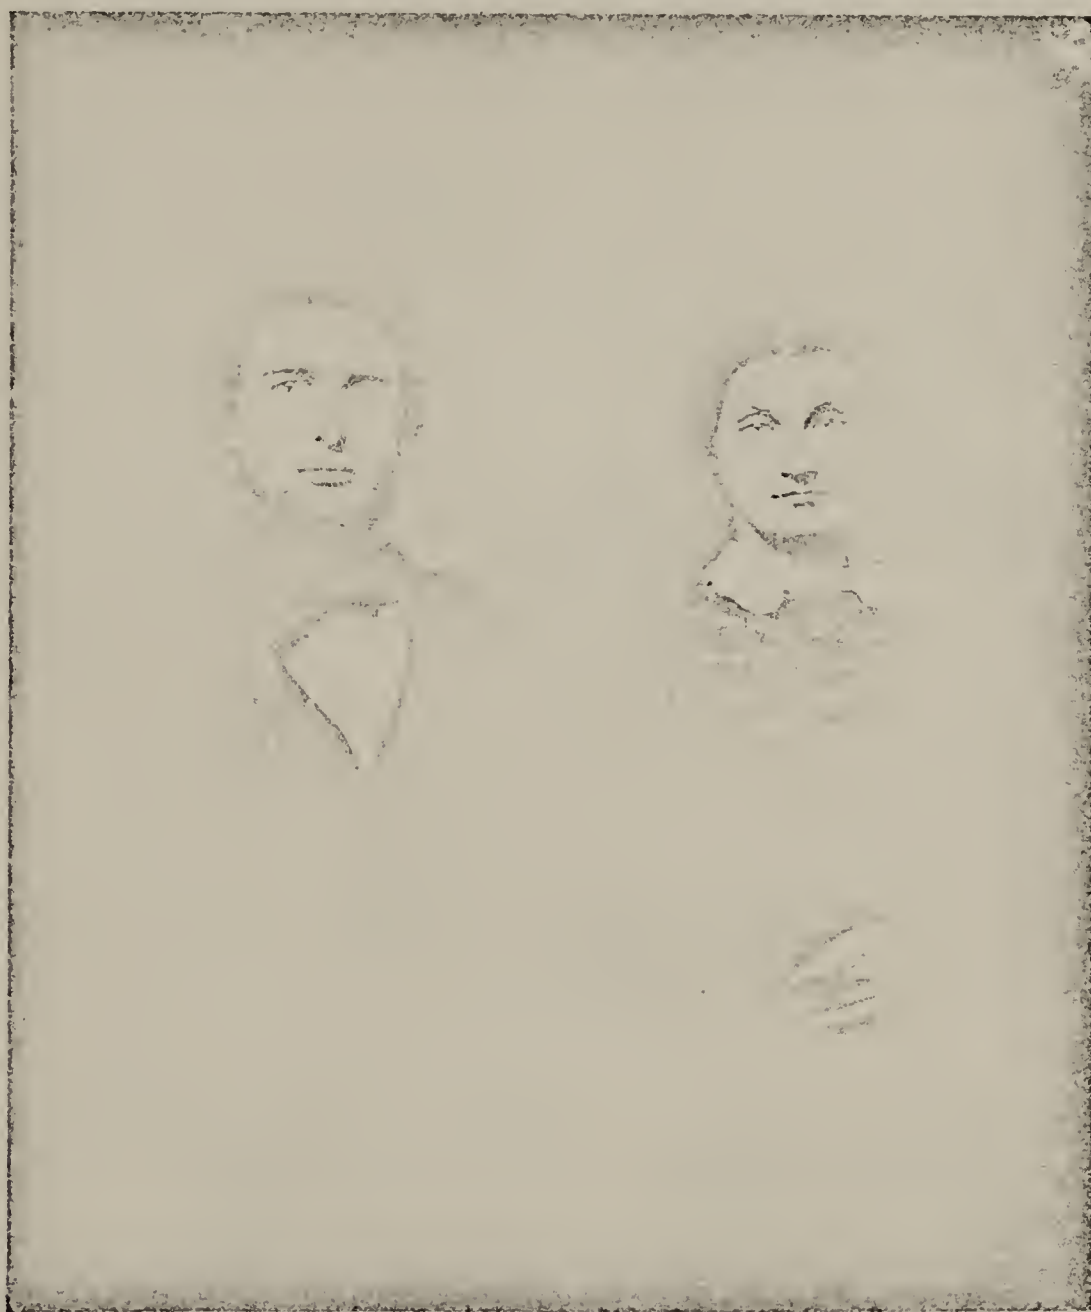

"My father was born in Canton, in 1826. When a young man he worked at shoe-making, the family craft, until November, 1853, when he removed from North Bridgewater (Brockton), Mass., to Hartford, Me., where he became a farmer. In 1864 he and his children, his father Simeon and several brothers removed by ox-team to the famous new potato country of Caribou, Aroostook Co., in extreme northern Maine. He and my mother joined the Methodist Church and were Republicans." (George F. Reynolds, 1915.)

When he was but an infant, his mother Mary Snell Reynolds died July 2, 1827. Silas with his cousin Susanna Dunbar (later Mrs. Samuel Peabody) whose mother also died about this time, were taken over and reared by their Aunt Susanna Reynolds Dunbar and her husband, the well-beloved Captain Silas Dunbar for whom our Silas had been named. Captain Dunbar gave to him an old sword, cap and military feather used by him in the War of 1812, which Silas in turn left to his grandson Silas Sprague Reynolds¹⁰.

"Silas was once a member of our family when he helped my father out on some belated farm work. How we all enjoyed his spicy company! His personality was intense. He was slightly above medium height, blue eyes and fair complexion. He was always ready to act well his part on any occasion, vivacity ever lighting his countenance and kindness beaming from his eyes. We all regretted deeply his decision to move 'way down East' to Caribou, for he was always cheerful and hearty." (Vesta Reynolds Crockett, 1916).

On April 11, 1851, Silas Reynolds "yeoman and cordwainer of Bridgewater" bought property of his brother Isaac Atherton Reynolds, upon which he for several years made his home on Pleasant Street, Brockton, opposite his cousin Charles Turner Reynolds. But on Sept. 14, 1853, for $450 he sold this property to Millard Packard who lived next east of him. That November, 1853, he voyaged with his small family by Boston steamer to Portland and settled in Livermore or Hartford Township near the Androscoggin River. He lived in Hartford, Me., until 1848; Brockton, Mass., 1848-1853; Canton-Livermore, 1853-63; Caribou, Me., 1863 to April, 1906, and thereafter with his son Frederick I. in Winthrop, Me. When a young man he went to sea one summer on a fishing boat.

[§]There is some uncertainty about the date; it may have been 1826.

presumably to the Grand Banks. During the Civil War, when he had six young children, he several times stood draft, but was not called.

Silas m. 1st, Miss Esther S. Phillips, Stoughton, Mass., Nov. 2, 1848, both then of North Bridgewater (now Brockton); ceremony by Rev. Isaac Smith of Stoughton. The yellowed old certificate is owned by their daughter Esther (Mrs. Orie L. Hardy of Kennebunk, Me.). Esther Phillips was b. 1826, Wayne or Livermore, Me.; d. Caribou, Me., tuberculosis, November, 1867, daughter of Edmund† and Sarah (Paul) Phillips, of whom we know but little. Esther was "delicate, very dainty, of lovely complexion, blue eyes, very fair and light-skinned."

Silas and Esther had seven children, of whom the first three were born in Brockton, Mass. She died about the time Silas' father Simeon and stepmother died in Caribou.

Silas and Esther met when they were both shoe operatives in Brockton.

He is said to have met and m. Sally Paul in Boothbay, Me. For many years they lived on a farm in Livermore or Wayne, Me.; then Britton's Mills, and finally Gardiner, Me. 1098. LINCOLN CAROL REYNOLDS: (Silas⁸; Simeon⁷; Joseph⁶; Thomas⁵; 3 Nathaniels; Robert¹) b. October 28, 1860, Hartford, Oxford Co., Maine; d. at 220 Sunnyside Ave., Oakland, Calif., May 31, 1924, aged 63-7-3; buried Mountain View Cemetery, Oakland. He died of arterio sclerosis and angina pectoris with complications.

Born in the critical closing days of the first Lincoln presidential campaign, and just nine days before Lincoln's election, he was named for the great President. Though only four when Lincoln was assassinated, he remembered vividly seeing his father Silas and his Uncle Nathan, on receiving the news, clasp hands silently while tears trickled down their bronzed faces. Lincoln's people were simple, hard-working Aroostook County potato-growers and timbermen.

When he was just passed seven, his mother died, but his father remarried in 1868. As a youth he worked on his father's farm, but when nineteen he ran away. After some years on other Maine farms, he migrated to the Wisconsin lumber camps where his next older brother George had already been some time. He worked there as cook and "lumber-jack," and after some years saved several thousand dollars. He next went to Hazel, South Dakota, and became a hardware and agricultural implement dealer. In 1890 he married and his business grew steadily until the panic of 1893, when the impossibility of collecting accounts from the ruined wheat-growers caused him to decide to remove to the Pacific Coast. After a preliminary trip to California with Wallace Knapp, he took his wife and son Marion first to Anderson, and shortly thereafter, to Shingletown, Shasta Co., Calif. After building and operating several sugar- and yellow-pine mills, he and his partners lost their business in 1896. However, his energy and excellent credit enabled him to get an independent start and, after ten years of exceedingly hard work during which he acquired gradually many hundred acres of fine pine timberland in the Shingletown and Viola districts, and during which he built and owned six saw-mills and a private logging railroad, he sold out in 1906 to the Red River Lumber Company of Minneapolis.

In November, 1906, he transferred his properties to this organization, and immediately removed to North Bend, Coos Bay, Oregon. There he organized the L. C. Reynolds Lumber Company. His brother George, just returned from the Alaskan goldfields, became his partner. The mill and logging operations, due to over-extension at the time of the 1907 financial crisis, were unsuccessful and after three years were discontinued. From 1909 to 1919 he owned and operated fir and cedar mills in Coquille, South Slough, Acme and Siuslaw, Oregon. During the war he owned and operated logging camps taking spruce and cedar off his Siuslaw holdings. The spruce was for airplane stock and the cedar for ship-building and shingles.

In 1919 he sold out and retired on a small, but very pretty farm four miles northeast of Napa, California. A few weeks before his death he was taken to his daughter's home in Oakland and there died. His business reputation was always of the highest sort. He was a man of unusual activity and capacity for hard work, always intensely absorbed in his business. He was about five feet six inches tall, weighed about 147, had grey eyes marked most of his life with sclerotic crescents, and had a square face.

On October 14, 1890, he married Miss Byrd Margaret Cannon† at the home of her parents, Hiram and Margaret (Clark) Cannon, about five miles south of Claremont, South Dakota. The Reverend W. H. Irwin performed the ceremony. She was born December 28, 1874, at Victor, near Rochester, New York.

In 1906 Lincoln, with his family visited his aged father Silas whom he had not seen since 1879, at the old homestead near Caribou, Maine.

Lincoln's home during the years of his prosperity in Shasta County, Cal., was the old "Bailey Place," four miles west of Viola, Calif. His mills manufactured short pine lumber for sash and door stock, sold mostly to the California Door Company, Oakland, Cal.

The eight children of Lincoln and Byrd M. (Cannon) Reynolds were:

†CANNON FAMILY: Of the remote ancestry of the Cannons we have not been able to ascertain much. The booklet, "Andrew Cannon and his Descendants, 1651-1912," by Charles Selwyn Williams, N. Y. C. 1912, is in manuscript form in the genealogical room of the New York Public Library. As the family of our Abraham Cannon is said to be "Poughkeepsie Dutch," we think that the ancestry in that manuscript is probably his strain. In that work (1) ANDRIES CANON, a French Huguenot refugee from Rochelle, fled from France and settled on Staten Island in N. Y. Harbor. He m. Miss Jane Pearce, and they had (2) ABRAHAM CANNON who m. Sarah de Marest. This Abraham, Jr., had (3) DAVID who m. a Staten Island Dutch girl, Aaltze Praal, Nov. 14, 1749, and had (4) ABRAHAM CANNON of Corlaers Hook, N. Y., who m. Susanna Workman, April 18, 1778, and was a tavern-keeper; will dated May 6, 1809. He and Susanna had David, b. 1782; and Sarah, b. 1780, who m. a Duryea; and Susanna, b. 1784 who m. a Myers.

But we are unable to trace the Canadian Cannons further back than the statement that "Abraham's parents were Dutch and lived along the Hudson near Poughkeepsie." Our specific history begins with

The secondary index of places and topics is omitted entirely. The index to the first thirty-eight pages will be found only in the first (the Hyatt-Reynolds) edition of 1928. Occasionally references are grouped under one family name, as "Fuller Family," instead of detail by Christian names, although many members of the name may be represented. Married women are generally indexed by their maiden names. It is also to be remembered that Mary is often known as "Polly"; Martha as "Patty"; Sarah as "Sally," etc.

Attention is again called to the fact that much material supplementary to this book will be issued in the 1931 and later Annals of the Reynolds Family Association. Wherever this book conflicts with what has previously been published in those Annals, it is presumably a revision of them. Henceforward, the Annual will be the medium of revision of the book. Other extracts from the compiler's collections will appear in the Annals from time to time.
